

Colorful Ceremony to Mark Bridge Opening Saturday

Final touches on the new Point Ellice Bridge were to be completed at 3 p.m. today with paving of approaches at west end. Ceremonies opening the $682,934 span are set for 2 p.m. Saturday. A parade from City Hall will mark the event. The ribbon-cutting ceremony takes place at the east end of the bridge. Mayor Percy Scurrell will unveil a plaque and Charles Banfield, pioneer Victoria West resident, will cut the ribbon. Guests, including old-timers who were involved or suffered loss when the original bridge collapsed, will proceed to Victoria West Community Hall from the ceremony, for a reception. The bridge was closed to traffic June 17. For other stories concerning its construction and history, see Pages 10 and 11. (Daily Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

IKE'S TRIP TO FARM APPROVED BY DOCTORS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower set out by automobile today for a weekend or more at his Pennsylvania farm at Gettysburg in a new demonstration of recovery from his mild stroke.

Eisenhower went with full approval from his doctors, the White House said. But it was emphasized that "the road to recovery still stretches well into the future."

Amalgamation Looms as Big Election Issue

But Outer Areas Holding Back

By PETE LOUDON

The question of amalgamation has been definitely thrown into the year-end election picture in Greater Victoria, but there were doubts today that all voters will get a chance to express an opinion.

City council decided late Thursday to submit a referendum on a proposal to have a royal commission investigate the plan.

But in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt there was a good deal of hedging today on whether similar steps would be taken when their residents go to the polls.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said: "There is obviously no time to give this matter proper consideration, print ballots and be ready for a Dec. 12 referendum."

The matter will be discussed at council level, he said, and added:

WHEN WE'RE READY
"When we're good and ready we'll ask for it, if we think it's necessary."

It was learned there definitely is time for any of the three municipalities to hold a referendum Dec. 12 if they wish.

Under the Municipal Act, a by-law is required. Two special meetings of the council could be held with one day intervening, which would permit passage of the by-law. This would leave eight or nine days for printing of ballots.

Victoria plans to have its ballots ready on time after approving the referendum Thursday.

At least one Esquimalt councillor said.

5 Killed, 15 Injured In U.K. Hospital Blaze

MAIDSTONE, England (Reuters)—A fire chief and four firemen were killed today when a 50-foot-high water tower crashed down on flaming buildings at a mental hospital.

Firemen, police and civil defence workers burrowed through 250 tons of fallen masonry searching for four or five other persons believed trapped in the wreckage.

Fifteen persons, including firemen and mental patients, were taken to hospital.

NEW LIFE AHEAD

Brought by plane to a new land and a new life, 87 Korean orphans Thursday arrived in Portland, Ore., for placement in adoptive homes. They were among 575 Korean orphans flown to the United States by Harry Holt, Creswell, Ore., farmer. The children were cared for by Korean stewardesses as they waited for their new parents in the doorway of a Korean National Airlines plane. (AP Wirephoto.)

Consuls Hunt U.K. Heiress And Playboy

LONDON (Reuters)—British consuls in Spain, southern France and Tangier today sought the whereabouts of blonde, 18-year-old heiress Tessa Kennedy and London playboy Dominic Elwes.

Instructions for the search went out from the foreign office here to officials in Majorca, Marseilles, Madrid and Tangier. The couple were last seen together dining in London eight days ago.

A high court judge Thursday placed a ban on marriage between Miss Kennedy and Elwes, who is a friend of Princess Margaret.

They understood the need—and they acted. In one night they contributed 6,000 bricks to build an out-patients' TB pavilion for the "war babies" of Seoul who are alone in their struggle against a terrible disease.

They are alone, literally, in almost every case. Many thousands are orphans. Thousands more are left daily by widowed mothers who are making a pitiful attempt to feed their families by working in the fields and factories.

They can't even keep warm, let alone find the strength to forage food in the streets and garbage bins.

Each morning last winter Korean authorities found babies, abandoned and frozen, left to die by parents who had to find work.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, Our Father, that we have a place in Thy family, "the family of God". We are grateful that we can share in the experiences of the saints who have gone before us, walking with them in the shadows, rejoicing with them in the victories. We thank Thee more than all that we can share in the life and love of Jesus, our elder brother and our Saviour. In His Name we pray. Amen.

ATOM ARMS ON PLANES FLYING OVER CANADA

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—United States bombers carry nuclear weapons on flights over Canadian soil, Hon. George Pearkes, minister of national defence, told newsmen when questioned today.

He stressed, however, that prior permission from the Canadian government must be obtained by the United States forces.

This permission was given sparingly, he said.

Sommers Case Delay Needless

Attorney-General Bonner said today he knows no reason why proceedings in the Sommers bribery case should be delayed.

He was commenting on the request for a remand made in Vancouver police court Thursday by Prosecutor Stewart McMorran.

Mr. McMorran said he wanted to discuss the case with Mr. Bonner and needed more time to study the evidence and interview witnesses.

"I don't know why he would have to talk to me," the attorney-general said. "He has all the evidence."

"As far as I am concerned, the prosecution will go ahead in the normal way."

LARGE STAFF

Mr. Bonner said a "large basic research staff" had been made available to the prosecutor to help prepare and interpret the evidence.

Mr. Bonner arrived back today from the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

Told by reporters that Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for one of the defendants in the conspiracy case, had said he couldn't understand the reason for the delay, Mr. Bonner replied:

"Frankly, I can't understand the delay either."

Meanwhile, the four defendants in the case have been remanded until Dec. 6.

Former Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers, and businessman C. D. Schultz, H. Wilson Gray and John M. Gray are free on bail in the meantime.

'Watch Our Show' B.C.'s Grey Cup Motto

TORONTO — The Western invasion for Canada's biggest one-day circus—the Grey Cup game between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats—descended on Toronto today in surprisingly quiet fashion.

Bomber fans trooped off their 16-car special train in reserved mood, compared to the hi-jinks in previous years.

But British Columbia officials—not accepting any blame for the drab performance—issued a warning: "Wait until OUR show hits the road!"

The B.C. delegation, which boasts the largest entry in the Grey Cup parade of any western province, promises to put on a real show Saturday. Vancouver expects to host the football classic next year and the province is pulling out all stops in an effort to lure easterners to its Centennial birthday party.

B.C. budgeted $24,000 to be spent on Grey Cup parade floats.

As the westerners began arriving by train and plane, Toronto Jaycee groups met them in a flash of blue and gold Winnipeg colors, balloons, streamers, flashbulbs and pretty girls.

Outside the station, eight-foot footballs, colored pennants and emblems decorated the street.

Bombers, WIFU opponents of the Big Four Hamilton Tiger-Cats, arrived by air Thursday. There was no welcoming committee, just a few airport

5,000 Posts to Keep Dusk-to-Dawn Watch

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF ground observer corps will go on a special round-the-clock alert starting Saturday to watch for the possible re-entry into the atmosphere of the rocket which carried Sputnik I to outer space.

Roughly 5,000 observation posts scattered across Canada have been ordered to operate on a continuous basis until further notice. The defence department said special attention will be placed on dusk-to-dawn watches.

Defence Research Board officials said the rocket is expected to re-enter the atmosphere after Saturday, and would then burn up from the friction. The board asked for the special alert to obtain all possible information about the satellite's rocket should it enter the atmosphere over Canada.

The ground observer corps is made up of roughly 50,000 civilian spotters, all unpaid volunteers, who man observation posts. The corps was formed in 1951 and is controlled by the RCAF air defence command.

In Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Fred L. Whipple, observatory director at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, emphasized that it is impossible to predict at this time exactly where and when the rocket satellite might make its flaming plunge toward earth.

However, he said the rocket is travelling nearest its low point on its morning southwest-to-northeast passages. Today it was approximately 120 miles above the earth, on its morning passages over North America, or within 10 miles of its lowest, or perigee, point.

The Smithsonian sticks to its prediction of several days ago that Sunday, Dec. 1, is the most likely day for the descent of the rocket.

No Special Watch Planned At Observatory

Dr. Andrew McKellar, astronomer at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said no special effort will be made Sunday to observe the predicted fall of the third-stage rocket of Sputnik I into the atmosphere.

"While we are on duty here we watch for indications of the satellites, and we observe every clear night, even Sunday nights," he said, "but we won't arrange any special 'satellite watch' for Sunday."

Dr. McKellar said that in his opinion the prediction of a fall Dec. 1 is too precise, considering what is known of the upper atmosphere.

"I think that predicting the rocket body will fall sometime during the first 10 days of December would be closer to what we could expect," he said.

The rocket's orbit is uneven, and it is while passing over this area that it comes closest to the earth's surface. It is felt, therefore, that there is as much chance of its going to its doom here as anywhere.

RABAT, Morocco (Reuters)—Spanish forces killed 230 Moroccans "in a general attack launched Thursday morning over the entire limit zone against Moroccan territories under the authority of the Moroccan government," it was reported here today.

U.S. Test Satellite Rocket Will Be Seen

BALTIMORE (AP)—The tiny test satellite, the United States hopes to launch next Wednesday will not be visible to the naked eye, but its five-foot-long brightly painted third stage rocket will be seen.

It should provide plenty of opportunities for visual tracking as it trails the little beaconing satellite across the heavens.

The third stage rocket has been the most classified of all components of the 72-foot-tall, 22,000-pound Vanguard launching vehicle. But the Martin Co., which built and will fire the rocket, gave a peek at it in pictures it released today showing the 6.4-inch, four-pound test sphere mounted on the rocket.

After about 40 miles of ascent of the planned orbital altitude of 300 miles, the seven-foot-long, silver-plastic nose cone of the rocket will split in two and fall off, leaving the satellite exposed for the rest of its climb.

STARTS SPINNING

At about 287 miles, just short of orbital altitude, a spin table, proper to the satellite, will start the entire third stage with its still-attached satellite rotating. After the first complete spin, the supporting rods will snap out of the way and leave the shiny aluminum sphere ready for its spring into space.

The baby sphere will announce the path ground observers should watch to get a glimpse of the orbiting third stage rocket.

Russian Subs Have Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.), said today three days of testimony on the status of the United States missiles program shows the situation "is worse than I thought it was."

... AMALGAMATION

didate, former councillor G. K. Sammon, publicly supported the holding of a referendum.

He said in view of the possible election by acclamation of council candidates this year, "the people of Esquimalt should know my views."

"I am strongly in favor of a referendum to permit a full investigation of all phases of amalgamation."

Despite Reeve Wurtele's remarks, it is not too late to arrange a referendum. It's a very simple question. The people of Esquimalt are ready to vote. To take the attitude we are not going to listen is like an ostrich burying its head in the sand."

Oak Bay Reeve F. E. Norris said he would not propose the holding of an immediate referendum to his council although he had no objection to one being held. "I have confidence in the sanity of Oak Bay electors to turn it down."

"I don't think the Junior Chamber of Commerce is a responsible body to dictate whether we should hold a referendum or not."

In Saanich, reeveship candidate Coun. Eugene Diespecker said he would oppose any motion at Monday's council meeting, for a referendum.

NOT FOR SAANICH

"Amalgamation is in the city's interests. But it is certainly not in the interests of Saanich. And I don't think Oak Bay and Esquimalt are going to change their minds."

He felt the time was too short to set a referendum for December elections.

The proposal for a Dec. 12 referendum was sent to each municipality by the Junior Chamber of Commerce amalgamation committee.

Chairman Eric Charman said he has asked to address Saanich Council Monday.

"I am confident Saanich will vote for it," he said this morning.

BACKED BY ASH

Reeve Arthur Ash indicated he would support a referendum and commended the Jaycees for their interest in "this most

Kefauver, a member of the Senate preparedness subcommittee conducting the missile-satellite investigation, said in an interview the testimony by defence officials, intelligence specialists and scientists added up to "shocking evidence of how the country has got behind" Russia in certain scientific-military fields.

Kefauver refused to go into detail.

DOMINANT POSITION

It was reported Thursday night that the subcommittee was told Russia now has a few submarines, possibly four, capable of firing a missile with a nuclear warhead up to 700-900 miles. Other vessels in Russia's sub fleet, estimated at about 450 boats, were reported being made ready for such missile equipment.

One informant said the reported Soviet sub-missile capability "means they are practically in a position to wipe out any major city on the eastern seaboard." He did not say, however, that any of the Russian subs now are stationed within missile range of the U.S. east coast.

The CIA was quoted by one source as reporting the Russian subs could launch missiles while still submerged. The weapons were described as the "cruise" type—presumably a guided missile slower than a ballistic missile.

Important and pressing matter.

If the municipal councils wish to block an expression of public opinion, they can legally do so. The letter from the junior chamber stated consideration would be given to petitioning residents in each area to present their councils with signed demands that the referendum be held.

But councils would still have jurisdiction on the question if they decided to overrule such a request.

Victoria council was unanimous Thursday in calling for the referendum.

The referendum would ask if voters favor a royal commission appointed by the province, with the costs shared by the province and the municipalities.

It has been indicated the provincial government will "give favorable consideration" to such a request.

TITO GETS BRUSH-OFF FROM SOVIET BOSSES

LONDON (UP). — Soviet Communist boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin failed today to send congratulatory messages to Marshal Tito on Yugoslavia's national holiday today, according to radio Moscow.

Radio Moscow said Khrushchev and Bulganin joined Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov in lavishly congratulating the leaders of little Communist Albania which also celebrated the anniversary of its "liberation."

But only Voroshilov signed the congratulatory message to Tito, according to the broadcast.

City 'Approves' Night Shopping At Christmas

City council went on record Thursday favoring evening shopping here before Christmas, but it left the decision to the merchants.

The resolution followed advice from Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs J. E. Brown that if stores open after 6 p.m., after Dec. 16, "it is understood" there would be no prosecution under the Municipal Act.

The act stipulates stores shall close at 6 p.m. and makes no provision for special concessions at Christmas.

City solicitor and prosecutor, T. P. O'Grady, warned council if any citizen lays a charge under the act, the law would have to be enforced, "barring intervention by the attorney-general."

EMBARRASSMENT?

"I cannot foresee any legal action. But there might be some embarrassment" if council actually exempted stores from the closing provisions of the act. Ald. G. I. Edgelow felt council should approve an exemption.

"Just because the government boo-boos on this and put the responsibility on us, we shouldn't pass it on to the merchants. We should protect them, even if we have to stick our necks out to do it."

The council decision leaves the question of opening up to the individual stores.

ENFORCEMENT

Council received a letter from John McMaster and 11 other men's wear stores stating they favored strict enforcement of the present closing by-law. The group was mainly concerned with the perpetuation of Wednesday half-day closing, however.

"The council decision leaves the question of opening up to the individual stores."

Bubbling Student Show Applauded at Oak Bay

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Times Drama Critic

Maybe it's television acting as preceptor and guide in the matter of entertainment standards; or maybe, it's just that students and their teachers have a freer reign than was once the case.

At any rate school concerts seem to get better every year, at least in tempo and in the manner of their presentation.

Thursday night at Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium, Oak Bay Senior students staged their annual revue. In many respects and at its level this was a brilliant show.

From the simplicity and charm of the opening group of Christmas songs, directed by Miss Norma Douglas, to the imaginative and colorful finale, here was good entertainment; visually delightful, bubbling over with cheerful humor, often musically sound.

There were examples of outstanding individual talent—such as that of Dave Laundry who, besides taking a leading role in the play, both wrote and arranged modern idiomatic music and played it too, leaving a sizzling hot piano keyboard in his wake.

But in general this was not a star show; no high school revue should be that. It was a collective presentation by boys and girls interested in certain aspects of their school life and participating in it with uninhibited zest.

WELL ACTED

A play, "The Ass and the Philosophers," well acted and imaginatively presented by Miss K. B. Youdall, dance and song numbers, framed with originality, an acrobatic number, an amusing version of a radio show, barbershop quartet and western group were included in the program.

Two solo numbers were given; a sketch by talented actress Judy MacCormac and a well done Stan Holloway imitation of Sam Small by Michael Fairweather.

Real Christmas trees, artistically grouped and lighted, wrapped gifts under the Christmas trees.

The revue will be repeated tonight and is well worth a visit from anyone seeking a holiday mood.

Other directors of various numbers were Mrs. C. Vining, Miss C. M. Shaw, Gary Taylor, Eric Orme, Mrs. J. Kelly and E. J. Costain. The band was under direction of E. Eames.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

Bicycle Licensing Abolished

Bicycle licensing was abolished in Victoria Thursday. City council issued the order following recommendation from the city police commission.

Police chief John Blackstock earlier said 80 per cent of the bikes located by police were unlicensed. The 20 per cent which were licensed were mostly unclaimed.

The proposal that firms be permitted to rent space on city streets for benches, which would carry advertising, was defeated by council. Only Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. J. Donald Smith supported the idea.

Council voted to encourage home owners to seek out winter repair jobs which would aid the winter employment problem.

The decision followed showing of a film on the question by National Employment Service.

Council overruled an attempt by Ald. Arthur Dowell to have the long-proposed Cook Street widening program scrapped.

However, a motion to buy property at the northeast corner of Cook and Pandora to facilitate the scheme was tabled until the owner sets a firm selling price.

Council approved expenditure of $1,230 for blazers for both senior and junior Shamrocks.

The lacrosse teams are to be honored for their recent accomplishments. The seniors brought the Mann Cup to Victoria and the junior team won a place in Dominion finals before losing out.

Formal approval was given to an earlier decision to proceed with negotiations for sale of

Fireworks in Senate Over Unemployment Aid

The government's unemployment insurance amendments became law Thursday, but only after heated Liberal protests over government haste.

Senator John T. Haig, government leader in the Senate, "dared" the Liberal majority in the upper house to delay the legislation after Senator C. C. Pratt (L., Newfoundland) suggested that it have committee study.

Royal assent, Senator Haig said, was scheduled within two hours. If the House was against him "the people will know that the bill was delayed in the Senate."

Liberal 'Astounded, Dumbfounded'

The Senate fireworks, during which Senator Jean - Francois Pouliot (L., Quebec) said he was "astounded and dumbfounded" that Senator Haig should have used "such offensive language," started when the government leader objected to the unemployment bill being referred to a committee for study.

"Let me tell you that if this is done you are depriving the people who would benefit of a month's pay," Senator Haig said.

"But if you want to turn this legislation down by all means turn it down. I dare you to turn it down." Liberals outnumber Progressive Conservatives in the Senate 77 members to 13.

Senator Pouliot said Prime Minister Diefenbaker had advocated a bill of rights, guaranteeing freedom of speech.

"Then how is it that his loud-speaker in this chamber uses such offensive language as the honorable gentleman has used?" he asked.

State Secretary Ellen Fairclough said Thursday three Quebec members have obtained court orders to permit them to file belatedly accounts of their election campaign expenses.

Replying to Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre), she said she did not know the date on which the orders were obtained but that she would get the information.

The three members concerned are Jean Boucher (L., Chateauguay - Huntingdon - LaPrairie), Hector Dupuis (L., Montreal Ste. Marie) and John Pratt (PC, Montreal Jacques Cartier-LaSalle).

Day-long debate Thursday stalled progress of a private member's bill that would establish a minimum hourly wage of $1 for all employees under federal labor jurisdiction.

A succession of speakers, mainly Progressive Conservatives, "talked out" the bill sponsored by Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader. This is an often-used tactic in the House to avoid a vote on an opposition proposal.

With debate adjourned, the bill goes to the bottom of a long list of private members' measures and is unlikely to be debated again this session.

Finance Minister Fleming offered no comment Thursday when asked about published reports that the 10-per-cent excise tax on automobiles will be cut to five per cent.

"No such statement was authorized by the minister of finance or any government source that I'm aware of," Mr. Fleming told Victor Quelch (SC, Acadia).

A request by the White Cross Mothers Association for federal aid towards a pilgrimage to overseas war graves likely will be refused, Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Thursday.

PM 'Reprehensible'—Coldwell

MONTREAL (BUP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell Thursday night branded as "amazing and reprehensible" Prime Minister

John Diefenbaker's attitude towards Opposition unemployment warnings.

Speaking at a banquet honoring the 25th anniversary of the Socialist party, Coldwell charged that the prime minister was attempting to impose "closure" on opposition parties by discouraging discussion on unemployment. He added that his party and "Canadians generally" would not "permit such action on the part of the prime minister."

In a Nov. 8 television speech, Mr. Diefenbaker said that opposition parties, by constantly referring to the unemployment situation in drastic terms, could cause a depression by creating a "fear complex" in the Canadian public.

"The attempt of the prime minister to lay a blanket of silence over this problem in the same way as the Liberal government sought to do before him is amazing and reprehensible," Coldwell said.

5,000 DEMONSTRATE

Arabs Protest Palestine Partition

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Police threw a heavy guard around the U.S. Embassy and Turkish Legation here today when 5,000 demonstrators demanded the Alexandretta district from Turkey and denounced the Palestine partition.

The demonstrators, mostly students, marched in the streets chanting "death to those who accept Palestine partition" and "long live the Arab struggle for Alexandretta restoration." There was no violence.

Today was the 10th anniversary of the 1947 UN Palestine partition resolution and the 15th anniversary of annexation of Alexandretta by Turkey.

Obsolete Sovereignty

AFTER INITIAL CONFUSION, General Pearkes, V.C., has brought some clarification to Canada's air defence agreement with the United States. The arrangements he outlined a few days ago to the House of Commons appear acceptable so far as they have been revealed, and apparently they satisfy our military experts.

But there are still many important points of policy regarding our co-operative defence plans which remain unexplained. As Mr. Pearson has pointed out, Parliament does not yet know what kind of an agreement has been signed or how it was reached. The basic principles of the agreement have not yet been clarified for the legislative body.

Some weeks ago it was announced that an American officer at a base in Colorado, with a Canadian deputy, would commit the air forces of the United States and Canada to instant defensive action if an enemy was sighted over this continent.

But having outlined this plan, General Pearkes explained it, a few days later, in quite different terms. He said that the American commander and his Canadian deputy could not begin to attack enemy planes until they had consulted with the Governments in Washington and Ottawa.

From this it appeared that no effective defence would be possible. For obviously if cabinets must meet to consider a recommendation from Colorado an enemy air invasion—or, much more rapid, an invasion of rockets—would have completed its work before it could be attacked.

General Pearkes has now cleared up these contradictions. He says that various plans of defence, and all possible sets of circumstances, will be considered at Ottawa and Washington while we are at peace.

Then, in the event of an attack, only a few minutes at most will be required to put the appropriate counter-measures into effect. The commanders in Colorado will merely advise Washington and Ottawa that they face a certain situation and intend to meet it in a certain way, as agreed in advance.

Obviously the approval of Washington and Ottawa will be nominal and instantaneous, as it must be; for if any time is wasted on argument and formalities the chance of any useful defence will be lost. Not hours but minutes, even seconds, will count.

If this is General Pearkes' plan, as it seems to be from his latest statement, most Canadians will regard it as wise. It is a pity that such a policy should have been confused in an attempt, apparently, to reassure Canadians about their sovereignty in declaring war for themselves, and that the fact that this is only an interim agreement has not been made clear.

There can be no room for argument about sovereignty here. The peril to our sovereignty, under a sudden attack, must not come from our ally but from our enemy. To be sure, our sole right as a nation to declare war by the decision of Parliament, in the sense of launching an attack on another nation, is unquestioned; but the new agreement applies only to an act of defence which must be instantaneous if it is to be of any use at all and which, of course, will be useless without American co-operation.

In any case, former theories of sovereignty have been totally revised in recent times both by written treaties and by the facts of international life.

For example, we have surrendered a portion of our sovereignty by our membership in NATO. If one of its members is attacked we are at war automatically under a treaty.

If the United States is attacked by way of the Arctic we are at war automatically, with or without a treaty, because our most vital interests, our existence and our sovereignty are imperilled with those of our neighbor.

Actually, the changing facts of sovereignty go much farther than that. Every thoughtful man knows that the old theory of unlimited national sovereignties can no longer be maintained in the current world. The nation state, acting as it pleases without regard to its friends, is obsolete.

What we are witnessing today, as illuminated by the light of the Sputniks, is a race between weapons of total destruction and some form of world authority, a pooling of national sovereignties in a larger sovereignty of mankind.

So far the race has been won by weapons, not by reason, because one side in the struggle will not surrender an iota of sovereignty and seeks to coerce the other side by the threat of force.

We cannot change the Russians, got now anyway. But we can make sure—as in the case of the Canadian-American air defence agreement—that we do not endanger our survival by some theoretical dispute about sovereignty which would look somewhat irrelevant if Russian attackers appeared over the north pole.

Diego Rivera

ONE OF THE STORMIEST inhabitants of the world of art in which nonconformity is a virtue, Diego Rivera died this week at his home outside Mexico City. He had painted for more than 50 of his 70 years, expressing in much of his work the spirit of rebellion and unconventionality that dominated his life.

As early as 16 he took part in a school riot and was expelled. At various times during his career he was a member of the Communist Party. But he found in his art, and particularly in murals, a greater scope for campaign and protest than was afforded by politics.

The subject matter of Rivera's strong, naturalistic style soon became a continuing source of controversy. His work was heavily propagandic, portraying Mexican nationalistic strivings, the struggle between capital and labor, the—his basic antagonism between big man and little man.

Some of his commissioned murals were eventually refused by the patrons, notably one designed for the Rockefeller Centre in New York. The artist had insisted on including a picture of Lenin. A hotel mural in Mexico City included a scroll with the words, "God does not exist." It remains covered by a curtain to this day. As recently as 1950, in a painting commissioned by the Mexican Government, Rivera portrayed U.S. soldiers committing atrocities in Korea. The picture was withdrawn from exhibition.

But despite the opposition he excited, Rivera's artistic genius won world-wide recognition. The rugged old fighter, who sometimes worked in public with a gun strapped to his waist, put more than messages in his pictures. He leaves a legacy—a large one—of artistic production, much of it in the form of work on the walls of public buildings, in which endeavor he organized and led a group of his compatriots.

Rivera made men look, he made them think, he made them argue, and he made sure they would do it long after his death. That is no small accomplishment.

'The Echoes Fall . . .'

MR. BENNETT HAS RESORTED to a device as old as politics in his appeal to the Federal Government for more money at this week's federal-provincial conference. He has quoted the words of John Diefenbaker, mainly before the last election, to justify a better deal.

"The provinces and the municipalities," says one Diefenbaker quotation, dated February, 1957, "have responsibilities in development and must be assured of sources of revenue. To that end the time has come for a more equitable share of tax yields being provided for the provinces and the municipalities."

Again, quoting Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks of last March: "We will halt the ever-increasing trend to centralization of power in Ottawa whether directly taken, or indirectly through taxation measures which deny to the provinces and in consequence to the municipalities their fair shares of the taxation dollar. Is evidence necessary to establish this trend?"

Thus spake Mr. Diefenbaker, and Mr. Bennett has been at pains to remind him of the words.

Now, if Mr. Bennett will look a little closer to home and remind Victorians of the remarks of his colleague, Mr. Chant, on the Court-

ACQUAINTANCE RENEWED

By B. A. TOBIN

Travelling With a Giant

THERE are several ways to see the Fraser River. All of them have their advantages, and their devotees. All of them are good, for merely to see the Fraser, under any circumstances—to feast one's eyes on its power, its majesty, its beauty—is an experience that must benefit the viewer.

Tobin

There are those who say that a full understanding of the Fraser can be gained only by flying over it. Only from a great height, it is argued, can you get the proper impression of its size and position, its function as a vast outlet to the sea for the run-off of the mighty watersheds through which the river coils its way.

Only from the air, say some Fraser lovers, does the full picture unfold so that the mountains and the river are seen in their proper relationship, complementing, completing, fulfilling.

But this is too remote, say others. The airborne traveller is too detached from the scene. He sees the river as a tiny static model far below. He cannot taste or smell or hear the great flood; he cannot feel its power, which is the most impressive feature of all.

In Early Times

The only way to experience the Fraser, say these devotees, is in the same way as the early pioneers: on foot through the tortuous passes, pitting one's muscles against the hills; smelling the never-ending breeze through the canyons; seeing the swirling, bottomless masses of water at close quarters; hearing the rustling, whispering voice which so quickly can rise to a devastating roar; and feeling, always feeling, through the contact of foot on rock, the shuddering pressure of the giant as it shoulders its way through the gorges in a relentless march to the sea.

Only through such close contact, say these experts, only by sweat and effort with the river always at hand throughout the day and night, can you savor the Fraser and earn a glimpse of its magic.

But many more people say that this is too slow, that the river and the mountains dominate a pedestrian, reduce him to nothingness in that vast immensity of water, rock and sky.

The foot slogger, they say, is in the position of a fly on a barn roof. He cannot grasp the significance of the titanic masses with which he is surrounded. His slow, toilsome journey through the canyon must dull his perception, destroy his sense of proportion, overpower him with a feeling of insignificance.

The proper way to see the Fraser, say these folk, is to add speed to one's passage, to skim over the riverside highway in a car, to match size with velocity and thus avoid the feelings of abject inferiority which the river can impose.

So the motorist zooms through the canyon, up the hills and around the great rocky shoulders, seeing in a few minutes what will take the walker days to discover, and concentrating into a few fleeting glances a swift kaleidoscope of the river's surging power.

The motorist will not smell the river, he will not likely hear its voice, and he will not feel its weight straining against the banks. But he will get a sense of its vastness—no one can go near the river and miss that.

It was recently my good fortune to experience the Fraser in a completely new way. I sat in the glass dome of one of the new CPR cars until a late hour at night, and saw the river in a misty moonlighted wonderland that was in some ways the most impressive view of all.

Sleeping Monsters

It was cloudy, but a full moon forced enough light through to give a silvery glow to the great dim shapes of the sleeping hills and the silent, ghostly torrent in the valley.

Sitting in the glass dome you are high above the train roof, and have the pleasure, heretofore denied to everybody on a train except the engineer, of being able to see directly ahead. You also can see upwards and to both sides.

The train slides almost soundlessly along the invisible track, turning each green light to red as it passes, and following the course of the river as though bound to it by an unseen leash.

But the river pays no attention to the train. This tiny toy, this little string of fireflies running tandem through the valley, can have no importance to the giant below the hills.

The shoulders of rock loom mysteriously, massively overhead, a deeper shadow against the misty sky, felt rather than seen. And at their base swirls the flood, unheard but seeming more ponderously powerful for the silence, a white wave now and then catching a glow from the moonlight, the mighty eddies imposing their ever-changing mosaic on the river's surface.

Seaward Rush

Now it seems to drop far below, now rise almost to the level of our vantage point. But always it hurries to the sea, and would carry us with it like a crab on a tide rip, if our little string of cars were to topple over the bank.

With details dimmed and one's senses muted, the spirit of the river comes forth in all its majesty and splendor. All night the silent, darkened giant rolls at your elbow, now showing his face, now flexing a bicep, now kicking a dash of spray into the moon glow. This is his hour, this is his pride, and he talks to himself of his strength and his glory as he surges down to the sea.

He will talk to you, too, if you will listen.

Price of Milk

Re the surprising statements recently appearing in the local press regarding the price of milk. These statements are attributed to the milk producers in the B.C. Federation of Agriculture and to the Minister of Agriculture, and indicate there may be an attempt to re-impose upon all consumers the cost of home-delivered milk, whether or not they wish or need this expensive service.

The fluid milk market is the producer's best-paying outlet for his product, yet he seems to lend his support to efforts to curtail it.

To quote from the Report of the B.C. Royal Commission on Milk (1954-55) page ix, "The suggestion that stores should be forced to raise their prices to the same level as that of home-delivered milk is obviously unsound." And on the same page, same paragraph, Judge Cline states, "After hearing the evidence, I am of the view that the sale of milk in paper cartons and the sale of milk in stores at a lower price than home delivery is advisable as both tend to increase consumption of fluid milk in the area, resulting in benefits to both producer and consumer."

The chain store system responsible for the introduction of the two-cent differential must pay the producer the price fixed by the Milk Board and it does pay a bonus for extra quality. Producers must surely know this. The stores' profit on previous supplies from local distributors, they state, was just as small as on their present cash and carry price of 23 cents a quart. Producers did not complain about this. The chain store considers it adequate on volume and quick turnover in milk. To raise the price of cash and carry milk to that of home-delivered would, to again quote the Report (same page) "... thrust into (the chain's) pocket a further profit of two cents, it neither needs nor wants." And it would be at the consumer's expense.

It is strange that although the price differential of two cents has been in effect for several years in the Vancouver area, it is only with its long overdue advent in Victoria that producers profess fear for the maintenance of their set price.

Saanich Politics

Now we are so near municipal elections it is interesting to read in the columns of our local newspapers the views expressed by prospective candidates and it is also gratifying to see that young men have come forward to give part of their time in the development and welfare of the municipality in which they reside.

I wish to pay particular reference to the Municipality of Saanich which has been going through rough seas in recent years, through its rapid development and unfortunately with a weak council to meet the expansion and its responsibilities. Then again there appears to have been a bitter feeling within the the council against Reeve Arthur Ash which was shown at the first meeting after his election for reeve and which has shocked the electors.

Reeve Arthur Ash has every reason in his favor for changing his mind and allowing his name to be put forward as a candidate for reeve for another term, after the lack of co-operation shown by his colleagues during the past year. Furthermore he is a man in the prime of life and with a wide experience of municipal affairs.

With all due respect to his opponent for office of reeve, his remarks regarding amalgamation are unwarranted as amalgamation will come sooner or later in spite of those who are against it at the present time.

Grown Big But Not Up

Labor has become a burly figure on our Canadian scene. No one can fail to be impressed by this striding giant. But the impression left by the behavior of unions and their leaders at this point is that the labor movement has grown big and strong without "growing up." It's like a big giant with an insatiable appetite.

The members seem to have lost all sense of responsibility to others outside their own union. How long can this attitude continue until they will succeed in pulling down our whole economic structure not only on their own heads but upon our whole nation.

Practically every day we see in our daily press announcements of strikes or threats of strikes at this season of the year when there is already so much unemployment we have the spectacle of some 6,000 pulp and paper workers out on strike for higher pay, while actually they have already priced themselves out of world markets.

This summer we saw a small group in our own city out on strike for weeks over a matter of a few cents per hour difference between their demands and the company's offer. Even now we hear rumblings of more strikes to follow, and some of these will effect every tax payer in our city and community.

This strike business has gone beyond all reason and logic, when will public opinion and our governments rise up in protest and call a halt to this constant threat to our whole economy? Our whole labor movement seems to be infected with the spirit of communism.

FROM AMMAN, JORDAN By JOSEPH ALSOP

Mid-East Bastion

AMONG the world's few palaces still inhabited by reigning monarchs the Basman palace is certainly the least palatial. The modest stone structure stands on a dusty hill above this little city, with a view across a narrow valley to another dusty hill where goats browse on the scant desert growth.

But this palace of young Hussein, King of Jordan, hardly larger than a big Western country house, is now perhaps the most sensitive single spot in all the troubled Middle East.

The Egyptians, the Syrians and the Soviets have vowed to destroy is Jordan's basic poverty. There is the continuing appeal of the Syrian-Egyptian-Soviet brand of "Arab nationalism."

There is the bandwagon effect of the recent leftwing success in Syria, which has frightened Jordan's moderates and made them reluctant to commit themselves to Hussein.

The young king is sternly confident that he can maintain Jordan's independence, despite the powerful forces massed against him. But it sticks out like a sore thumb here, that urgent measures are needed to improve the odds in the king's favor.

The United States alone can take these measures. The responsibility to do so was publicly accepted by President Eisenhower himself at the time of the April crisis here.

But consider what has followed! Even the $30,000,000 of aid without strings that the President then publicly promised was very nearly lost in the strange recesses of the administrative and policy-making machinery in Washington. When this reporter was last here, six months ago, the American Embassy was desperately waiting for a messenger from Washington who was bringing word whether the President's promise would be kept or broken.

As these words are written, the Embassy is again desperately waiting for another messenger from Washington. He is alleged to have the answer to the great question, whether we have anything that deserves the name of a policy for Jordan.

A real policy for Jordan has two basic requirements.

Useful Projects

First of all, enough money must be provided, not just to pay the army as in the past, but also to start useful projects, like the exploitation of Jordan's valuable phosphate deposits and the irrigation of the Yarmouk River valley. Even if there were no such useful projects, the extra money would be needed for the simple purpose of making work, and thus creating a new atmosphere of hope.

For this purpose, an increase of aid to Jordan from the present level of thirty million a year to a new level of fifty million a year will be ample. It is not much. By the same token, only a few more millions are needed to satisfy the second essential requirement.

This is the requirement of adequate financing for the work of the United Nations relief and welfare administration among the Palestinian refugees. Yet at this moment, the admirable director of the critical refugee relief program, Henry Labouisse, is at the United Nations publicly pleading bankruptcy.

In a most literal sense, Jordan is a bastion of the free world position in the Middle East. It has been officially classified as such by Secretary of State Dulles as well as by the President. It seems we have a rather vague way of defending bastions.

(1957, N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.)

Farewell the Viking

MAN and boy, until early this year, I had been an oar and paddle devotee.

In an age of mechanical progress, that made me an anachronism. Not that it bothered me much. Somebody had to carry on the traditions of the Vikings and the voyageurs and there weren't many of us left to do it.

Up to the spring of 1957, you could say that I belonged, if not physically, at least spiritually to the cult of lean men. Put me in a boat pulling oars or in a canoe digging in a paddle and you could picture me four feet across the shoulders, seven feet tall and flat in the belly. It might have required distorted mirrors to give the effect, but had you described me metaphorically in those terms, I'd have accepted the description.

Mind you, in recent years, I had become aware of perished elastic in my muscles, crystallization of the whippy steel of my back, and a quickly developed soreness in the cushion I pack around with me when it had rocked for an hour on a rowboat thwart. Still, the romantic lean-man image persisted.

COMING TO TERMS

Then early this year I came to terms with age—my own and the times in which I live. The mental image has been transformed: Gone is the Viking and voyageur. Come is the usual 1957 recreational fisherman, a dumpy figure humped in the stern of a stubby rowboat clutching the steering arm of a nattering outboard—three-horse, runs-like-a-charm.

I have conformed. I have admitted defeat—and at the very time I should have kept up my rebellion and fought at least a delaying action.

These are the days when "think pieces" in newspapers are telling us that we're wallowing in wealth and the easy living a rich country makes available to us. We're growing fat and lazy at a point in history when we should be turning to the Spartan virtues.

We're being urged to cut down on the cream-puff intake and chew harder on a little tough meat. We're being asked to build up body fibre and shuck off the suet—physically, mentally and spiritually.

As an old oar and paddle man I can appreciate the oburgations contained in the "think pieces." Glancing down the ski-slope that starts at my chest I'm inclined to think they have come too late.

PROUD AND LONELY DAYS

But that isn't the source of my concern. What happens to people nudging the half-century mark or passing it is of relative importance only. The youngsters coming up can heed the advice of the "think pieces" and develop a tougher fibre. But will they? Who will give them the pattern?

In my proud and lonely days as a rowboat man among a host of powerboats, small and large, at the Trial Island fishing grounds, I have seen some good parents taking their children out with them. I have watched the youngsters gaze at me from the seats of their engine-driven craft and have constructed probable conversations among them.

"Daddy, I can imagine the child saying to her father as she pointed my way, 'What's that man doing with the funny sticks at the side of his boat?'"

"Why, sweetie, I fancy the father replying, 'he's rowing.'"

"But what makes his boat go, Daddy? Where's his engine?"

"He makes it go by rowing, dear. That's the way they used to make boats go in the old days. He's sort of his own engine. His arms, his back, his heart and lungs are all part of it, I guess you'd say."

"But Daddy, where does he put the gas in if he's his own engine? Does he drink it?"

"Not if he's the guy I think he is, dear. He doesn't drink gasoline. Not much anyway."

Which brings us back to the questions: How is the younger generation going to get the fibre it needs? Who's going to teach it? Where will it find the example?

Export Mark Topped

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Ford Motor Company loaded its 170,000th 1957 car for export Thursday, topping its previous export record by more than 1,500. More than 3,000 cars have been shipped to Detroit, the heart of the U.S. automobile industry.

British Salesmanship Praised by Churchill

COVENTRY, England (CP)—The calibre of British salesmanship has often been criticized in Canada, but Canadian Trade Minister Gordon Churchill says that viewpoint needs changing. "Salesmanship in Britain is so well advanced that we in Canada may soon find ourselves trying to catch up," the Canadian trade mission leader told reporters Thursday after a close look at some auto plants in this industrial area.

The 50-man mission, bone-weary from its dawn-to-dusk daily inspection tours, continued to show amazement by the heights of British production efficiency, the happy spirit of workers and the cleanliness of plants.

"This centre of the British motor car and tractor industry went all out to make the Canadian businessmen at home. All plants in the area were thrown open to them. One motor car company took a group in a drive over some of the roughest auto-testing roads in the district."

KILL WITH KINDNESS

V. C. Wansbrough, of Toronto, managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said later that the ride was almost too much for his constitution.

"They're going to kill us with kindness," exclaimed John H. F. Turner of Montreal, assistant general manager of the Bank of Montreal, as the mission was escorted later to Stratford-on-Avon to see a performance of "Julius Caesar" and partake of late supper.

British reporters have followed mission members everywhere, asking when new Canadian orders for British goods will be placed.

CITY PAINTER SELLS ABSTRACT

A painting by Victoria artist Herbert Siebner has been purchased for $450 by the Seattle Art Museum for its permanent collection.

The painting is an abstract entitled "Mark Tobey, the White Writer."

Mr. Siebner's work was shown at the 43rd annual northwest exhibition of paintings at the museum.

Close Race Seen in N.Z. Elections

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—New Zealand voters go to the polls Saturday to choose a new government and even the most seasoned political observers are hesitant about forecasting the outcome.

Most observers confine themselves to predictions of a close race between the National party led by Prime Minister Keith Holyoake, in power for the last nine years, and the opposition Labor party, led by Walter Nash, 75. They say as many as 15 of the 80 seats at stake may be decided by 15 votes or less.

A change in six seats would be enough to oust the National party from power. The government party held 45 seats in the last Parliament and Labor had 35.

National and Labor candidates are being opposed in all 80 seats by representatives of the Social Credit League, a party which did not win a seat in the 1954 general election but which may hold the key to the outcome of Saturday's vote.

U.K. Reconciled To Bomb Patrols

LONDON (Reuters)—The British press is not happy today over disclosures H-bomb-laden American bombers patrol the skies over Britain—but most of them accepted it as a necessary precaution.

Prime Minister Macmillan assured the House of Commons Thursday there was no danger of a nuclear explosion if one of the big Strategic Air Command planes crashed because the bombs were "not armed."

"Is this practice really necessary," asks The Times.

"It can be said straightaway that Mr. Khrushchev in his new mood of truculence... is primarily to blame for the new American state of alertness. But it has still to be asked whether the practice of having bombers flying around with nuclear bombs on routine flights is entirely foolproof."

The Manchester Guardian recalls that Selwyn Lloyd said in his Parliament statement it was absolutely right that the bombers should be fully armed. "Most people, in this age of rockets and rocket diplomacy, will agree with him."

The Daily Express blasts the government for not having told people about the bombers sooner. "Such a delay merely provokes public uneasiness."

The Daily Mail says: "The American bases are part of our defensive network. So long as they are here, so long must we expect, even demand, that they be fully effective."

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By CHARLES LYNCH

Fund Drive Tough Task

NEW YORK—Drumming up funds was something Hon. Sidney E. Smith did most successfully in his university days, and he was on familiar ground when he appeared in the General Assembly to ask the members to ante up for the United Nations Emergency Force.

Mr. Smith's speech on UNEF's financial plight was the second major address he has made during this Assembly Session. The first was on disarmament, and having made it, Mr. Smith busied himself with election proceedings elsewhere, leaving others to play Canada's hand in the disarmament debate.

His decision to intervene personally in the UNEF item stemmed perhaps from the fact that Canada has been so closely identified with matters affecting the force. Mr. Smith's predecessor as Canada's Minister for External Affairs, Hon. Lester B. Pearson, is regarded here and in some other places as the "Father" of the Emergency Force, and Canada's contribution to the force in men and money has been a major reason for its success.

Mr. Smith made it clear from the outset that the present Canadian government is squarely behind the UNEF idea. Mr. Pearson's name was not mentioned in the speech, (as New Yorkers put it, does Macy's mention Gimbel's?) but it is doubtful if the former minister himself, with all his fatherly instincts, would have put more fervor into his appeal than did Mr. Smith. UNEF, he said, was a pioneering peace of practical peace-making; UNEF was a creation of the entire General Assembly; therefore, all members of the assembly should help to pay its bills.

IN BAD SHAPE

This is the formula that Canada, together with the United States, the United Kingdom and many others have been plugging from the very outset of the Emergency Force's birth. Its so-called "Father," Mr. Pearson, argued the case for a general assessment in almost the same breath as his proposal that the force be set up.

But the fact remains that, despite what Mr. Pearson said then and what Mr. Smith says now, the finances of the force are in desperate shape. It is one thing to get the membership of the UN to agree to the principle of a general whip-round for funds, and it is another thing to get them to pay.

The Secretary-General, Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld, needs money for UNEF—$13.5 million for the balance of this year, and up to $25 million for 1958.

In his appeal to the assembly, Mr. Smith said this was a small enough price to pay for "the diminishing of fear and anxiety among peoples, and the strengthening of hope for further progress toward peace."

A formidable list of countries joined Canada in sponsoring the resolution for a UNEF assessment. Japan was there, following out her seeming policy for this assembly that "if Canada wants it, it must be right." Even though she was not a member of the assembly when UNEF was formed, Japan supported the assessment idea and said she would be glad to put into the pot. What is more, Japanese Ambassador Koto Matsudaira paid personal tribute in his speech to Mr. Smith. Other nations joining in represented a broad cross-section of the assembly: Brazil, Ceylon, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Liberia, Norway, Pakistan, Spain, Sweden, Thailand, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

Months of negotiation preceded Mr. Smith's introduction of the assessment proposal before the assembly. In countless closed-door sessions, many nations entered pleas of poverty; Canada agreed to tear up many UNEF bills that she might well have presented to Mr. Hammarskjöld for payment; the United States offered to pick up the whole UNEF tab but abandoned the idea as impolitic; if highly practical, Italy, the Scandinavian countries, India, Yugoslavia and others made gestures to cut the required total. But whittle away as they might, the nations still came up with a staggering total that had to be raised.

RUSSIA ADAMANT

Russia remained constant in her negative attitude—she refused to be moved by the obvious fact, accepted by all other UN members, that UNEF was one of the most successful ever undertaken in the name of the United Nations.

In the debate, Arkady A. Sobolev of the Soviet Union slapped Mr. Hammarskjöld's wrist for his part in UNEF's success, and for suggesting that the UNEF idea might have merit in future crises. The people who should pay UNEF's bills, he said, were those Western imperialist scoundrels, Britain, France and Israel, whose attack upon Egypt gave rise to the crisis from which UNEF emerged. Not a single ruble, he said, would be forthcoming from the Kremlin's coffers.

No tears were shed in the West over Mr. Sobolev's words. The principle of an assessment was approved, 51 to 11 with 19 abstentions, and Russia will be sent an invoice in due course. That she will not pay it is taken for granted; the question, the $38.5 million question, is—will the rest of the membership cough up, or will it be left for nations like the U.S., the U.K. and Canada to do the financing? Mr. Smith will need to use his full bag of university fund-raising techniques before this one is over.

Iraq Receives U.S. Weapons

BAGHDAD, Iraq, (AP) — A new shipment of United States arms—the second in two months—arrived in the port of Basrah this week, Basrah newspapers reported today. The arms were sent in accordance with the U.S. military aid agreement.

VANCOUVER—The first phase of a unique industrial exodus—one of the biggest moves in British Columbia's history—has been completed successfully.

Workers of the Sidney Roofing & Paper Company's new Burnaby plant grabbed bits of paperboard for souvenirs and otherwise celebrated mildly as the first paperboard was produced on the new, multi-million dollar machine.

President J. A. Craig said the huge machine is more than 400 feet in length and is capable of turning out finished paperboard in rolls or cut sheets.

A finished products warehouse, administration building and other smaller buildings are still under construction.

Previously, all west coast manufacturing operations had been centred at the company's Victoria plant. By early 1959 Victoria operations will be shut down completely and the Burnaby plant will become the only manufacturing centre for the company in British Columbia.

The company also operates a roofing plant in Lloydminster, Alberta.

Moving of operations from

Victoria to Burnaby involves transferring about 300 employees, dismantling and re-assembly of manufacturing equipment, as well as the building of the new plant and installation of the new paperboard machine.

Economic factors involved in the shipment of raw materials to Victoria and re-shipment of finished goods to the mainland forced re-location of the company's operations.

The Burnaby location was chosen because it offers facilities for water, rail and highway traffic and affords an unlimited supply of water for processing purposes. Water is taken from the north arm of the Fraser River, purified, used in the paper machine, and then returned to the river.

The company has purchased 75 acres at Burnaby, only one-third of which will be used for the present plant and buildings. The remainder will be held in reserve with a view to future expansion.

JUDGMENT THURSDAY ON STORES

Nine charges against Saanich storekeepers for remaining open and selling grocery goods on Sunday came up for decision in Saanich police court next Thursday.

Magistrate H. C. Hall heard evidence Thursday in a test case against Henry Eng, owner of Outdoor Market, 3475 Quadra, on a charge specifying last Sept. 15 as a day he sold prohibited goods on a Sunday, contrary to the Municipal Act.

Realtor Seeking Seat in Oak Bay

A newcomer to municipal elections, Kenneth Boorman, 44, of 957 Linkleas, has filed nomination papers in Oak Bay bringing to five the number of candidates for three council seats.

Mr. Boorman is manager of a real estate, insurance and investment office in the city.

He does not favor amalgamation of Oak Bay with other Greater Victoria municipalities, believing the municipality "has too much to lose" by any such move.

Others in the municipal election race are incumbent councillors Fred Hawes and George Murdoch, ex-councillor Patrick Birley and Kenneth Murphy, a defeated candidate last year.

W. R. Freethy, 2178 Central, has indicated he will file nomination papers for the by-election for an Oak Bay trustee on the school board. The seat is vacant following resignation of board chairman Humphrey Golby.

There has been no announced opposition to Reeve Fred Norris who runs again this year.

B.C. Teacher Has Second Show in U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Mary Harris Filer, a Vancouver art teacher who came to Britain to take up a painting career, has her second London exhibition next week. She will show 35 paintings, including charcoal drawings and water colors, at the Kinnerton Gallery.

Among the pictures are a self-portrait and two drawings of her mother, Natasha, the artist's apricot-colored poodle, also is represented in the show, which includes allegorical portraits, landscapes and "improvisations" of Rembrandt and Titians.

Miss Filer, who received a fine arts degree from McGill University, once was assistant professor of art education at Penn State University. She also is a gold medalist nurse and is represented by a mural at the Montreal Neurological Institute.

She came to Britain 13 months ago. Her first show was held at a tavern in London's Finsbury district. She is 37, and was born in Edmonton.

U.K. Tories Score Win In By-Election

LEICESTER, England (Reuters)—The Conservative government stemmed a tide of by-election reverses today but took a close look at its reduced majority in the party stronghold of Leicester Southeast.

W. John Peel retained the seat for the government in Thursday's by-election but the Conservative majority was slashed from 11,541 to 6,482. Peel received 18,023 votes to 11,541 by 28-year-old Labor candidate Betty Boothroyd, who boosted the Socialist party's percentage of the vote to 39.05 per cent from 35.8 per cent in the 1955 general election.

The victory increased the membership of the Conservative party and its allies in the House of Commons to 335. Labor has 279 seats, the Liberals five and Independent members 10. There is one vacancy.

'STRANGE FOOTSTEPS, COLD HANDS'

Family Blames Ghost for Breakup

SUNDERLAND, Eng. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dixon say their happy family was broken up by a ghost.

The Dixons, arrested on a charge of neglecting their three small children, told a court on Thursday the ghost invaded their home last March. "We saw a shimmering coil on the wall," Norman, 27, said. "We heard footsteps on the stairs when there was nobody there."

At night cold hands pulled off the bedclothes and clutched us," The Dixons finally called in Rt. Rev. John Ramsbotham, Bishop of Jarrow, who tried to exorcise the spectre by walking through the house in his cope and mitre and carrying his staff.

In an effort to force the council's hand, Dixon said, he decided to quit paying the rent. The council merely evicted the Dixons from the house. Police witnesses said they found the young father and mother and their three sons, ranging from 18 months to four years, wandering in the rain.

The court put the Dixons on probation for 12 months. "You acted stupidly," the judge said.

MEMBERSHIP CERTIFICATES in the Association of Professional Engineers in B.C. were presented Wednesday to 25 new engineers at a din-

Gas Stations Must Close At 6 or Open 24 Hours

Victoria service stations will be required to close at 6 p.m. or remain open 24 hours a day, effective Dec. 1.

A new bylaw replacing the wide-open system in effect since last July, was given final reading by city council Thursday.

Only Ald. Arthur Dowell opposed the step, which had been asked by 80 per cent of local operators. A minority of garage operators, major oil companies and Victoria Automobile Club also opposed the bylaw.

BY FORCE

Ald. Dowell based his objections on the principle: "It's regimentation by force. We are supposed to be living in a free enterprise country."

He said some dealers had accused him of being opposed because he operates a station of his own. But he pointed out his station is in Saanich. The 6 p.m. closing would probably work to his advantage if trade were driven out of town, he said.

Other aldermen said if the bylaw were not passed, it was doubtful any garage would give all-night service. Many garages would remain open during the busy evening hours, and few would find service after midnight profitable.

WITH UNCONSCIOUS WOMAN

Calmly Smoked In Flipped Car

A man who calmly sat and smoked a cigaret with an unconscious woman on the inside roof of an overturned car was fined $250 in Saanich police court Thursday for impaired driving.

William P. Mattison, 2717 Belmont, had his driver's licence restricted to business driving only for 12 months.

In Saanich police court Thursday:

Ronald G. Stuart, 3878 Finerty, $40 and remanded for probation report on licence suspension, for careless driving.

Dahiel Edward Robertson, 841 Canterbury, $35; Charles Wesley Rivett, Esquimalt navy yard, $30; Gordon J. A. Kidd, 3929 Hobbs, $30, for speeding over 50.

Norman Alexander Fisher, 3323 Tennyson, $15 for failing to set brakes on a parked car.

Denise W. Wiggins, 1118 D'Arcy, $25; Aubrey Cecil Chant, 1006 Fenn, $30; Thomas Mark O'Rourke, 594 Latoria, $25; Thomas Allan McLeod, $796 Oldfield, $30; Hugh McIntyre McKee, 542 Langford, $25; David E. Gallagher, Dominion Hotel, $15, for speeding over 30.

He was driver of a car which went out of control at Tillicum on Gorge, careened across the road then flipped onto its roof atop a car which was parked in a front yard.

When police arrived they found him smoking and waiting to be released. Gasoline fumes were gathering from the inverted gas tank.

"NEVER MIND HER"

When an officer sought his help in getting the woman out, Mattison was quoted as saying: "Never mind her. Get me out of here."

Police said Mattison told them he had had "10 or 12 bottles of beer" in the several hours before the accident, and immediately before it had eaten a large meal.

He also said a car which came out of Tillicum "clipped" his car and sent it out of control.

There was no evidence to support his contention.

Trade Mission Feted In Historic Coventry

COVENTRY, Eng. (CP)—The Canadians sipped cocktails in what once was the crypt or prison of an ancient guildhouse. They dined on fish and roast duckling in the grand hall of a structure built 600 years ago.

Thus began the tour of the Canadian trade mission in Coventry, heart of Britain's auto industry, which still bears many scars from the wartime German bombings.

Amid the color of ancient St. Mary's Hall, where the Canadian delegation was feted Wednesday night at a huge banquet, Canadian Trade Minister Gordon Churchill, a wartime regimental commander, recalled all the sacrifices of Coventry during the war. But he noted, too, that Coventry now has some 860 manufacturers producing some 400 different products.

FINDS MANY INTERESTED
He suggested with a laugh that if the 50-man mission does not produce orders for British goods, they may be doomed to the crypt of the hall and left behind. Then he added that in talks with businessmen here he had found so many interested in Canada that he wondered why the mission had found it necessary to come to Britain.

"They talk of Canada being dominated by the United States. Perhaps we are really dominated by Coventry," he urged British manufacturers to come to Canada, to participate in the "great opportunities" there.

Lord Mills, Britain's minister of power, brought the greetings of Prime Minister Macmillan who said he is proud of his association with the Canadians.

Tonight the Canadians will see Julius Caesar performed at nearby Stratford-on-Avon.

30-MPH SPEED LIMIT

Gaglardi Opens New Highway

KITIMAT (CP)—Highways Minister Philip A. Gaglardi slapped a 30-mile-an-hour speed limit on the new $3½ million Kitimat-Terrace Highway Thursday and told onlookers "I'd sooner have the RCMP chasing you than chasing me."

He snipped a red ribbon on the south end of a Bailey Bridge over the Kitimat River to officially open the 37-mile long highway. More than 450 watched the simple ceremony including Hugh Shirreff, MLA for Skeena and members of Kitimat and Terrace Chambers of Commerce who led motorcades from their districts.

Opening of the highway means Kitimat is joined by road with the rest of British Columbia. For six years the growing population has had only 45 miles of road on which to drive. Autos were brought into Kitimat by boat or train.

Mr. Gaglardi said he put the speed limit at 30 because "we must have some restrictions on this road now as parts are still under construction."

Opening of New Point Ellice Bridge Ends 44-Year Struggle

By PÉTE LOUDON

A ribbon-cutting ceremony Saturday to open the new Point Ellice Bridge will climax a 44-year struggle for a new and safer span.

Dissatisfaction with the old bridge span began in 1913, 10 years after it was opened, 17 years after the tragic collapse of the first structure.

Since 1913, the bridge has been subject of more City Hall debates than rising taxes. It has been the featured football in several elections and the subject of conferences with neighboring municipalities, the provincial government and the government at Ottawa.

Strangely enough, no one outside of City Hall would share the responsibility for a new bridge—until Mayor Percy Scurrah and his council decided in 1955 to "go it alone."

That apparently was the best argument ever put forward for outside assistance. The federal department of transport, the Canadian National Railways and the B.C. government immediately went on record to assist.

As a result, the new bridge won't put the slightest drain on future civic revenues. It's a cash-on-the-barrelhead deal. The city's share was collected from sale of tax-reverted lands.

The total cost of the new bridge is $572,070. Reconstruction of old piers (which would have been required whether or not the new bridge was built), is $110,864. The two senior governments, the CNR and a rebate of federal sales tax on steel, reduce the overall cost by $263,006. Net cost to the city is $419,928.

If this could have been foreseen earlier, no doubt the bridge would have been started years ago. But there was always the spectre of higher costs and the resultant necessity of borrowing—a factor which made many aldermen shy.

As pointed out, it was 1913 when assistant city engineer Taylor claimed the bridge was overloaded and there was an insufficient margin of safety. Speed restrictions were imposed.

In 1914, 1919 and 1936, consulting engineer J. R. Grant reported stresses were beyond normal. He feared a 15-ton truck at normal speed would cause a collapse.

In 1950 failure of the deck on the north half of the bridge required urgent action. Minimum repairs were ordered in hopes a new bridge would follow soon. In 1954, a 15 miles-per-hour speed limit was imposed and stop signs were installed.

Victoria had the doubtful honor of owning the only bridge in the province with stop signs at either end.

In the years since January, 1955, hardly a month has passed without some council argument over the bridge.

Ex-mayor C. L. Harrison told Rotarians that month, "I venture to say, you won't pay a third of the cost of that bridge." He was sure of federal aid. Later he recanted.

"Fix the bridge or close it" said Ald. J. Donald Smith the next day. Ald. M. H. Mooney told council in reply that there was nothing wrong with it.

(Later, Ald. Smith was to be one of two aldermen who opposed the holding of a plebiscite. Taxes were climbing too fast, he said. And still later, Ald. Mooney, as works chairman, led the campaign to have the new bridge completed as early as possible.)

Former Alderman Brent Murdoch came out with demands for provincial aid. The late Cyril Jones, former city engineer, said in February, 1955, the bridge was safe if load and speed restrictions were enforced.

Mayor Harrison proposed another trip to Ottawa to ask help. Former Ald. Robert Macmillan and Ald. Smith opposed the trip as a waste of money.

"I'd rather see you go the other way, to Honolulu, and get a suntan. That's more than you'll get at Ottawa," said Ald. Smith.

The mayor felt Ottawa help was due because of unfulfilled promises of aid to Vancouver Island made at the time of Confederation. When the works committee called for a referendum in April, 1955, the mayor said this action killed any hope of federal assistance, and sabotaged his efforts.

In November council voted for a referendum.

"Here you are suckers, vote for it and pay for it for 10 years," said, Ald. Macmillan angrily. Mayor Harrison convinced council a referendum would be illegal and stalled the vote.

The same month, Percy Scurrah announced his candidacy for mayor and promised fast action on the bridge. He was elected despite Ald. Macmillan's contention that the bridge would be paid for by 20,000 and used by 120,000 if the city took on the project by itself.

He offered two-to-one odds to council that any plebiscite would be defeated by a 60 per cent no vote.

Mayor Scurrah speeded land sales. The land for the new Mallek block on Douglas brought in $75,000. The sale of Burnside Park to Dominion Stores brought in another $92,000—all earmarked for the bridge.

There was now no need for borrowing. In March, 1956, the mayor said if the bridge plebiscite failed to pass the bridge would have to be closed. But an April vote was carried with an 82 per cent yes vote.

There were delays due to a steel strike and due to repairs required to the bridge piers. Mayor Scurrah went to Ottawa and brought back promises of federal and CNR aid.

In September Dominion Bridge was granted a $349,900 contract for the steelwork. The city and Farmer Construction took on the job of the approaches and the decking.

The bridge was finally closed for demolition June 17 of this year. It has been down for just over six months.

What's six months weighted against 44 years of waiting?

SHARP CRACKS, PIERCING SHRIEKS

They Recall Fateful Day 55 Perished

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Three sharp cracks . . . a noise of breaking timbers . . . the squeal of twisting and tearing metal, the crashing and splashing of heavy weights tumbling into deep water.

And high above all the piercing shrieks of frenzied human beings . . . the whinneying of terrified horses.

That is the nightmare that lives on in the minds of a number of Victorians who remember the Point Ellice Bridge disaster of May 26, 1896.

They remember how an overlaid street car jammed with merry, carefree holiday makers plunged off the collapsing bridge, killing 55 men and children and injuring 27 others, some seriously.

In an instant the gay, flag-bedecked city—on the second day of its festivities in honor of Queen Victoria's birthday—became a place of mourning.

Many of those who survived the disaster and others who were spectators at the opening of the new Point Ellice Bridge on Saturday and for them the new structure will have a special significance.

One of the oldest survivors is 90-year-old Sydney Matthew, who was standing beside the motorman on the crowded car when the bridge collapsed.

Now a resident at Mountain View Home, Mr. Matthew recalls the disaster, and his own miraculous escape from death, as if it were yesterday.

"I heard three sharp distinct cracks," he says, "and the whole car seemed to shudder. Then I felt we were going down. The car seemed to drop almost level with the water and . . . suddenly I was in the water up to my neck."

"I saw a light above me—it must have been in the ceiling of the car—and floated up to it. I could hear people puffing and spluttering all round me."

"I don't remember how I got out but think I must have floated out through one of the open windows."

Mr. Matthew recalls that just before the bridge went down a man on a bicycle and a horse and buggy with a man and two or three boys

... one of last

Robert S. Dalby, 77, of 2347 Hamiota, is another who almost lost his life at 16.

"Every year I have lived since the Point Ellice disaster seems like a bonus," says cheerful, grey-haired Mr. Dalby recalling how he stood in one of the entrances to the crowded street cars clinging onto the centre rail.

"I was one of the last to get on before the car crossed the bridge and it was so crowded I could scarcely get past the step."

"As we travelled over the bridge, I heard something crack and at first I thought the car had jumped the tracks. I looked down and saw the water coming towards me and next thing I was in the water."

"Oddly, what worried me at the time was the fact I was wearing a new overcoat and hat purchased specially for the Queen Victoria celebrations. Of course, they were ruined."

"I don't know how I got out of the car but it must have been through one of the open windows."

"As I struggled in the water a man in a boat came towards me and just then two little girls floated by clinging to some woodwork from the broken bridge."

"I told the boatman 'better get those youngsters first.' I was dazed from a blow on the head and my leg was injured. I don't remember being pulled out of the water but I was, and I remember a man coming up and offering me a drink."

"It was Collis. Winch and I drank some brandy he offered me."

Mr. Dalby recalls that most of the bodies recovered from the water were taken to the house of Capt. William Grant, an old sailing captain, on Bay Street and laid out on the lawns.

Mrs. Rose Crockford, now 74, was one of the many who owe their lives to the fact that the windows of the street car were open when it went down.

And it was her father, E. F. Robinson, who asked the motorman to open the windows.

time, he saved all our lives," said Mrs. Crockford who now resides at the Aged Women's Home, 857 McClure.

Mrs. Crockford then 13, was travelling on the death car with her father and brother. "As far as I can remember we boarded the car on Government Street," she said. "It was terribly crowded and we were jammed up at the front near the motorman."

"Before we started father asked the motorman to open the windows as the air inside was almost suffocating."

"As we were travelling over the bridge I remember hearing a sharp crackling sound. The floor of the car seemed to shudder under our feet . . . and then we descended sharply, as if we were going down in an elevator."

"I remember the shock of being plunged into cold water but I don't remember how I escaped. Probably the force of the water forced me out of one of the windows."

"The amazing thing is that father, my brother and myself all seemed to come up together. My father and brother caught me by the arms and held me up, which was fortunate because I couldn't swim."

"In less than no time, it seemed, a boat came alongside and we were pulled aboard."

"I am sure we had a miraculous escape."

The grim tragedy of the bridge disaster is vividly recalled by 88-year-old Hugh Petticrew of 2968 Henderson, a native of Kilmarnock, Ayrshire.

He was 27 at the time, a husky young driver with Victoria Fire Department, and the first intimation of the accident reached him as a routine fire alarm.

"In those days," he said, "the only full-time members of the fire department were the drivers. The rest were volunteers."

"Our fire truck was drawn by two horses and I drove them down to water's edge at a fast lick. What a sight. I've never seen anything like it since . . .

... death brushed close

'HUNDREDS STRUGGLING IN WATERS BELOW ...'

Death struck hard at the Merryfield family of Victoria on the day of the Point Ellice Bridge disaster, stealing one member and brushing others.

Frank Merryfield, 78, Victoria magician and retired barber, was on the E & N Railway bridge when the disaster occurred, 700 yards from his vantage point.

"I heard the sirens screaming, then turned and saw hundreds of people struggling in the water below the two broken ends of the bridge," he recalled.

He did not know at the time that his uncle, Frank James, was killed when the bicycle he was riding beside the doomed street car plunged into the water.

Nor did he know that his mother, two sisters, and brother Chester, now 75, were on the last street car to cross the bridge before the collapse.

"We were going to the mock battle at Macaulay Point," he said. "We ran to catch the first street car we saw, and only just made it. Our car had barely got across the bridge when it collapsed. Our motorman stopped and we all got out and stared in horror at the wreckage. There was nothing we could do."

'PRIMARYLY A MATTER OF SAFETY'

Story of New Bridge Told by City Engineer

By JAMES C. GARNETT
Victoria City Engineer

The new Point Ellice Bridge is the third bridge to be erected at its present location.

The first structure collapsed with much loss of life in 1896 and was replaced seven years later by the "through truss" bridge with which we were all familiar and which came to a less disastrous end this year when it was demolished.

Why was this replacement necessary?

Should a bridge last only 54 years?

How was the size, location and capacity determined?

Is it likely that before long even the new bridge will be outmoded and require replacement?

Why was the bridge built on the old piers, and will these last?

These are some of the questions that required analysis before proceeding with the project.

Matter of Safety

The need for the new bridge was primarily a matter of safety. It was old, though, as bridges go, not very old, but it was built at a time when it was fashionable to construct "through" bridges of the "Pratt" truss type, a form that originated in 1844 and became almost a standard for design in North America. Structurally, the design was sound, but, unfortunately, for road purposes it had two distinct disadvantages; first, and most serious, its detail made maintenance extremely difficult, and adequate maintenance impossible; secondly, the "containing" effect of the side trusses and upper bracing on this relatively narrow bridge created a psychological barrier to safe and speedy movement.

Inaccessibility of certain of the structural joints, principally below deck, had resulted, over the years, in corrosion of a serious order. While careful examination and some degree of repair, after cutting away sections of steel, were possible, this process was obviously limited, and we were faced with the known fact that serious corrosion had taken place, at certain points.

Metal Fatigue

At very considerable expense, repairs could have been progressively carried out to gain a further few years of life, but the result would still have been problematical, for when a structure has partially failed, as this one had, and has been the subject of excessive and repeated flexure, the metal of even apparently sound members becomes fatigued and loses strength. We would have been left still with an unsound bridge, one of which no one could have said with certainty: "This is safe!"

So the decision to rebuild was made. But what form should the new bridge take? Obviously, the new bridge should be of a type this time that could readily be maintained, so that its life would be long. This dictated a clean design with all steel parts available for inspection and maintenance. For ample capacity and driving safety, the bridge should be of "deck" type, that is, with no structural members above the road, and for strength, it should be of the heaviest highway type (H20-S16) in order to support with safety heavily-laden trucks.

Check the Facts

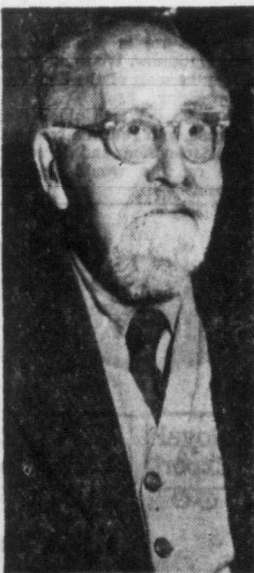

Should the bridge be two-lane, three-lane or four-lane? The easiest solution, of course, would have been to call for a four-lane bridge that would carry all traffic ever likely to be generated anywhere in Victoria. But what were the facts? The bridge was to be one of two serving essentially, a limited area, which, apart from the possibility of ultimate service to the north-west via Craigflower or Admirals Road, was

HEAVY TRUCK USED TO TEST OLD BRIDGE

Mrs. John W. Black of 2731 Rose Street, recalls that her husband was the first man to drive over the old Point Ellice Bridge when it was completed in 1885.

"He drove a heavily-loaded truck over the bridge to test its strength," Mrs. Black said, "and the test was considered satisfactory at the time."

Mr. Black died here 23 years ago.

HERBERT KENT

considered unlikely to develop in the foreseeable future beyond the equivalent of a 26,000 commuter population—a design capacity within that of even a single fast two-lane bridge.

Remembering also that outlet from the bridge must be restricted by traffic lights at Government and Douglas Streets, that at best could not permit more than free access for fifty per cent of the time, a two-lane bridge was all that was needed. This was an important decision, since not only would it be possible to carry a two-lane bridge on the existing piers—a most expensive part of a bridge—but the cost of the bridge is otherwise directly proportioned to width, and it was important to build within our means. So it was decided that the width should be sufficient to carry two, wide 14-foot traffic lanes and a five-foot sidewalk.

Population Shift

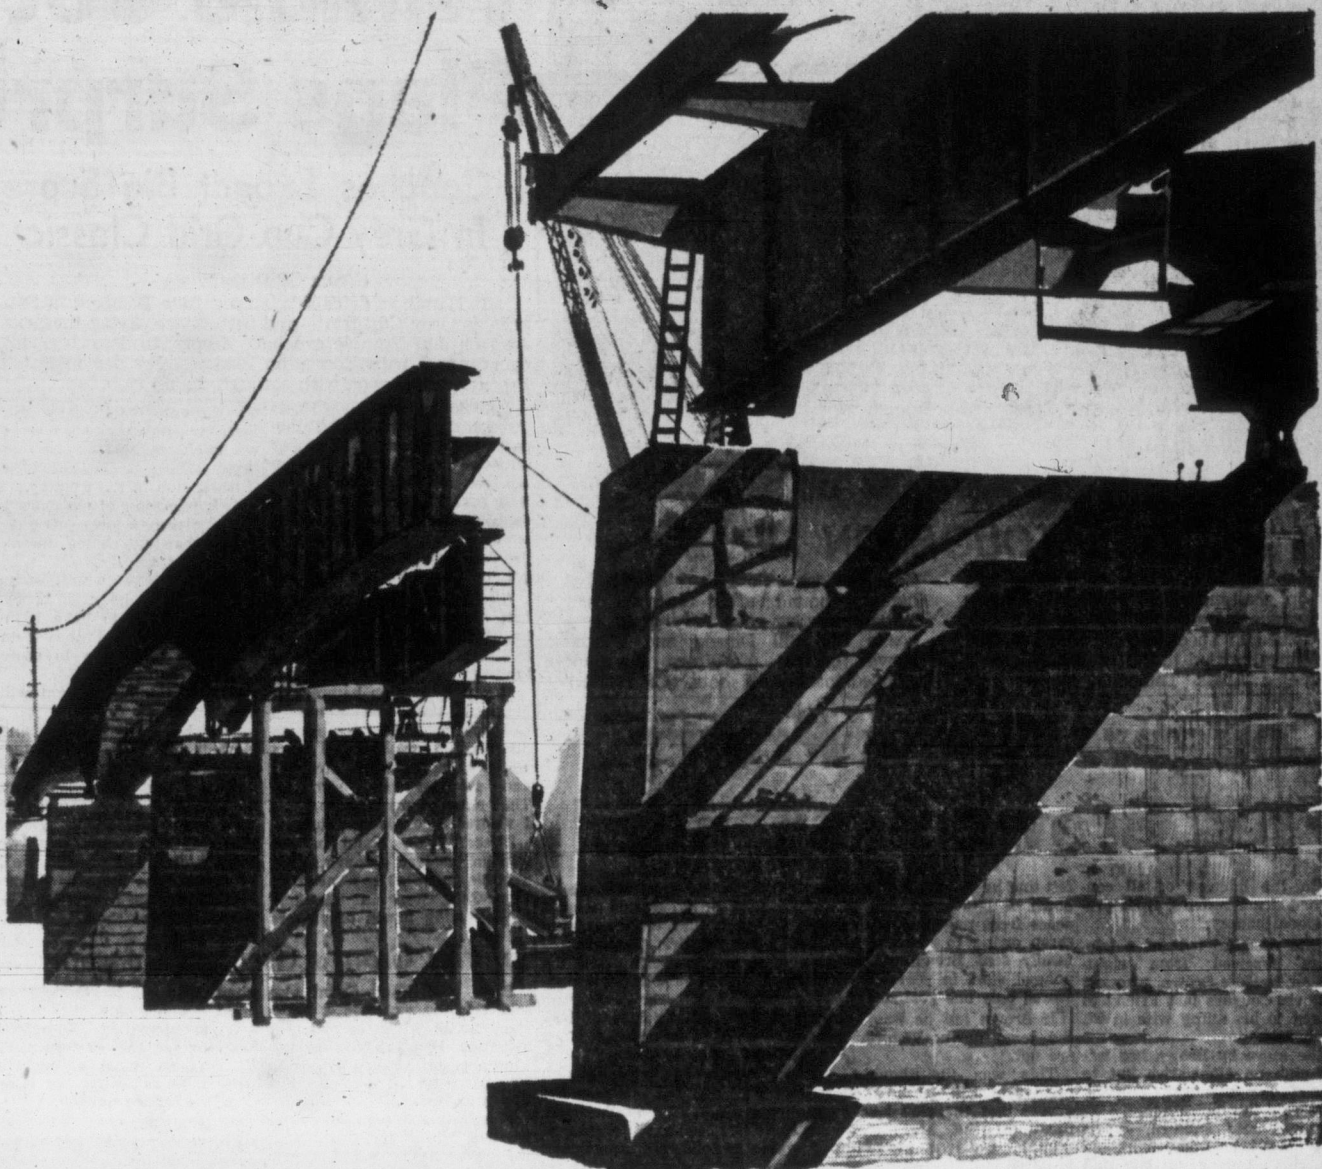

As for any future development that might ultimately be expected to bring traffic volume from the northwest via Admirals and Craigflower Roads, it was felt that by the time of any such development, the population centre of gravity would have moved further north and the population of Saanich would have grown sufficiently to call for access via a further bridge at Harriet Road.

Finally, came determination of what to do about the piers. Drawings of the existing piers indicated they were well founded on sufficient piles to carry the required new loading. The upper portions of these piers were relatively sound, and since the piles on which the piers rested were submerged below the mudline, there was no doubt of their satisfactory condition, for under such circumstances, wooden piles would have indefinite life.

Badly Eroded

Close inspection of the underwater sections of the piers, however, showed the pier concrete to be badly eroded, requiring considerable building up to ensure adequate load distribution over the piles. While such an operation was likely to be expensive, the cost would be only a fraction of that of completely new piers and the result equally sound, so the final decision was taken and the basic form of the bridge resolved.

These then were the factors that determined the basic specification for the new bridge. It remained for the specialist to translate this into the detailed design for the beautiful structure that you now see. A. B. Sanderson, the Victoria consulting engineer engaged for this purpose, and who is probably one of the most experienced of bridge engineers, certainly produced a masterpiece, one that will serve Victoria far beyond the span of any living today, and one that can be counted on with certainty.

OLDEST AT SATURDAY OPENING CEREMONY?

95-Year-Old Recalls Giving First Aid to Crash Victims

Probably the oldest Victoria resident to attend the Point Ellice Bridge opening will be 95-year-old Herbert Kent—the picturesque white-bearded veteran who was so long associated with the music store which bears his name.

Mr. Kent was not an actual witness of the disaster, having travelled out to Macaulay Point ahead of the crowds. But he hurried to the scene in an express wagon and helped in efforts to resuscitate the victims.

At his home at 228 Douglas, Mr. Kent called up vivid memories of the stark tragedy which turned a festive, flag-bedecked city into a place of mourning.

"I was 34 then—an ambitious young businessman with a music store on Government Street—where the Royal Bank now stands.

"Fortunately I decided to go out to Macaulay Point by ferry instead of on the crowded street cars. The ferry in those days left from the old Enterprise Wharf on Bastion.

"I arrived at Macaulay Point half an hour before the battle was due to begin. But news travelled fast even in those days when we had no radio. And as soon as I heard of the disaster I caught an express wagon and drove back to the south end of the Point Ellice Bridge.

"There a newly picked-up and we drove to Captain Grant's house. What a horrible sight it was—bodies spread out all over the lawn and the rooms crowded with doctors, nurses and injured folk.

"First aid was not so generally known then as it is now. I knew nothing about it and I simply did as I was told, kneeling over senseless people and working their arms and legs to try and revive them.

"I don't know how successful I was but, at least I did my best. Later I met a clergyman who had been revived after near-drowning aboard the street car. He told me the experience of being revived was much worse than the sensation of drowning.

"And I have heard that from others since ..."

Cougars Show Profit; Fred Brown Suspended

"In the interest of all concerned, I am retiring from professional hockey."

This was the text of a telegram received from right-winger Freddie Brown, who left Victoria Cougars last Friday to return to his ailing wife in St. Paul, Minn.

The move by Brown has left the club no alternative but to suspend him, manager Colin Kilburn said this morning.

Brown, said Kilburn, apparently has been very depressed over his showing to date and felt that he was letting the team down. A late start due to absence from the Cougar training camp owing to sickness in his family sent Brown off to his poorest start in years. He had scored only one goal so far.

If Brown felt he was letting the team down, Victoria fans are not.

This was the thought expressed by Kilburn when he reported that the club has, as a result of the first 10 home games, made a profit of $1,180.20.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

It takes the talents of a magician to keep a team at its mental peak after driving it past an almost-impossible obstacle.

And since Bud Grant is not known as a magician—only the best coach in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season—it says here that his Winnipeg Blue Bombers are going to lose the Grey Cup final in Toronto's Varsity Stadium Saturday afternoon.

This will be interpreted in some quarters as a sign that Hamilton Tiger-Cats are doomed because my Grey Cup money has been riding on the wrong horse for three years. This time, when I was finally convinced that the Edmonton Eskimos were the best football team in the country, Grant and his battered Bombers bounced the three-time champs off their pedestal.

That feat should perhaps make the Bombers a logical choice to pick up the marbles at Toronto, too, but the feeling here is that they won't be able to match their efforts of the western final. The dramatic triumph over the Eskis may have been due more to an admirable application of Grant's "pride and guts" motto than to physical superiority.

The rookie coach did a tremendous job to convince his crippled crew that they could topple the mighty Eskis. But there is bound to be a feeling of relaxation after accomplishing something most people said was impossible—the pleased satisfaction that comes with completion of a difficult chore. The Bombers were poised for the western final. Grant will need a touch of magic to lift them to the same heights Saturday, the touch that is the trade mark of a great coach.

Shouldn't Have Any Effect on Ti-Cats

Winnipeg's moans about the number of Bomber injuries may have had its psychological effect on the Eskimos, who were actually hurting just as much with injuries. But they shouldn't have any effect on Jim Trimble and his Ti-Cats. All the Cats know is that they are going against a club that, racked with injuries or not, was good enough to beat Canada's top-rated team. That adds up to a man-sized task in any league.

Seldom have two clubs with as many similarities clashed on Grey Cup Day. Each is built around a rock-hard wall of tackle-hungry linemen and depends on a solid ground attack for its scoring punch. Both can switch from down-the-middle plunging to outside running and passing.

Hamilton may have greater variety in the running game. The Ti-Cats flashed their most diversified attack of the season last Saturday when quarterback Bernie Faloney had Gerry McDougall and Cookie Gilchrist running in all directions in the 39-1 rout of Montreal Alouettes.

First Touchdown Could Be Difference

But Bombers' Kenny Ploen also has a potent bag of tricks and is a more dangerous runner than Faloney. It shapes up as a battle where the difference could lie in things that don't show in statistics.

I could be wrong again, but from here the edge goes to the Ti-Cats because they are remarkably free from injuries and are going against a club that may be unable to get "up" for the biggest one of all.

Anything can happen in a Grey Cup final, but this one should be close and the first touchdown could do it. I'll go for the Ti-Cats by one touchdown.

The qualified experts across the country have done some fast shuffling since the Eskimos were bounced and now are touting Hamilton as a 9-5 choice. Victoria fans appear evenly divided in their allegiance.

How do local football filberts see it? Let's have a quick look at a few predictions:

Ernie Federuk, Times sports writer, who arrived from Regina last summer with the warning, "Watch the Roughriders": "They say Hamilton has a great team. Edmonton did too, but the Bombers stopped the Eskis. I think the Big Four is a cream puff league. Hamilton had it easy all season but they won't be able to push the Bombers around. As long as the odds favor the Ti-Cats, I keep betting on the Bombers. It's Winnipeg by a field goal."

Whites, Spence, coach of Victoria Shamrocks Lacrosse Club: "They play the same kind of game and it will be close. Winnipeg injuries and Cam Fraser's kicking should give Hamilton the edge. I'll take the Ti-Cats by three to seven points."

Bill Court, Colwood Golf Club professional: "Maybe I'm just hoping, but after what they did last Saturday I'll pick the Bombers. They have the determination. Football is just like golf, determination will take you a long way. I won't guess at the score, but I think Winnipeg will win."

Nolan Baker, Canada's basketball player of the half-century: "They both have strong lines, but Winnipeg won't be able to quite match the Hamilton attack. The cup's going back east this year. I expect the Tiger-Cats to win by two touchdowns."

Trimble Got What He Wanted; Plans Surprises for Bombers

Coaches Expect Big Score In Grey Cup Grid Classic

(From CP Dispatches)

If Hamilton defeats Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Saturday's Grey Cup final—and bettors are saying they can—coach Jim Trimble can bow deeply to Pop Ivy, his counter-part with Edmonton Eskimos. Ivy demonstrated the cup can be won with a rough, tough club.

Trimble spun his Ticats through a light workout Thursday and, in one of his more talkative moments, told reporters how he brought the club to first place in the Big Four, a double playoff victory over Montreal Alouettes and into the Canadian championship. He got the idea from the Eskimos.

After watching Edmonton defeat the Alouettes in the 1956 East-West classic, he said his thinking changed about the kind of team to build for 1957.

"I saw Edmonton hammer at Montreal until the Alouettes had nothing left in the fourth quarter. I saw them fall apart while Edmonton got stronger and stronger and stronger. That changed my thinking. . . . I wanted a tough ball club."

There's little doubt in the mind of eastern observers that Trimble got what he wanted after. Tiger-Cats were a mauling, block-busting bunch of players all through the 14-game Big Four schedule in which they lost only four games—and they came out of it the healthiest football club in the country.

Although most of the experts are predicting a low-scoring defensive battle, Trimble doesn't see it that way.

"Contrary to what some people think," he said, "I believe it's going to be a high-scoring game and the team that wins will have to score about 31 points."

"And I think our team will win."

"We have played bruising football all year. We'll start out that way, but we'll be throwing the ball a lot more than in any other game. We used some formations against Montreal last week that we haven't used before—and we'll be using some more new ones against Winnipeg Saturday. We might surprise them."

Injuries Grant's Greatest Concern

Rival coach Bud Grant also said that he expected a wide-open battle when he brought his Blue Bombers to Toronto Thursday but insisted he has no new tricks up his sleeve for the Ticats Saturday.

"We have got to go with what we won within the west," said the 30-year-old rookie coach. "We have been working out with our regular game."

Grant limited his predictions to saying he expected to win and indicated that he would be counting on a sound running game to beat the Tiger-Cats. He expressed little concern when asked if he thought he could get his club "up" as it was in defeating Edmonton Eskimos for the western title.

"It isn't so much hating the other club as loving the Grey Cup," he replied quickly.

Of great concern, however, were the Bomber injuries. Grant ticked them off.

Fullback Charlie Shepard, bad knee and Charlie horse; halfback Leo Lewis, rib separations; linebacker Pete Mangum, bad ankle; halfback Dennis Mendyk, broken wrist.

The injured and the well stepped from their place at Mallon airport and walked to a special bus waiting a few yards away. There was a small crowd on hand to welcome the Blue Bombers.

Grant said there would be another limbering-up and drill today. By then he hoped to have a better idea whether all his injured would be ready for Saturday's big game.

Mendyk was wearing a cast around his broken wrist, but Grant said his halfback should be able to play.

It is expected also that Shepard will be able to do the kicking at least, and that brought some comfort to Grant. For the time being the others are in the doubtful class.

There are 32 players in the Bomber party. Only 28 will be dressed for the game, the maximum under Canadian Rugby Union regulations.

The Bombers arrived with the betting odds against them lengthening. On the point basis, the Ti-Cats Thursday ruled favorites by seven points and there were reports the margin will be 10 points by game time.

If you wanted to bet on the Cats—at Thursday's quotations—you had to lay 2-1. For those who like the Bombers, the bookies would quote a 9-5 price.

Die-hard rivals for the league championship for many years, both teams will be going their best when they hold their 2:30 p.m. meeting.

Newly-formed JBAA second division team will meet Victoria College in an exhibition game on the Macdonald Park lower field at the same time.

Bays' seconds are the team that played in the Intermediate Canadian Football League as Mayo Vampires.

Oak Bay's second team will travel to Vancouver Saturday for a game with one of the mainland clubs.

Cougars take on Vancouver tonight in the Forum and Saturday night in Memorial Arena, starting at 8.

PLAN OWN OPERATION

Pro Grid Loops Don't Want CRU

TORONTO (CP)—The Grey Cup may celebrate its 50th birthday next year under the sole jurisdiction of professional football operators. It has been heralded for two years.

While Winnipeg and Hamilton players got ready for the big game of this season the Canadian Football Council quietly made plans to divorce itself from the Canadian Rugby Union. The CRU, steeped in football tradition for more than 70 years and possessor of the trophy since 1920, could possibly step out of the picture before the 1958 final, tentatively scheduled for Vancouver.

The CRU, an amalgamation of the Eastern Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union, Thursday made its first united move to ease the CRU out of the picture and run its own show.

First news of the move was made public hours after the closed 1½-hour CFC session. It didn't surprise many observers who had expected such a manoeuvre since the CFC was formed two years ago.

"That was the reason the CFC came into being," one said.

WANT OWN SHOW
The nine pro clubs—four from the East and five from the West—unanimously agreed that they don't want the CRU or any other organization saying how their business shall be run, including organization and promotion of the East-West final. Delegates will take the matter up to the executive of their clubs and a final decision is expected at the CFC's annual meeting in Winnipeg Jan. 17.

The CRU, governing body in Canada since it was formed in the 1880s, is the central registration office for players and administers the Grey Cup game. CRU officials, queried on the development, declared the union would continue to operate regardless of the CFC's final decision. "Frankly, I'm not surprised," one spokesman said. "I've been expecting this for a long time. It's a wonder it hasn't happened before, but at the same time it would be superfluous to have two football governing or operating bodies in Canada."

"An East-West interlocking schedule with revenue from national television and increased gate receipts would be our saviour."

'WHEN ART THINKS . . . CANUCKS IN TROUBLE'

Mr. K Replies to Critic

There could be more than a meeting of minds and matter tonight and Saturday when Victoria Cougars and Vancouver Canucks step out for their home-and-home Western Hockey League series.

Coach Art Chapman of the Canucks made a number of statements in a mainland paper last week, concerning Victoria's Colin Kilburn. And now Kilburn has a few words to say in his own behalf.

"Chapman," Kilburn said, "talks about high-sticking and jabbing. What kind of a man is he who doesn't stand up for his rights and protect himself . . . especially from those 'bulls' that Chapman sends charging out onto the ice. "In our last game in Vancouver, which we won 2-1, (Bill) Dobbey cut Warren Back for five stitches and never got anything for it."

"Granted, it was the only thing he did all night, but you've got to cover yourself from such attacks."

"All Chapman's been to date is the man who opens the door when the players want to go on the ice. It's easy to be critical when even your rookies are playing like 10-year veterans."

"Now, with Vancouver on a four-game losing streak, Chapman is going to have to start thinking, and when that happens . . . Vancouver is in trouble!"

"I hope Vancouver does just what he wants, and concentrates on me, then there will be 14 Cougars who will do nothing but tend to business."

Cougars take on Vancouver tonight in the Forum and Saturday night in Memorial Arena, starting at 8.

A contingent of 45 of the Canucks' fan club will make the trip here Saturday.

Russians Finally Operate as Unit

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Moscow Selects, apparently improving each time out, Thursday night won the first game of their Canadian hockey tour.

It was a convincing 7-4 triumph over Sudbury Wolves, all the more impressive because the weak Wolves, in last place in the Northern Ontario Senior A League, had been reinforced by five stars from first-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The rafters of the Sudbury arena rang with the praise of the dazzling speed, stickhandling and passing of the Russians, who had played few games as a team before their arrival in Canada.

Though obviously pleased with their win last night, the Selects confined their celebrations to the dressing room after solemnly shaking hands with their opponents.

The Selects were led by Alex Guryshov and Antly Oulikov with two goals each. Vladimir Yelizarov scored once, as did Yuri Popoylov and Yuri Pantikov.

John Bailey, a hard-shooting loan from Greyhounds, scored three of Sudbury's goals and regular Jimmy Logan added the fourth.

Short-Staffed D & D Beaten by Morrisons

Going with only five men, Dickinson & Dunn dropped their second Senior "B" Men's Basketball League decision as Morrisons' picked up their first win of the season by a 43-38 score at Central Junior High School Thursday night.

Turning up with only four players, D & D had to call Norm Parker out of the stands to complete their court crew.

Victoria College Vikettes downed Meteors 31-25 and Polyettes edged Victoria B's 32-29 in preliminary action.

Morrisons: Gilmour 4, Turko 11, Garden 12, Fletcher 4, MacDonald, Ritchie 11, Harris 6, Moody 5. Total 43. Dickinson & Dunn: Baker 11, Simpson 3, Parker 7, Shaw 5, Bennett 12. Total 38.

Meteors: Gardiner 11, Lawrence 3, Coe 2, Hodge 3, Fraser 2, Jay, Leong, Winter, 3. Total 25.

Vikettes: Calvert 11, Beath, Peden 3, Miller 6, Pender 2, Beninger 4, Clark 4, Johnston, Gilman 3, Burridge, Beecroft, Salonen. Total 31.

Polyettes: Calhoun 13, Walls 2, Code 4, Sinclair 2, P. Sinclair, Wetmore, Victoria B's: Wood 2, Peterson, Reel 17, Mitchell 4, Muntari, DeMontigny 4, Grooms, Camp 2, Dyer, Speer. Total 29.

Victoria College: W L Pts. Dairy Queen Eds 2 0 0, Dickinson & Dunn 1 1 0, Morrisons 1 1 0.

Cougars Beat Flyers

Gordon Barefoot notched a pair of markers Thursday as Cougars took a 4-2 decision from Flyers in the pee-wee division of the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association.

Cougars held a four-goal third period lead when Jim Cathro scored twice for Flyers in a last-minute effort to bring his team back into contention.

Other Cougar scorers were Murray Southern and John Hansen.

Bernie Boosts Habs Into Lead

Bruins Blank Blueshirts 1-0; Last-Minute Goal Saves Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion, Montreal Canadiens' pay-off man, has put the National Hockey League.

The wide-shouldered winger scored Canadiens' only goal Thursday night as they defeated Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 to take first place by one point from New York Rangers, who lost 1-0 to Boston Bruins.

In the third game on the unusually heavy Thursday night schedule, Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, fifth and sixth respectively, maintained their positions while playing to a 3-3 tie.

Geoffrion beat hard-pressed Glenn Hall, the Chicago netminder, in the second and third periods. Hall stopped 41 shots while Jacques Plante, earning his second shutout, was called on only 25 times.

Geoffrion, usually third or fourth in the Canadiens' high-scoring parade, though he led league in 1954-55, has a knack of coming through with the big ones.

In the second period, in which Hall stopped 24 shots, he swept in, forced Hall to move and then flipped the puck past him at 17:40. In the third, Montreal fell back to protect Plante's shutout but with Nick Mickoski serving a penalty they iced their penalty play and once again Boom-Boom was the trigger-man.

Bruins' home-ice victory put them two points behind New York and moved them four points ahead of the fourth-place Hawks. The resurgent Bruins have lost only one of their last eight games, while New York has now dropped its last three.

WIDE EDGE IN PLAY

Though Boston had a wide edge on play throughout the game, Ranger goalie Marcel Paille kept his record clean until the 13:40 mark of the third period when Leo Labine took veteran defenceman Allan Stanley's rink-wide pass and sped down the ice with Don McKenney.

McKenney took the puck as Labine poked it between two Rangers and beat Paille with a backhand.

In all, Paille stopped 38 shots, while Don Simmons, gaining his second shutout, dealt with 27.

Duff was the Maple Leafs' hero in their draw with Detroit. Duff scored on a last-ditch effort with goalie Ed Chadwick out in favor of a sixth attacker, to erase Wings' 3-2 lead.

Detroit took the lead three times—twice on goals by Billy Dea and once on Earl Reibel's marker—but lost it to goals by Brian Cullen and rookie Bob Baun. It was Baun's first NHL goal.

Reibel's goal, with four minutes left in the game, was notable because it provided Gord Howe with the 409th assist of his 11-year NHL career, to break the record of 408 he held with Elmer Lach, now retired.

Terry Shawchuk came up with his best game on Detroit ice this season to stop 43 Toronto shots. At the other end, Ed Chadwick turned 38 aside in a wide-open game which was penalty-free in the final two periods.

Saturday Canadiens are host to Chicago in a return match; Boston is at Toronto and Detroit at New York. Sunday Canadiens are at Boston, Toronto is at Chicago and Rangers are in Detroit.

Tony in Good Spot Despite First Loss

Tony Gutoski of Victoria gave every indication Thursday night that his rink was still the one to beat for Grand Challenge honors in the Totem Bonspiel at Vancouver.

In late afternoon play, the Gutoski rink became the last undefeated rink to fall by the way, losing 7-5 to the Gar Taylor quartet, another Victoria rink. Earlier in the day, Gutoski defeated another clubmate, Gordon Moore, 10-4.

However in the last draw of the night, Gutoski bounced back with an 11-4 victory over Kells McMurdo of Vancouver to make the Victoria rink's record nine wins against only one loss.

With two games left to play, Gutoski is in a favored position over the Ken Anderson rink, which at present is runner-up with an 8-1 record but also has two games left to play.

By beating the McMurdo rink, Gutoski also set back the threat of the Vancouver foursome which previously had a 7-1 record.

The Taylor quartet missed a chance to join the ranks of the contending rinks when it dropped a 7-3 contest to the Bang Cartmell rink of Vancouver in the 6:30 p.m. draw. It made Taylor's record 7-2.

Another Victoria entry, skipped by Jack Moir, moved into the fourth of the Vancouver Event by downing Bowker of Ladysmith 7-5 for his third victory of the day. The Moir foursome clipped Stephens of Seattle 8-7 in the afternoon and followed that victory up with an 8-4 decision over Hill of Calgary.

DETROIT (NEA)—Six Detroit Pistons started their professional basketball careers with the New York Knickerbockers.

Sprint Stretch Does It

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank C. Rand Jr.'s St. Amour II closed in the stretch to win the first running of the $22,450 Pilgrim Handicap at Jamaica race track Thursday.

B and M Stable's Bunny Babe was second and W. Arnold Hanger's Whitney third.

St. Amour earned $15,200 for Rand, an Albuquerque, New Mex., sportsman, and paid $6.80, $3.70 and $2.80.

At Baltimore, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Searching won the $15,000-added Gallorette Stakes at Pimlico. Searching ran the 1 1/2 miles in 1:15 1/5, and paid $8.60 to win.

Pine Echo won by a neck in the $10,000-added Inaugural Handicap at Tropical Park began Florida's 126-day horse racing season at Miami.

At New Orleans, Joe W. Brown's Tenacious closed in the last strides of the stretch to win the $7,500 Thanksgiving Handicap as the Fair Grounds opened.

Raid on Bingo Game Nets $1,600, Papers

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Detectives who raided a bingo game run by a Vancouver lodge of the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffalo seized more than $1,600 and hundreds of documents, a magistrate was told Thursday.

Royal Edward Lodge 690 and Robert Maitland, a member, were charged with operating a common gaming house.

Police witnesses told Magistrate Alex McDonald they raided the lodge premises Aug. 23 and seized the money from bingo tables and a coffee shop. They said Maitland, described as the lodge social convenor, claimed $420 and Reuben D. Baker, lodge secretary, claimed $145 as personal property.

CENTENNIAL BINGO

KAMLOOPS — Kamloops centennial committee plans to hold bingo games between first and second periods of Okanagan mainline hockey games played here.

The project starts tonight and the game will be run by Kamloops Lions Club. Jackpot prize is $500 with $100 consolation. Permission has been given by all authorities. A. M. Affleck, chairman of the centennial committee, says the minimum objective for the season is $5,000.

FALSE EVIDENCE

VANCOUVER — Two girls testified Thursday in police court here that a Vancouver lawyer prepared false evidence for them to give in court. The lawyer and his client were subsequently charged with conspiring to defeat the cause of justice, counselling witnesses to commit perjury, perjury and conspiracy to commit perjury.

The charges were laid against lawyer George C. Chapman and his client, Samuel J. Carra, 27, following Carra's arrest and subsequent appearance in court on an impaired driving charge, not yet disposed of. The alleged offence occurred Oct. 12.

MINER FOUND DEAD

NEW DENVER—A 43-year-old miner, Anders Anderson of New Denver, has been found dead in a tunnel of the Viola-Mac in the Sandon district, about 50 miles north of Nelson.

2 STRUCK BY CAR

NEW WESTMINSTER — Two elderly pedestrians were taken to hospital here late Thursday after they were struck by a car which police said was driven by Bobby Bergeron, defenceman for New Westminster Royals.

Reported in satisfactory condition with facial and back injuries were Thomas Golas, 64, and his wife.

The accident occurred at

Hot Drinks Again Sunday At Goldstream

The Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League will sell hot dogs, coffee and hot chocolate at the Goldstream Inn on Sunday for the last time this year.

Junior leaguers will turn waitresses between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. to raise money for the solarium's crippled children.

The weekly project started Nov. 10 when Victorians flocked to the area to see fish begin their climb up Goldstream.

The Japanese earthquake of 1923, accompanied by tidal waves, cost 143,000 lives.

French Plan Atomic Bomb Test By Next Spring, Reports Claim

PARIS (CP) — The French weekly magazine Enterprise said today France will test an atomic bomb next spring.

A defence department spokesman said "we can't confirm it." The department has declined to comment on similar reports that France intends to add atomic weapons to her arsenal.

The magazine said work on a French A-bomb began in 1956.

It reported that the speed with which France has been able to construct a bomb has surprised Paris for several weeks has Britain and the United States, mentioned the Sahara as a likely

CABINET SECOND LOOK AT COFFEE BREAK CURB

A special cabinet committee is reviewing a government order this summer which restricts civil servants from taking their "coffee break" in the cafeteria.

An employees' delegation asked the cabinet last week to rescind the order. They said the drop in revenue threatens the cafeteria, which is operated by the Government Employees' Association.

Performs in a BOLD new way

The Magnificent 1958 Meteor

V-8 or 6

The Magnificent 1958 Meteor Introduces a Bold New Concept in Performance—a Bold New Step in Economy.

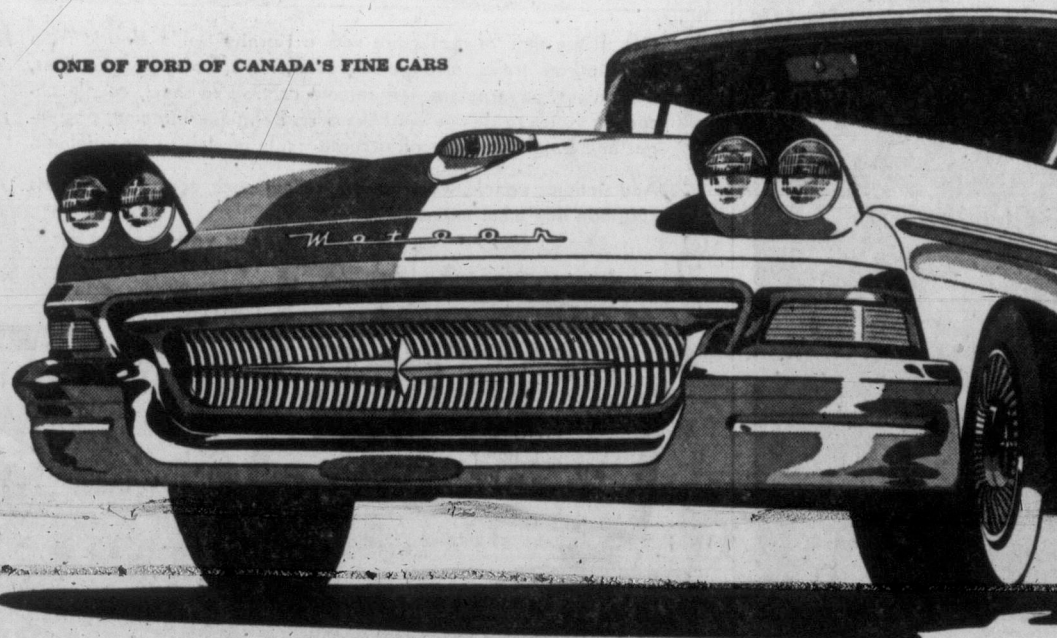

Not for 25 years has there been a V-8 so entirely new. Meteor's all-new Tempest V-8's deliver up to 303 hp., yet are so smooth a coin will balance on the front fender while the engine is running. Tempest V-8's conquer the steepest hills with hardly a deep breath—and thanks to new Precision Fuel Induction, fuel-air mixture zooms through 8 expressways directly to the cylinder head—saves gas—gives overdrive economy. Meteor's Thrifty-Six is new and wonderful, too—now packing 145 eager horses.

Matching new Meteor engines in performance is Meteor's triple line-up of transmissions, including the all-new Multi-Drive Merc-O-Matic. Here is the first automatic drive where you can select from three forward ranges. Power and torque is tailored to every driving condition. Standard Merc-O-Matic and manual shifting also available.

This is the bold new performance Meteor brings to the low price field. Want to try it? Just see your Meteor dealer tomorrow and drive the new Meteor—new, in a bold new way.

Five Candidates In Sidney Race

SIDNEY—Five candidates will contest two seats on the village commission here Dec. 12.

DANCES AID 'CLEAN UP'

First of three dances to raise money for "paint up and clean up" campaigns at community halls during centennial year will be opened Saturday by Colwood and District Chamber of Commerce.

The dance will be held in Colwood Community Hall at 9 p.m. Two other dances will be sponsored early next year at Luxton and Langford community halls.

Sloan Probe Revival Asked By Liberals

NANAIMO (CP)—The Nanaimo Provincial Liberal Association has urged revival of the Sloan Royal Commission into charges of bribery against former Forests Minister Robert Sommers.

Regional director Arthur H. Cox of Victoria said Wednesday at an association meeting the Sloan commission should be reconvened regardless of the outcome of court action being taken against Mr. Sommers and three other men.

He suggested the Nanaimo and The Islands constituency group press for the commission in a resolution to the provincial Liberal convention in Vancouver in January.

Delegate Oscar Mottishaw advocated a royal commission inquiry into the B.C. Power Commission, alleging waste in construction at Campbell River.

Doug Greer said such an inquiry could also be directed to rates charged for power in B.C. by the commission.

Rod, Gun Club Sets Meeting At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—Annual meeting of the Rod and Gun Club will be held Sunday, Dec. 8.

Members of the previous regular meeting approved a suggestion by vice-president John McFarlane that the annual election be held in December instead of January.

"It would simplify our books because our fiscal year would then run from January to December instead of February to February," he said.

The executive was appointed as a nominating committee.

Most recent resident to file nomination papers is Herman H. Shade, 1411 Third Street, president of Sidney Freight Service.

Others who have filed papers are Commissioner Joseph Bilgeri and Harold Fox, merchant and former commissioner.

Two other candidates are J. E. Bosher Jr. and G. William Laird, a merchant.

WITHDRAWS

Alan Calvert, J.P., who announced a week ago that he would be a candidate, has withdrawn.

Two men standing for election as chairman of the commission are Dr. C. H. Hemmings, chairman for the past year, and George L. Beal. Nominations will close Monday noon.

Fines Follow Liquor Raid At Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—A Nanaimo man was ordered to pay three fines of $50 each or serve a month in jail on each of three charges consecutively, when he appeared in court following a police raid on his home.

Stanley Laviguer, whose home was raided by police Nov. 2 to investigate a suspected teenagers' drinking party, was ordered to pay the fines or serve the jail terms consecutive to a jail term he is already serving.

Laviguer is presently serving two months in lieu of paying $150 fine for permitting a juvenile to have liquor on premises under his control.

Three charges he faced Thursday involved possession of liquor by persons under 21.

'SPACEMEN' SET TO TAKE OFF

Comox Flying Saucer Ready for Grey Cup

COURTENAY—Word has been received here that the Comox Valley Flying Saucer is safe in Toronto, and well-groomed and ready for the Grey Cup parade Saturday.

The "saucer," a local conception of what the spacemen in a hurry might use for travel, has appeared in several parades here and at the PNE in Vancouver, and was shipped to Toronto by rail. The crew of Lloyd White, Gib Baal, Harry Mudge and Pete Lloyd drove to Toronto non-stop in a station wagon, sleeping and driving in shifts.

A community project, the float was put into shape for travel by Charles Bolton, J. Forbes, John Larsen, H. Sylvester, Roy Field, Bob Salter, Neil McKay and the saucer's crew.

Costumes to be worn by the crew were spruced up Mrs. A. Queen, Mrs. R. Salter, Mrs. F. White, Mrs. E. White, Mrs. J. Forbes and Mrs. J. McKay.

Hundreds of tourist pamphlets and a mascot replica of Century Sam were taken to Toronto by the crew.

CHEMAINUS—The Vancouver Island Boxing Commission will meet here Sunday to form a new commission and to arrange dates and places for the annual Island Silver Gloves and Goldie Gloves boxing tournaments.

HOSPITAL PAY RAISE

LADYSMITH (CP)—Directors and employees of Lady-smith General Hospital have agreed to a pay increase of 4 per cent across the board, effective January 1, with greater increases for some classifications.

Ex-Prince Rupert Resident Buried On Salt Spring

GANGES—Funeral services were held at St. Mark's Anglican Church here for Robert Cameron, 67, who died at his home here Saturday.

He had come here recently after living many years in Prince Rupert.

Surviving are the widow, Jean, at home; four daughters, Mrs. Peter Cartwright, Ganges; Mrs. M. Patterson, Ocean Falls; Mrs. S. Currie, Prince Rupert; and Mrs. R. Donnelly, Victoria. Eight grandchildren also survive.

Williston Denies Talks Set On Campbell River Project

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston denied Thursday the Campbell River village commission had been invited to meet the cabinet to discuss a waterfront development proposed for the city.

Mr. Williston said in an interview a story stating he had invited the commission to see the cabinet on Dec. 20 was "definitely not right."

The story quoted Commissioner Barnard Box as saying the meeting had been arranged after a telephone conversation with Mr. Williston.

NO DECISION

"In the first place," the minister said, "the government has not adjudicated an inquiry board's report into the development."

"You can't discuss an item before the cabinet which is still before the government for decision," he said.

"In the second place—I can't invite them to appear before cabinet. Only Wes Black (Provincial Secretary) can do that."

The inquiry board was appointed by Mr. Williston to investigate the development by protested by the village commission. The board ruled in favor of the scheme, but no action has been taken by the government yet.

Mr. Black said the commission did not state in their letter the topic they wished to discuss with the cabinet.

Action Asked To Restore Mining Jobs

NANAIMO (CP)—Legislation at the next session of the B.C. Legislature to restore jobs in B.C. mining and forest industries was demanded Thursday night by Gowan Guest, president of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association.

Planning employment should not be left to the federal government alone, Mr. Guest told a meeting of the Nanaimo Conservatives.

Provincial legislation, he said, should include:

"Jobs for miners by repealing immediately the special taxes on the mining industry, and letting our hard-pressed mines compete as best they can in the world markets;

"Jobs for loggers by repealing immediately the special taxes on the forest industry;

"Legislation to get on with the Mica Creek development on the Columbia in co-operation with the federal government, and create jobs in the Kootenays.

"But I predict none of these things will be done," he said.

Here's your hidden beard. Whiskers grow in tiny valleys. Ordinary shavers skim the tops of these valleys—shave only the tops of whiskers. Soon whisker bases grow out and Hidden Beard can be seen and felt.

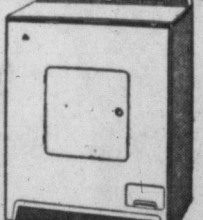

Here's how Remington gets it. Roller Combs press the valleys down—pop up whisker bases into man-sized shaving head. Whiskers are sheared off at base—cleanly, comfortably, quickly.

MONTE ROBERTS

Just wondering around...

Wonder how many of the Cecils in town had trouble when they were of school age... wonder if, for instance, Cecil Rawlings and Cecil Rhodes, and Cecil Ridout and Cecil Clark, and Cecil Wyatt and Cecil M. Roberts (the Burdette Street Cecil M. Roberts) had to defend themselves, at the cost of many a black eye, from the taunting charge of "Cee-cill is a siss-ee"... wonder if it wouldn't have been easier on them if "Cee-cill" had been pronounced correctly as "Sess-ill"... wonder how many of the above Cecils were named in honor of Cecil Rhodes... and wonder how many know that I, too, went through it all—having been christened Cecil Monteith Roberts, and having the scars to prove it.

Wonder how many people who phone 3-1121 know C & C Taxi service was named because of the two Cecils who founded it... and if anyone cares I'm called Monte, not Cecil, because my first boss, Cecil Scott of the Vancouver Province (lo, these many years ago) shared a Christian name with me... it was too confusing, so I was demoted to Monte... wonder how many old-timers around here remember Cecil Scott, and his twin brother... and how many new timers have a thought for nephew Steve Scott, ex-Cp here, now with the Toronto bureau....

Wonder why it is I never get tired of Bing Crosby and/or Perry Como singing "White Christmas"... yet I get tired of anything sung by Elvis Presley even before he "sings" it... wonder if Arthur Godfrey is still wearing the tie he charmed—literally—off my neck when I was so determined to NOT like him... wonder why it is the Old Pros in the entertainment world owe so much to their burlesque wheel training... and if there is any comparable ground for learning the genuine alib extant today... wonder if you are going to say "How about Hal March of TV's $64,000 question"... because he started in burlesque, too....

Wonder why it is no person named Trainor lives on Oliphant Street... it would be so nice to make a passing mention of the Oliphant Trainor... and why doesn't Ken Skace change his name slightly and move to Satellite Street?

Wonder if Gordon Petticrew has run out of new versions of old stories... and if Gordon Elworthy was really, truly sorry he had to decline the invitation to run for office as reeve of Oak Bay due to pressure of tow-boating business... and if Jack Cunningham, the SIU port agent at Vancouver, would tell a reporter what time it is, if asked politely....

Wonder how many loyal constituents will go along with me in the belief Winnipeg will win the Grey Cup Saturday?...

TOPICS OF THE DAY

In collision with a car in front of his home, Matthew Adirkirchner, 551 Niagara, was treated for hip abrasions at St. Joseph's Hospital early today. He had been pouring gas into his own car when the accident occurred. Driver of the second car was reported by police to be Keszi George, 3138 Cook.

Hardy Frederick Crowe, 18, RCN, Garman Austin Dann, 20, RCN, and John A. Youson, 3230 Millgrove, each were fined $15 in city police court today for being minors in possession of liquor.

Victoria Rotarians heard "Employer, Employee Relations" discussed by Dudley Foster, district manager West Coast and Vancouver Island areas, Imperial Oil Ltd. at Thursday noon.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—How long can a camel go without water? H.R.

A.—With a light load and travelling slowly, a camel can go without water from six to 10 days. Camel drivers force their animals to drink up to 15 gallons of water before trips by giving them salt to induce thirst.

Q.—Why were pigtailed worn in China? B.E.

A.—The queue, or pigtail, was worn as a mark of submission to the Manchu rulers. It is worn today only in remote country villages.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor, questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

A minor who attempted to purchase beer in a government liquor store was fined $15 in city police court today.

Robert Sidney C. Beadnell, 19, of 298 Beaumont, pleaded guilty to a charge of entering a liquor store without lawful excuse while a minor.

Among new Canadian paintings in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery loan collection available for monthly rentals to members Monday at 8 p.m. will be water color seascapes by Tony Law and bird paintings by Allan Brooks. Visitors are invited to view the collection.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Johannes De Ryk, 448 Moss, $35 for careless driving; Frank Robert Carlow, 2601 Selwyn, $40, no insurance on car;

Derek Albert Verhey, 4011 Valley View, $10 for no horn on car, $25 for speeding in 30-mile zone;

John Waselenchuk, 3438 Salisbury, $20, for speeding in 30-mile zone;

Fred C. Doig, 2637 Fernwood, $10 for crossing double line; Volle McTavish, 670 Atkins, $10, licence plate obscured;

Dermot Augustine O'Kiely, 825 Foul Bay Road, $35 and licence suspended for careless driving.

21 Days in Jail For Car Prowler

Car prowler Darrell Hughes, RCN, was sentenced in city police court today to 21 days in jail for pilfering an alarm clock and wallet from a car parked on Broad Street early Thursday.

The Times erred Thursday in reporting his name as Darrell Pugh.

Hughes had pleaded guilty to theft under $50.

Sentence was lighter than it might have been "in view of the fact that you have a good character," Magistrate H. C. Hall told the accused.

TRANSFORMATION COMING

Link between old and new Government House will be formed by granite archway left standing in the rubble of disastrous fire last March. Steel framework of new mansion will begin to arise soon, following opening of first tenders today. Job may take a year to complete. (Times Photo.)

City Proposes Govt. House Subdivision

Proposal that the provincial government turn over a portion of Government House grounds to the city of Victoria for subdividing was placed before the cabinet today.

A brief from city council was presented by Ald. Elmer McEwen and city manager C. C. Wyatt.

The city wants to acquire the southerly slope of the grounds, comprising about 12 acres for a residential subdivision. The area fronts on Richardson Street.

AESTHETIC VALUE

A resolution approved by city council last July said a housing development would improve the appearance of the brush-covered area and be of "aesthetic" value to Government House.

The brief added these advantages:

1. Fire hazard created by the brush would be removed;
2. A new access road could be made to Government House grounds;
3. Present danger of flooding to houses below could be removed by installation of storm sewers on the rocky slope.

The city wants the government to turn over the property at a "nominal" cost. The brief claims any money the city would realize from the sale of lots would be used up to install new services, including underground wiring.

Library Pact Plebiscite Set for Dec. 12

A plebiscite on new financial arrangements and granting of voting rights to Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Central Saanich members of Victoria Public Library Board, was approved Thursday by city council.

The vote will be held at the civic election Dec. 12. As the question constitutes a money by-law, only voters who are property-owners are permitted to cast ballots.

Similar plebiscites have been recommended to the outlying municipalities.

ARMED GUARDS TO STAND OVER GOYA EXHIBITION

Victoria's famed art treasure, 81 sketches by Francisco Goya, will go on public display at the Art Gallery for two days next week.

The sketches, discovered by J. P. E. Klaverwyden and authenticated by Goya expert Dr. Herbert Paulus of Germany, will be displayed in a locked glass case, and guarded by two armed officers.

Dr. Paulus has valued the sketches at $465,000. At present photostatic copies are on display at the gallery, but the originals may be seen—through the glass and under the watchful eye of the guards—on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The gallery will extend its usual hours and open at 8:30 a.m., close at 9 p.m., on both days.

General admission will be $1 for adults; 50 cents for college students; 25 cents for students up to 16; for classes conducted by teachers, admission is free up to 12 noon.

City Council Calls Arena Investigation

City council Thursday ordered an investigation of complaints against Memorial Arena manager Joseph Dukowski.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay told council he had "a complete lack of confidence" in the manager following repeated cases of the "gross misinformation" to council from Mr. Dukowski.

A council committee on arena matters, including Ald. Arthur Dowell, Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. Austin Curtis, was authorized to go into the matter and report back.

FAULTY MIXTURES

Ald. Ramsay said Mr. Dukowski has not given council all the facts concerning past operation of the arena floor freezing system. The alderman felt the present depreciated condition of the floor was due to faulty mixtures of freezing agents in the past, which caused unwarranted corrosion.

He gave council examples of what he called "misinformation" supplied by Mr. Dukowski regarding other matters, including a press release the manager denied giving to the papers.

"He said he had never contacted the papers. Yet he cornered the two city hall reporters and pleaded with them to put his remarks in the paper," said the alderman.

He said Mr. Dukowski said in a broadcast all the concern over the freezing mix was "making a mountain out of a molehill."

"This isn't the man who sweeps the floor. This is the top man in the arena, who we are paying $9,240 a year." (The figure includes salary and car allowance.)

Ald. Ramsay produced various technical publications to back his contention the freezing mixture was of prime importance to the life of the floor.

Members of the arena commission had no comment today on the council action.

The council arena committee will meet at 4 p.m. Monday under chairmanship of Ald. Austin Curtis. It was learned Ald. Ramsay has been invited to sit in on the investigation.

Westwood Studies Parkland Reserve On Lake Shores

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said today his department is considering a proposal to place a parkland reserve on B.C. lake shores.

The minister said the government was concerned that most lakeshore property on such lakes as Okanagan is falling into private hands, as well as islands in the lakes.

He said his department is working closely with Lands Minister Williston on the matter.

The government recently created a "map reserve" along the B.C. coastline so that the department of recreation and conservation will have first call on desirable waterfront properties.

Trades Licence Fine

Willis Langford, 3309 Cedar Hill, was fined $25 in Saanich police court Thursday for operating a business at 3313 Cedar Hill without a trades licence. He paid an additional $10 for the licence.

Chief's Family Gets $19,500

Award Follows City Accident

Damages totalling $19,500 were awarded in Supreme Court today to the widow and family of Chief Jasper Charles of the Becher Bay Indian tribe, who was killed in an auto accident almost two years ago.

Mr. Justice Harry J. Sullivan awarded $15,000 to the widow, Caroline Cecilia Charles of 7 Coopers Road, Victoria; $2,000 to her son Gordon, aged nine; $1,500 to Joseph, 11, and $1,000 to her daughter, Delia Cecilia, 14.

Damages were awarded under the Families Compensation Act following court argument as to the value of Chief Charles to his family in monetary terms.

BOOM MAN

The chief, aged 55, was said to have been earning $13,400 a day as boom man for the Plummer Bay Sawmills Ltd. at the time of his death. He had earned $3,000 in 1953 and about $1,964 in 1954.

He died in St. Joseph's Hospital from head and internal injuries after his truck was hit by a car at Catherine and Johnson Streets on Dec. 27, 1955.

Force of the collision was so great that Chief Charles was thrown some distance from the truck, and died three hours later.

NO HELP

Mrs. Charles told the court she received no assistance from the Department of Indian Affairs and the proceeds from her husband's estate on the Beecher Bay Reserve had been exhausted.

She said her husband had always earned sufficient to provide her and their children with "adequate food and clothing."

The claim for damages on her behalf was made by J. V. Boys of Duncan, as administrator of Chief Charles' estate. He stated that the truck driven by the chief was so damaged that its value had been reduced from $450 to only $50.

NAVAL RATING

Defendants in the action were naval rating Peter Bell, driver of the car, and Lawrence Oliva, an employee of the renters, Benwell-McLeish Distributors (Vancouver Island) Ltd.

For the plaintiff, J. Alan Baker stated that Bell acquired the car with consent of Oliva and drove it at excessive speed while intoxicated.

He failed to apply his brakes or to swerve or slow speed to avoid the collision.

Mr. Baker said Oliva was liable because he loaned the car to Bell without ascertaining that he had a valid driver's licence or sufficient training and experience to operate a vehicle.

"I consider $15,000 would be a reasonable compensation to the widow for the loss of her husband," he said.

Chinese Assaulted

Sam Tim, 23, of 554 Fisgard, who told police he had been beaten by two men, was given five stitches over his left ear at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday night.

Through a translator, Tim said he had been on his way to Victoria High School to attend a night class when two men, about 20 years old, grabbed him from behind and struck him.

Cruises Set For RCN Ships

An additional winter training cruise for two ships of the RCN Pacific Command was confirmed by the navy today.

HMC Ships Ontario, training cruiser, and Fraser, anti-submarine destroyer escort, will travel in company to San Francisco, leaving Canadian waters Dec. 13.

The Ontario, now in final stages of annual refit, will leave Esquimalt harbor Dec. 10 for Nanos Bay, where she will "work up" and swing compass for two days. On Dec. 13, the Fraser will leave and meet the Ontario in Juan de Fuca Strait.

The two ships will arrive at San Francisco Dec. 16, leave the California port Dec. 18, returning Dec. 20.

Previously announced was a cruise for the Ontario to Balboa and San Diego, leaving Esquimalt Jan. 6. Proposed but not yet officially announced are cruises for the Ontario to Australia, and for the Fraser, with other ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, to the Orient.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

of Victoria West Community Association this week was Charles F. Banfield. It was the third honor bestowed on "the mayor of Victoria West" in recent weeks. He was chosen to cut the ribbon opening the new Point Ellice Bridge Saturday and his name will be adopted for a new elderly citizens' housing project on Styles Street.

B.C. Brief Packed Punch Says A.G.

Attorney-General Bonner said today the fiscal conference in Ottawa this week "could mark a turning point in federal-provincial relations."

B.C. Action Requested On University

The provincial cabinet was urged today to start the ball rolling toward establishment of a university in Victoria which could offer a four-year Liberal arts course.

A brief presented by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce said the government should take "immediate steps" to acquire property for a campus which could serve 2,500 students.

The brief said the chamber wanted to emphasize that none of its efforts should be "construed as being in opposition to those of the Victoria College Council."

LONG-RANGE

It said the chamber recognized the need for immediate additional facilities, but felt long-range planning is just as important.

"Decisions must be made now for the more distant future," the chamber said. "It is certain that the lost opportunity of 1958 may never be regained in 1968 or '78."

The brief was drawn up by the special sub-committee of the chamber which investigated the university question.

SUITABLE

It maintains that some 200 acres of property north of Cedar Hill Crossroad and to the east and west of Finnelly Road would be "eminently suitable" for the university grounds.

The property could be obtained "on fairly reasonable terms," the brief stated.

The sub-committee says the proposal that some 45 acres of property adjoining the present Victoria College campus be acquired for expansion will not meet the problem. This land is "both insufficient and unsuitable," it states.

The brief also rejected a suggestion that Uplands Golf Course be purchased for future college expansion.

POSITIVE

"For the first time in my five and a half years' experience there was a positive approach to the problems provincial and municipal governments are facing in an era of development," the attorney-general said.

Mr. Bonner said the B.C. brief made more "impact" at the conference than that of any other province.

"Its effect on the federal treasury was not markedly different from the Manitoba and Saskatchewan representations."

"Our brief stressed national policy and was unique in its submission that technical university education should receive greater federal assistance."

NO ACTION

Mr. Bonner said B.C.'s only complaint after the conference was that no action was started on a works program to meet the threat of unemployment this winter.

"We were disappointed that phase was not seized upon by the federal government."

The attorney-general said the federal government gave no concrete answers to the major points in the B.C. brief.

But he said there "appeared to be overtones of interest" in the national development program proposed by B.C., particularly the suggestion that Ottawa should pay a far greater share of road-building costs.

Mr. Bonner said the proposal that the federal government help pay for secondary highways as well as the Trans-Canada Highway was contained in B.C. briefs to previous fiscal conferences.

Premier Bennett is not expected to return to his office until next week.

Are You Going to Let Them Knock at a Locked Door?

By DINAH KERR

The Community Chest of Greater Victoria, represents 20 member agencies.

These 20 agencies represent an untold number of people in distress.

An alarming percentage of these people will be kept out on a locked door if the Community Chest doesn't meet its campaign goal of $251,717 this year.

The campaign was opened in October with high hopes. It is stumbling now from lack of support.

Campaigners are working as hard as ever. More people are giving. But, unfortunately, they are not giving enough.

The chest total day is almost $29,000 short of the minimum sum to keep member agencies operating in 1958.

David Woodsworth, whose Family and Children's Service applied for $50,000, explains it this way:

"Our budget was worked out very carefully. It is not a rubber budget. That $50,000 is a statement of our real need. If the amount is reduced because the chest cannot meet its quota, it will mean a reduction of essential services to families and children of Greater Victoria."

An unexpected cut in the service's budget couldn't come at a worse time, he said. Unemployment in this area is reaching serious proportions and, as economists across the country are warning, the good times are coming to an end.

Many wage earners, suddenly out of work, are going to require direct financial assistance from the Family and Children's Service.

They may need another equally important type of assistance — professional counselling.

The money is given to keep families eating; the counselling, to keep families together.

"Unemployment is one of the main contributing factors leading to family disorganization," Mr. Woodsworth said. "Whenever money is short, tempers get short."

"This is one of the things we are most worried about," he said. "Family counselling is one of our greatest expenditures chargeable to the chest. If we do not get our $50,000, that service will have to be limited."

In other words, a home that is weakened from lack of money might tumble from lack of help.

If this happens in even one case, it will not be the fault of the Community Chest or the Family and Children's Service. It will be the fault of individuals and firms who would not give money to help their fellow man.

In an average year, the Family and Children's Service deals with 500 needy families. "When we set our basic estimates for 1958, we didn't anticipate the year would get tough," Mr. Woodsworth said.

To the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, another chest agency, a financial cutback would probably mean a higher charge for services at the local clinic in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Arthritis and rheumatism strike the very old. Many cannot afford more than $1 a week for two visits to the clinic.

"But if our chest quota isn't met, I don't see how we can go on treating patients at such a low rate," head physiotherapist Miss Susan Mackenzie said. "Those treatments cost us $3 each and we have 35 patients on the 'active list' this year."

So, in this case, less money will mean more pain.

That is the story for two of the Community Chest agencies. It ends the same way for the other 18.

The moral is that money can buy happiness and health — if you've got enough money.

The Community Chest, at this point, hasn't. But there is too much at stake to give up now.

That's why chest officials have designated the week ending next Thursday as "Finish the Job Week."

You can get behind this final push by clipping the accompanying donation form and:

1. Mail it with your contribution to the Community Chest, Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street;

2. Take your donation to collection centres at the Hudson's Bay Company, Eaton's, Woodward's, Oak Bay Pharmacy, Stanlake and Young in Keating or the Fish and Chip Shop at Saanichton;

3. Or phone 2-5121 and the donation will be called for.

The chest needs another $29,000. How much can you spare?

Bakery Boasts Luscious Fruit-Filled Yule Cakes

By PENNY SAVER

I took my first visit to the back of a bakery today and saw a Christmas cake being made. If you could see the material that goes into one of these superb cakes! Almonds, cashews, walnuts, sultanas, dark and light raisins, and sparkling cherries in red and green. Oh, yum!

The head baker explained to me that these cakes are called "Holiday" and what an apt title! Just biting into a piece and smelling all that wonderful aroma set me dreaming of the Yuletide which, after all, is not far away.

These cakes come in small and large sizes at $1.95 up.

"King's Treasure." Sounds fascinating, doesn't it? Well, this is the name for a heavier and darker cake that was being prepared. It had every fruit and nut imaginable in its innards, including glace apricots! This heavy type is $1 a pound.

Here's a baker's secret, exclusive! Before mixing the raisins into a cake soak them in a syrup of honey, orange and lemon juice. It softens them and preserves the color.

Enough of Christmas cakes!

Let's go and look at the delicious mandarin oranges (commonly known as Jap oranges). The shipment has just arrived in Victoria and crates are selling at $1.49. Of course, if you only want a taste, they come at two pounds for 39 cents.

Large, juicy grapes are way down in price this weekend. I couldn't resist buying some at two pounds for 33 cents.

Ever try grapes when you've got a sore throat? They go down well!

Rhubarb? Yes—I really did find some rhubarb! It is California and hothouse growth, but who cares when it's rhubarb? What could be tastier at Sunday dinner than a tempting rhubarb pie? Nothing, especially when the price of the rhubarb is only 25 cents a pound.

While on the subject of Sunday dinner, we could plan a scrumptious menu with a three-scrup, sweater, cap, mittens; crocheted dress and hat; sewn petticoat and blouse.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Swim, Do Knee Bends To Firm Flabby Thighs

Q. "Some time ago I broke my leg and had to stay in bed for a long time. My thighs grew very flabby. I am a teenager and am ashamed to wear shorts or go swimming. Could you give me some advice on how to make them attractive again?"

A. You will have to exercise. Why not take swimming lessons this winter? It would be a splendid exercise for firming without too much strain. You won't mind a class for women. You might also do deep knee bends.

Rise high on your toes. Keep your heels off the floor as you bend your knees all the way down. Slowly straighten the knees. Continue. Keep your back straight. If necessary, place one hand on the wall for balance.

Q. "I cannot wear the newest style in hats. I have a wide face and when a hat comes down over my forehead it makes me look square. I hate to be out of style. What would you suggest?"

A. The styles in hats this year have great variety. Many of them are worn off the forehead. Select one of those and do not worry if it does not look as different as some of the others. I still think that hats should be becoming and flattering.

Q. "I know that my figure looks horrible. Please tell me just what is wrong with my measurement. My measurements are: bust 32, waist 25 and hips 37 inches."

A. There is too much difference between your hips and your bust for a good figure. Take bust developing and hip-slimming exercises.

Q. "I am 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 120 pounds. I feel terribly fat. How much overweight am I? I am 14 years old."

A. Do you want to be skin and bones? You are about five to 10 pounds underweight.

Q. "My beauty problem is that I have natural blond hair and very dark brows. This gives me a hard, bleached look. I have tried using a brown eyebrow pencil but this only makes the brows look darker. I was going to bleach them with peroxide but some said that this would make my brows fall out."

A. There is a feeling that repeated use of peroxide discourages the growth of hair, but so far as I know, there is no scientific backing for this belief. I am sure that the brows will not fall out. I wonder if you are not too self-conscious about the contrast between your hair and brows. It sounds very striking and attractive.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PLANTATION GINGERBREAD

Two and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspoons soda, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cup softened butter, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup hot water.

Sift first 6 ingredients together. Combine butter, sugar and egg; beat 4 minutes. Add molasses to sugar mixture. Blend in flour mixture and hot water alternately. Pour into prepared 9x5-inch cake pan or small angel food pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F) 50 to 55 minutes. When cool, garnish with whipped cream flavored with brown sugar and pecan halves.

Counting her blessings after a rich and full life, a thankful Brantford woman recently celebrated her 79th birthday by sharing a gift with children in India and Korea. Sending five dollars to the Unitarian Service Committee, 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa, she added: "After seeing the great need in the different countries, I feel I must give a little toward such a needy cause."

About open house:

This will be our first Christmas in our new home. My husband and I would like to have open house for his employees and co-workers some time during the holidays. Would it be better to write an informal note with our Christmas cards, asking them to stop in any time, or would you suggest that we set aside a certain day? In that case, should we Louise Davis send out invitations and how should they be worded? Would from 7 to 9 p.m. be long enough? Would sandwiches, cookies, nuts and punch be sufficient to serve?

Clubwomen's News

Hospital Improvement—At a recent luncheon meeting of Oak Bay Lady Laurier Club, Mrs. C. C. Warren spoke on improvements made at Gorge Road Hospital. She stressed the fact that everything is being done to rehabilitate as many chronic cases as possible that are admitted to the hospital and that improved facilities are making it possible for many patients to live more comfortably. She was introduced by Mrs. R. H. Craig and thanked by Mrs. H. H. Hollins.

Louise Davis answers:

If you ask the people just to drop in during the holidays, I am afraid they might interpret the invitation as half-hearted, and few, if any, would come, especially during that busy season. Unfortunately, but understandably, people don't make calls these days as they once did. They would rather have you specify a date, so I suggest that you entertain with an "at home." As to the invitations, it is optional whether to include them with your Christmas cards or issue them separately. If you plan to have an evening gathering, I suggest you say "from 8 to 10." The earlier hours might indicate that you would be serving a buffet dinner or supper. You might like a Saturday or Sunday afternoon even better, say from 4 to 6. In either case, sandwiches, cookies, nuts and punch will be enough.

Crumble one Oxo cube with one tsp. flour. Add cup cold water, bring to boil. Simmer 5 minutes.

HADASSAH CONVENTION

Israeli Children Given Progressive Education

TORONTO (CP)—A senior member of the Women's International Zionist Organization said this week that WIZO is the bridge in Israel between every wave of immigration and every section of population.

Mrs. Fay Grove, of Israel, chairman of the organization and culture department, said WIZO has established 200 kindergartens and schools where Israeli children are being taught a modern and progressive way of life.

She told members of Canadian Hadassah at their 17th biennial convention that they have played a great role in integration by establishing women's clubs throughout Israel.

"These clubs bring relief, instruction and social nearness to immigrant women by breaking their isolation," she said. She urged Canadian Hadassah to take a greater share and interest in integration of immigrants in Israel.

PROGRESSIVE SCHOOL
The Hadassim Children's Village has one of the most progressive schools in the world, said its director, Mrs. Rachel Shapiro of Israel.

The school, supported by Hadassah for 10 years, has primary and secondary education for children and a normal school for its graduates.

Students work on a project basis. No marks are given.

MOSTLY SEWING

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—Sewing classes were particularly popular as persons registered for winter evening classes here. Four sewing classes were established but initial registration for the cooking class was light.

Each student proceeds at his natural rate, but each must complete a certain amount of work each year to continue with his classmates.

The village houses orphans who live in family units on the campus along with a counselor and house mother or father.

Mrs. Shapiro said the village is self-sufficient because students spend part of each day working in the fields. Those from destitute families are paid for their labor.

Members adopted a budget of $2,250,000 for aid to Israel at earlier sessions Monday.

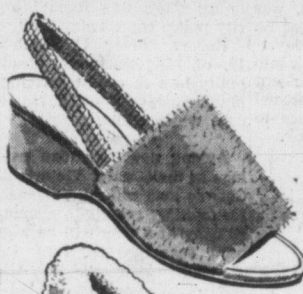

Chapter members of Canadian Hadassah from across the country were advised to seek new and interesting techniques in fund-raising by Mrs. H. Sokolov of Winnipeg.

MAKING HISTORY

Margaret Aitken, 49 (left) Progressive Conservative member of Parliament and a Toronto newspaper columnist, is the first woman chairman of a standing committee in the House of Commons. 'Janey Canuck's' Courtroom Soon To Be Thing of Past EDMONTON (CP)—Demolition crews this winter will tear down the building housing the courtroom in which Mrs. Emily Murphy, the Commonwealth's first woman magistrate, presided for 15 years.

Mrs. Murphy became known as Janey Canuck for her crusade against the drug traffic, and her leadership in the drive to establish the legal right of women to become members of the Senate at Ottawa.

When she died in 1933, two years after giving up her post, women she had sentenced to prison came to lay a single rose on her coffin. Her husband, Rev. George Murphy, died in Vancouver in 1949 at 93, oldest Anglican clergyman in Canada.

Mrs. Murphy's part in the "persons" case is history. After two years of litigation, she and other women won a decision from the judicial committee of the privy council in London that women are persons in the language of the British North America Act.

STAINCH CAMPAIGNER

She is perhaps best remembered however for her fight against narcotics addiction. In the old Edmonton police station she handled many cases, from which she drew material for her book, The Black Candle.

Better Appearance Begins With Facing Faults

One of the first steps to real beauty is a realistic understanding of your assets and liabilities. The woman who badly needs diet and exercise but is satisfied with her appearance after she has been fussy with her hairdresser about the exact placement of one curl is fooling only herself. The woman with a bad make-up job and stringy hair who believes the salesgirl who tells her that one of the new berets makes her look like an angel is also practicing the complicated art of self-deception. In order to discover how to improve ourselves (a process that should never end), we must ruthlessly face our shortcomings. This means that we can't afford to preen ourselves because we were blessed with naturally curly hair, trim ankles or long eyelashes. In addition to these, we may have spreading hips, three chins and a skin that's pasty from too much pastry. Once we face the liabilities, we can do something about them.

It's a universal experience. You get the much-needed and long-delayed permanent only to discover that your head resembles a pot scraper. The only solution seems to be to wear your hat day and night. Well, something can be done about it. A haircut helps, of course. But if it's too short to trim, then attack your frizzy mop with a stiff brush and brush away with your head down. Brush until your arm aches. Use a light, greaseless hairdressing before you brush and that will help to tame the frizz. After two or three shampoos, the permanent will soften up and begin to look natural. And next time, have your hair cut after the permanent rather than before. That will take care of all those frizzy ends.

Developing your own style of beauty means that you study yourself with care, choose clothes and make-up most flattering to you, and, above all, never copy the current movie rage. It also means that you learn that what may be great for your best girl friend is poison for you. If pink flatters her but makes you look like something just helped from her coffin, pass up pink. It may be that blue does wonderful things for you. In that case, despite your secret yearnings for pink, learn to wear blue.

CLUB WOMEN'S NEWS

Linens—At a recent meeting of the Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary, Mrs. P. J. Woodley and Mrs. A. Hamilton were named to purchase linens for the hospital. Miss Verna Beek presided and gave a report on the conference of hospital auxiliaries in Vancouver. Mrs. H. H. Kolb gave a final report on the carnival bazaar and said $1,701 was realized. The concert for the patients this evening was discussed and Mrs. R. Rain announced the Studio Concert Group would perform. Plans were made for the annual Christmas party for the patients on Dec. 21 and for the "open house" and the annual meeting of the auxiliary in January.

Around the World—Members of the Soroptimist Club of Victoria and their friends, gathered recently at the home of Miss

Nell Jones, Blackwood Street, where Miss Ethel Bruce, an honorary member was guest speaker. During the past few years Miss Bruce has travelled more than 110,000 miles, mostly by air, in journeys that have circled the world two times. She has had many interesting and amusing experiences. She was thanked for her informative talk by Miss Hilda Hesson. Later in the evening refreshments were served from a table centred with autumn-toned chrysanthemums. Mrs. J. U. Kimmitt and Miss E. R. Walker, social conveners, were in charge. Quick sugar buns make breakfast a treat. Stir a little sugar and a generous handful of sweet chewy raisins into biscuit mix. Add milk as for drip biscuits, and drop by spoonful onto a greased baking sheet. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar before baking.

Hospitality By Means Of Tea Party

Rediscover the pleasant sociability of afternoon tea as a means of entertaining graciously, easily and inexpensively. With the influx of holiday visitors anticipated, a tea party is a delightful way to introduce a stranger to your circle of friends. It's often simpler to arrange a tea than a luncheon or dinner party.

Although there are different ways to set a tea table, they have much in common. Namely, the table should be a pleasure to look at and arranged for smooth and convenient service. Tea should be hot and properly made and the food light and not highly seasoned.

Unless the party is quite large and formal, you, as the hostess, preside at the table and it's not necessary to offer other beverages in addition to tea.

HARMONIZING EFFECT

If as a bride you received a silver tea service, by all means polish it up and use it. But if not, don't hesitate to use other types of tableware: china, glass or earthenware are appropriate. Just make sure table linens and serving plates harmonize with the service.

Undercloths can be made or bought in many colors; under a white lace cloth a navy blue undercloth makes a good background.

An undercloth can cover just the table top or be sized to fall to the hem of the main tablecloth, but in the latter case, you must make sure the undercloth doesn't show below the hem.

Tea party tables lend themselves to dramatic floral arrangements. You don't have to keep them low because the guests won't be seated at the table. Red and white flowers in a tall arrangement placed on one side of the service are attractive at this season of the year.

At one end of the table is the tea tray. Usually this is most convenient if placed near the kitchen door. Plan the tray so that guests receive their filled cup at your left. On the tray go the teapot, a pot of boiling hot water, for those who prefer weak tea, sugar, creamer, a plate of lemon slices with fork, a waste bowl.

ARRANGEMENTS

The tray is not covered by a cloth. Cups and saucers with teaspoons in place parallel to the handles are arranged within easy reach to the left and in front of the tray. Most authorities advise against stacking cups and saucers.

If the party is large, additional cups and saucers are brought as needed from the kitchen or placed on a serving table to right of the hostess.

Opposite the tea tray place a stack of tea plates. Next to those go medium-size serving platters holding thin, small sandwiches and bite-size cakes. On most occasions, these accompaniments can be eaten with the fingers. That eliminates the need for forks.

As the guest circles the table, she picks up a plate first, then a tid-bit, then a napkin. Napkins are folded in triangles and placed one on top of the other.

Another way is to stack plates with a folded napkin between each plate so that the guest picks up both at the same time.

THE HOSTESS

Last stop is made where the hostess is seated. She asks how the guest likes her tea and pours her a cup. It's a good idea to provide some space where guests can place used plates and cups. This might be a cleared buffet, a serving table or small tables placed near chairs.

One advantage to a hostess of a tea party is that preparations can be made in advance.

Thin sandwiches can be made in the morning and kept fresh, wrapped in waxed paper or foil. Plain bread and butter is adequate. For "something different" you might try a spread made with chopped watercress moistened with mayonnaise or cream cheese.

Tiny cookies and fancy little cakes can also be made or purchased ahead of time.

Your cookbook will tell you how to brew the tea from tea leaves and boiling water. If you're going to serve more cups of tea at one time than your pot will hold, make additional tea in a fresh pot.

An attempt to add new leaves to the old ones is somewhat less than satisfactory.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Fresh Grapes—Make a Pretty Center—Small clusters of delicate Seibel grapes, make an interesting and colorful garnish for a platter of roast turkey, duck or chicken.

Instant mixed onion is particularly good in dips and spreads. This moisture-free onion gives mild, true flavor, with no last-minute bother and no "onion" hands.

Fill a candy dish with light or dark raisins for nibblers, and they'll disappear fast as candy. Don't let the youngsters know they're good for them!

Ripe olives substitute nicely in any recipe calling for mushrooms. Better yet, simply add ripe olives as well as mushrooms.

YOUNGEST OBSERVERS

MYRTLE, Ont. (CP). — Martha Anne Lawrence, 5, and her brother Tommy, 7, are probably the youngest in the ground observers' corps in Ontario. They learned aircraft recognition from their mother, Mrs. James Lawrence.

Mrs. Lawrence, 38, became assistant district supervisor for this area northeast of Toronto four years ago when her husband, an aeronautical engineer and insurance inspector, gave up the post.

A registered nurse and former pilot, Mrs. Lawrence is one of the few to hold such a position with the ground observer corps in Ontario.

Black Retires in Gay Season

NEW YORK.—Girls who wear junior sizes will blossom in color at holiday parties this year.

Sparkling green, red and blue replace the perennial black for the gay season that starts with an old-fashioned Christmas and ends with a gala New Year's party. This is the first year in some time in which color has really taken over.

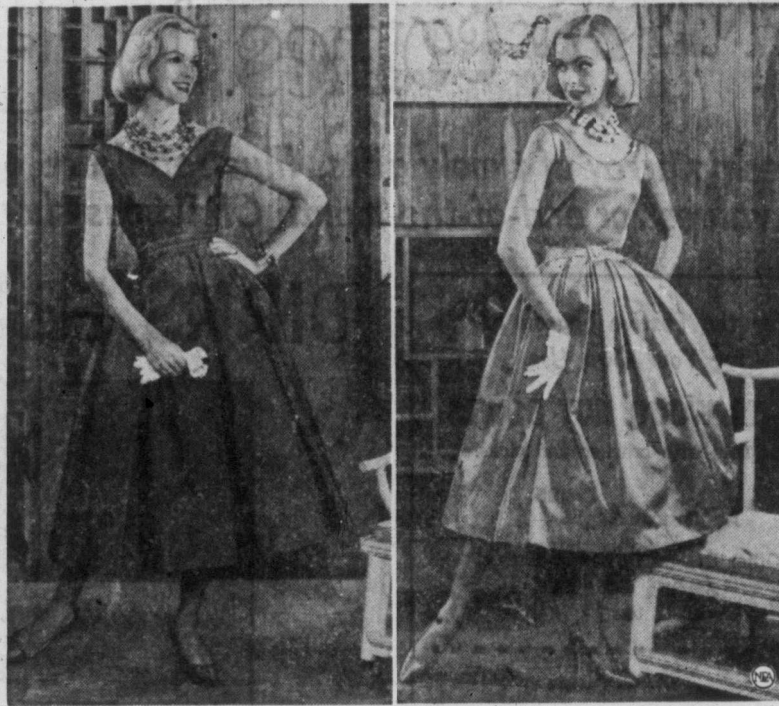

Though this is the year of the sheath in some shape or other, full and swishy skirts are reserved for parties where they seem to be exactly right.

The elegance of Chromspun satin shines (right) in a royal blue dress with camisole top. The skirt has fullness achieved with soft, unpressed pleats.

Either dress is correct for informal parties all through the holiday season.

Clubwomen's News

For Korea — Mrs. P. E. George, services at home and abroad convener, reported at a meeting of Navy League Chapter, IODE, that six sweaters and 12 nursery bags had been turned in for Korea, valued at $53.50, and that tobacco had been sent to the chapter's adopted patient in Veterans Hospital. Educational secretary, Mrs. C. Rea said toys and candy to the value of $40 had been sent to the adopted school at Moberly Lake. A sum of $100 was voted to secondary education; $10 to the centennial bursary; $2.50 to Mary Croft Memorial; $1 to the Peace Garden fund; $1 each to Municipal and National film funds and $10 to aid another chapter. Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley presided. Mrs. G. Downes, Empire and world affairs convener told of a recent stopover she made in Greenland en route overseas.

Comic Fashions—At a recent meeting of Canadian Daughters League, Assembly No. 5, a comic fashion show was held. Winners were Mrs. I. Hood and Mrs. F. Earl. Mrs. Ada Bone played the piano and sang. Refreshments were served. Plans were made for a church service at Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street, on Dec. 8 at 10.45 a.m.

Sack Line Not Only for the Slim; Shapeless Style Suits Weighty

PARIS (Reuters). — French fashions are not shown only on the young, lithe and slender.

Madame Mag Cournon, the heaviest mannequin in France, who tips the scales at 230 pounds, is wearing and modeling professionally some of the season's "sack" dresses.

"I am convinced," she says, "that women who like the shapeless shape best are those who have figures to match."

North America and Britain both cater for the larger woman in stores which specialize in appropriately styled outfits or in outside departments in the big stores. But until recently, stout French have been more or less neglected.

In the last year, however, a

French club named "The Sympathetic Club" and founded by Madame Cournon has been organized to help these women cope with their various problems.

Fashion matters are foremost on the list of problems of the thousand or so members who comprise the club. Unusually tall women as well as the plump are eligible to join the club.

Madame Cournon has established headquarters for the group at the Toutmain department store on the Champs Elysees, where she is employed as a mannequin.

Psychologically, new members are impressed with one of the club's important slogans: "Every stout woman has the makings of a Rubens." This thought is destined to remind each woman of the Dutch master's preference for big, buxom models, typified in so many of his great paintings.

TINY FEET

Madame Cournon has no complex about being overweight. Like many big women, she has slender and well-shaped calves and ankles, and skims through the Toutmain salons, showing the outside collection every afternoon; on disproportionately small feet. She believes implicitly in good grooming, and her own honey-colored hair is always short and impeccably styled.

Mrs. Jones Heads C.A.R.S. Auxiliary

At the annual meeting, held Wednesday afternoon at Red Cross House, Mrs. Owen Jones was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society (Victoria).

Other officers are Mrs. E. C. Carson, first vice-president; Mrs. Bruce Hutchison, second vice-president; Mrs. J. Jackson, secretary; Mrs. Bruce Humber, treasurer and Mrs. G. Humphreys, corresponding secretary.

The retiring president, Mrs. A. G. Styles, in her annual report noted that more than 1,000 visits were made to patients in their home during the year. Hampers and gifts had been distributed at Christmas-time and patients had been provided with transportation to the clinic.

Fund raising events during the year, reported by Mrs. Humber, were a rummage sale, a cooking school and the annual tea at Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Miss Susan Mackenzie, recently appointed physio-therapist at the CARS clinic, was introduced by Mrs. Jones. She gave an interesting talk on the history of physio-therapy, its methods of treatment and on new developments in this branch of remedial care.

At the conclusion of the meeting tea was served with Mrs. Gordon Cameron presiding at the tea table.

More Leaders Required To Tap Scout Potential

The number of Boy Scouts in Victoria district could be trebled if sufficient scout leaders were found, Vernon A. Ridgeway, retiring district president, said Thursday night.

Interviewed at the annual meeting of the Boy Scouts Association, Victoria District, Mr. Ridgeway said:

"We now have 3,000 scouts in our area, which extends to Sidney, Brentwood, Deep Cove and Shawnigan Lake. But we could handle 10,000 scouts if we only had the leaders."

Mr. Ridgeway said the outdoor activities of many scout and cub packs in Victoria district are limited because one man or woman is required to handle 30 or more boys.

Three-Deep

"The ideal from our point of view is one leader and two assistants for every 30 boys. That is what we call three-deep leadership. It is needed to keep the boys interested and get them out more. Putting in Scouting should be our objective."

In his second annual report, Mr. Ridgeway said the district had grown in strength during the past year, but the executive proposed to investigate the reasons for losses in various age brackets.

"Some of these losses occur between the wolf cub packs and the scout troops," he said.

On the financial side, Mr. Ridgeway reported a deficit of $2,160 on operating costs.

Below Average

"The fixed expenses that go hand in hand with numerical strength are uncontrollable. Although this district is operating below the Canadian average of about $6.50 per boy, the Community Chest has not been able to supply us with enough funds."

"There is no doubt we will either have to make drastic economies, or instigate a general assessment against all groups. The district has again failed to meet its provincial assessment."

He mentioned that the treasury had been boosted by $2,000 from "Apple Day," June 29, organized at three weeks' notice under the chairmanship of H. B. Twiss (newly-elected district vice-president).

Wiring Cost

Mr. Ridgeway said one reason for the deficit was that the district had to appoint a full-time caretaker at Camp Barnard, Sooke, because of vandalism.

"This entailed the additional cost of wiring the camp for electricity, as we could not expect a man to live there permanently under primitive conditions."

The retiring president noted that high scouting awards have been won by Victoria scouts during the past year, and the district was well represented at the Jubilee Jamboree in England and the 4th American Jamboree at Valley Forge.

67 Districts

The meeting extended a special welcome to Dr. D. F. Kidd, the provincial scout commissioner from Vancouver.

"We have 67 districts in B.C. today and, try as I will, I cannot attend them all," Dr. Kidd said. "But the history of scouting in Victoria is long and honorable and I felt I had to be here tonight."

He paid tribute to provincial scout president Stuart Keate as

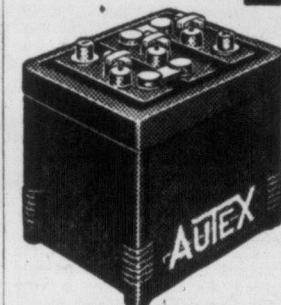

"a most able man who gives his time generously to the movement and who has the broad provincial outlook."

Dr. Kidd spoke of small, isolated groups in B.C., particularly in the northern districts, which are a credit to scouting.

He praised the Whitehorse (Yukon) troop for "vigorous enterprise in the scouting field" and called attention to a Buddhist troop of Japanese

KAPITZA AND "OLD SCHOOL TIES"—At Cambridge in happier (for England) days are, left to right, P. M. S. Blackett, now president of the British Association for Advancement of Science; Dr. Kapitza; French physicist,

P. Langevin; Sir Ernest Rutherford, director of the Cavendish Laboratory, and C. T. R. Wilson, Blackett, Rutherford, Wilson are Nobel Prize winners. (NEA Photo.)

'KAPITZA WAS HERE'

Crocodile Reminds Britons Of Scientist's Hypocrisy

(Second of Two Dispatches)
By TOM A. CULLEN

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. (NEA)—An eight-foot crocodile with gaping, saw-toothed jaws carved on the brick wall of a Cambridge University laboratory, will remind Britons for generations to come that "Kapitza was here."

Yes, Dr. Peter Kapitza, the Russian scientist who designed Sputnik, very definitely was here. I found traces of him everywhere at Cambridge, where he spent 14 years doing atomic research at British government expense.

The fruit of that research is the Russian satellite now circling the globe at 18,000 miles per hour.

But to return to the crocodile—it was designed by Kapitza to adorn the entrance to the Mond Physics Laboratory, which was specially built for Kapitza to carry on his atom experiments.

Its meaning? To friends Kapitza explained, "The crocodile is the only animal that cannot turn its head; therefore, like science it must go forward."

But the crocodile has other meanings. With its false teeth, this ugly animal has become a universal symbol of hypocrisy, a meaning not lost upon the Russians who call their satirical magazine, Krokodil. Could it be that, in adopting this mascot, Kapitza was poking sly fun at his British hosts? Was this his way of letting the British

He looked like one of those slightly comic heroes of the early Russian films in which a concrete mixer brings the boy and girl together, an impression heightened by the fact that he is slightly cross-eyed.

No wonder Cambridge called him the "Mad Mullah." He was also notoriously absent-minded, according to Dr. David Shoenberg, the present director of the Mond Laboratory.

In his off-duty hours the Mad Mullah was a speed demon and early hot rod enthusiast. He was probably the first Cambridge scientist to drive a Scott motorcycle, and he still retains a scar under his chin as the result of a crack-up.

Whatever Cambridge may think of Kapitza as a man, it has nothing but awe and respect for him as a scientist. "A highly original mind," is the verdict of Dr. David Shoenberg, the director of the Mond Laboratory, who worked as a graduate student with Kapitza.

The late Sir Ernest Rutherford, the great British physicist, early recognized Kapitza's genius and treated him almost as an adopted son.

An Opportunist

Yet signs of Kapitza's political instability were not lacking. He was the type of man who, if anything, is more dangerous than the dedicated Communist; he was politically a moral, an opportunist, a fence-jumper.

This side of Kapitza's character was described to me by the curator of the Cavendish Laboratory museum, G. D. Crowe.

"I remember him telling me how he saw his own father shot in cold blood by the Bolsheviks," Crowe recalls. "His father was a Czarist general." When Crowe asked him if his father's execution hadn't turned him against the Bolsheviks, Kapitza's reply, which has the ring of prophecy, was, "I'm with whoever I happen to be with at the time."

SCOUT ACTIVITIES

By FREEMAN KING

SALT SPRING ISLAND GROUP: A rifle club has been formed for the First Ganges Scout Troop by Constable R. E. Dodds, RCMP.

Lt.-Col. D. G. Crofton will be range officer. He will have three assistants. Only 22 rifles, supplied by the Salt Spring Rifle Club, will be used. The range will be at the gravel pit on Rainbow Road.

Dominion marksman 22 sporting rifle competition prizes are available with pins, shields and crests offered in various classes.

COWICHAN DISTRICT: J. S. Lawrence, president of the Cowichan Boy Scout Association, will speak at the district conference at Nanaimo, Dec. 1. Alan McInnes, district commissioner, also will speak.

W. R. Hunt, scoutmaster of the First Duncan Troop, has left the district and will take over the Scoutmaster's duties at Youbou.

There will be a special meeting of the parents of the St. John's Cubs and Scouts on Monday at 8 p.m. in the St. John's Church Hall. A new group committee will be formed.

False Claims Cost $48,360 To Alberta

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government may have lost as much as $48,360 to persons making false claims for $20 oil and gas royalty dividends.

The provincial auditors department said Thursday 532 applications, involving 2,418 separate dividend payments, have been turned over to the attorney-general's department for investigation.

Assistant Provincial Auditor D. B. Barr said any application showing an irregularity was put aside for investigation. All might not have been illegal, he said.

The Edmonton Journal says a half-dozen persons are believed to have received 20 or more dividends each and one man, using the same name on every certificate, is reported to have obtained more than 60.

The newspaper says there have been 76 convictions and about 40 persons are serving jail terms for dividend infractions.

Sexy Presley Album Brings New Protest

HALIFAX (CP)—Halifax radio stations have joined in the criticism of Elvis Presley's album on Christmas carols.

Station CHNS said it is considering Presley's latest effort, and one disc jockey speculated "sexy overtones" have doomed his "Silent Night" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem." A spokesman said, however, the rock-and-rollish "Santa Bring My Baby Back to Me" probably will be played.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by club readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 10-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Linda Lofgren, aged 10, of Pewaukee, Wis., for her question:

Is It True That Giraffes Have No Vocal Cords?

This is a very popular question with Andy's readers. If you are one who asked it, please don't feel glum because your question was not selected. Here is the answer, settled once and for all. Now get busy and ask Andy another one. If you are properly curious you still have as many questions left as there are giraffes in Africa.

The rumor that the giraffe is mute may go back to 46 B.C. In that year Julius Caesar brought one of the tall beauties from Africa to Rome. The Romans thought the strange animal must be the child of a father leopard and a mother camel. They named him the camelopard. Their gentle captive made no comment. For then, as now, a giraffe very, very rarely has anything to say.

Some people say that the giraffe has no vocal cords in that long neck. This is not quite true. The giraffe has undeveloped vocal cords. Some time ago, a tall bull giraffe died at the New York Zoological Park. An autopsy was performed on the body. A set of undeveloped vocal cords was found in the throat.

Naturalists have observed the tall fellows closely in the wild. They bear out the idea that the giraffe is not entirely mute. He can express himself when the need arises—which is usually when he is in trouble.

Mrs. Giraffe is a very good mother and watches over her six-foot youngster with tender care. She may be mute most of the time. She may have undeveloped vocal cords and people may say this means she cannot possibly make a sound. But this loving mother certainly finds a voice when junior wanders into danger. She calls him back with a gentle moo, rather like a cow calling her calf.

Junior, too, has a voice when he needs one. He protests loudly when captured. He also protests when run down by a rider on horseback. The noise he makes is blaar, blaar, very like the voice of a captured steer. Since Papa Giraffe can moan and moo, this means that each member of the giraffe family has a voice when needed, even though his vocal cords are not properly developed.

To this day, the scientific name for the common blotched giraffe of Africa is Giraffe Camelopardalis. This dates back to Julius Caesar's African captive. Though the tall fellow has no comment about this fancy name, Andy is sure that he prefers his everyday name of giraffe.

Delinquency Roots Start 5 Years Before Adolescence, Says Gillie

Roots of probable delinquency are established five or six years before adolescence is reached, Bernard C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, told Oak Bay Kiwanis Club Thursday.

"The signs are often recognizable at that age, but little is done about it. Later in the teens, when overt acts are committed, it may be too late to correct earlier oversights," he said. Mr. Gillie heads a committee appointed by the city welfare council which is investigating Greater Victoria's juvenile delinquency problems.

He said punishment "has its place" in control of juveniles, but should be used only as a deterrent, not as an adult "means of revenge."

A 45-page committee report will be presented to the welfare council Monday Mr. Gillie said.

REHEARSAL PLANNED

Queen's Yule Broadcast First on TV

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth will rehearse her first television Christmas broadcast to the Commonwealth and a make-up expert will be in attendance, the BBC announced today.

Her broadcast will coincide with the 25th anniversary of King George V's first radio message to the Commonwealth.

The Queen will speak about a minute after 3 p.m. London time—for between seven and nine minutes. On television she will be preceded by a 30-minute program narrated by Sir Laurence Olivier and beginning at Westminster Abbey. The theme will be 25 years of royal broadcasts and the changes which have taken place in the Commonwealth during that time. The radio broadcasts will have the same theme.

The Queen will be seen seated at a desk in the library at Sandringham. She will be alone. Telecordings of the broadcast will be flown to Canada and Australia shortly after the broadcast.

Permanent TUTS Home Planned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Theatre Under the Stars should be in a new, permanent home in time for the 1959 season—and protected against rain.

That was the assurance Thursday from Dorwin Baird, new president of Vancouver Civic Theatre Society that runs TUTS. It came on the heels of Wednesday's annual meeting at which retiring president W. L. Waidie pinpointed what had to be done if TUTS is to continue. It has lost $69,000 in the last five years, $11,000 in the 1957 season.

Mr. Baird said a committee will be functioning before the end of December to look for the best possible site for TUTS with some form of protection from the weather for that site. The new TUTS centre is expected to cost $500,000.

CN Strives to Resume Caribbean Ship Run

HALIFAX (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, said Thursday night "every effort" is being made to restore the Caribbean service of the strikebound CNS fleet at an early date.

He announced his determination to resume operation in a telegram sent to the captains of the eight freighters, now tied up in Halifax harbor.

Mr. Gordon's wire was prompted by a telegram sent to him Wednesday by 73 officers, who called for an immediate restoration of service and said they are prepared to serve under Trinidad registry.

Transfer of registry from Montreal to Trinidad followed rejection by the Seafarers' International Union (CLC), representing 220 CNS sailors, of a company offer of a 15% wage increase. The SIU called the strike July 4 to back demands for a 30% increase.

Civic Centre Designed For Metropolitan Area

The Cathedral Hill development plan of the Capital Region Planning Board was designed to serve as a civic centre for a metropolitan area, not for Victoria alone.

The point was brought out Thursday night by W. Lougher, Goodey, one of the CRPB planners, during a panel discussion sponsored by the Victoria Branch, Community Planning Association of Canada.

The discussion on the proposed civic centre drew a crowd of 90 to Business and Professional Women's Clubroom. In the audience were local architects, aldermen, councillors from surrounding municipalities, deputy minister of municipal affairs, J. E. Brown, and Public Works Minister W. N. Chant.

The meeting culminated with an almost unanimous motion that the provincial government be asked to vote funds at the next session of the legislature and commence construction "without delay" of the proposed new courthouse on the Cathedral Hill site.

The statement by Mr. Lougher-Goodey was the first intimation that the CRPB plan for a new city hall on the model area had taken the projected needs of surrounding municipalities into account.

The meeting heard a panel discussion on the merits of the proposed development. Sharing the talk with Mr. Lougher-Goodey were city lawyer Alan Baker and CRPB director, Brahm Wiesman.

SLIDES SHOWN

Moderator was Times associate editor Arthur Stott. Slides of the project were shown, and the audience later was broken into discussion groups which formulated questions.

The various groups studied a large table model of the eight-acre site facing Christ Church Cathedral.

Mr. Lougher-Goodey said: "Without a civic centre, a city does not live. It should be a place to go to, not to go through. The grouping of public buildings represents a financial gain to a community.

"This will be the first civic centre in Canada, if we do this. Have the citizens the courage to do this thing?"

Mr. Baker said a new courthouse is a prime need.

"If it can be part of a civic centre, so much the better."

The old courthouse, filled with irreplaceable records is a fire trap and in dangerous condition, he said.

He said half of Victoria lawyers favor the cathedral site for the new courthouse.

Mr. Wiesman said in the last 20 or 30 years "we have not taken much care in the siting of our public buildings."

The community needs a new courthouse and a new city hall and there was no finer way of locating them than grouping them.

The Cathedral Hill site was "eminently suitable" because it is available, and half-owned by the province.

The cathedral and the Power Commission building already form the nucleus of a civic centre, he said.

Mr. Stott wondered if there was merit in a proposal by Charles Nelles, Saanich council candidate, that the city hall should be located on North Douglas. It was suggested this might be more suitable in the event of a municipal union.

But the panel appeared agreed the cathedral site would still be the best location.

Mr. Wiesman added that one effect of the location would be to anchor the city centre. It would stimulate building in the south end and be in the interests of the city, retard the northward spread and keep the downtown area more compact.

Architect Rod Clark wondered whether a civic centre could be successful without the acceptance of the whole Greater Victoria community.

"The people will get used to anything. If they see it, they will like it," said Mr. Baker.

Colorful Ceremony to Mark Bridge Opening Saturday

Final touches on the new Point Ellice Bridge were to be completed at 3 p.m. today with paving of approaches at west end. Ceremonies opening the $682,934 span are set for 2 p.m. Saturday. A parade from City Hall will mark the event. The ribbon-cutting ceremony takes place at the east end of the bridge. Mayor Percy Scurrell will unveil a plaque and Charles Banfield, pioneer Victoria West resident, will cut the ribbon. Guests, including old-timers who were involved or suffered loss when the original bridge collapsed, will proceed to Victoria West Community Hall from the ceremony, for a reception. The bridge was closed to traffic June 17. For other stories concerning its construction and history, see Pages 10 and 11. (Daily Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

IKE'S TRIP TO FARM APPROVED BY DOCTORS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower set out by automobile today for a weekend or more at his Pennsylvania farm at Gettysburg in a new demonstration of recovery from his mild stroke. Eisenhower went with full approval from his doctors, the White House said. But it was emphasized that "the road to recovery still stretches well into the future."

Amalgamation Looms as Big Election Issue

But Outer Areas Holding Back

By PETE LOUDON

The question of amalgamation has been definitely thrown into the year-end election picture in Greater Victoria, but there were doubts today that all voters will get a chance to express an opinion.

City council decided late Thursday to submit a referendum on a proposal to have a royal commission investigate the plan.

But in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt there was a good deal of hedging today on whether similar steps would be taken when their residents go to the polls.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said: "There is obviously no time to give this matter proper consideration, print ballots and be ready for a Dec. 12 referendum."

The matter will be discussed at council level, he said, and added:

WHEN WE'RE READY
"When we're good and ready we'll ask for it, if we think it's necessary."

It was learned there definitely is time for any of the three municipalities to hold a referendum Dec. 12 if they wish.

Under the Municipal Act, a by-law is required. Two special meetings of the council could be held with one day intervening, which would permit passage of the by-law. This would leave eight or nine days for printing of ballots. Victoria plans to have its ballots ready on time after approving the referendum Thursday.

At least one Esquimalt councillor was expected to vote against the plan.

5 Killed, 15 Injured In U.K. Hospital Blaze

MAIDSTONE, England (Reuters)—A fire chief and four firemen were killed today when a 50-foot high water tower crashed down on flaming buildings at a mental hospital.

Firemen, police and civil defence workers burrowed through 250 tons of fallen masonry searching for four or five other persons believed trapped in the wreckage.

Fifteen persons, including firemen and mental patients, were taken to hospital.

NEW LIFE AHEAD

Brought by plane to a new land and a new life, 87 Korean orphans Thursday arrived in Portland, Ore., for placement in adoptive homes. They were among 575 Korean orphans flown to the United States by Harry Holt, Creswell, Ore., farmer. The children were cared for by Korean stewardesses as they waited for their new parents in the doorway of a Korean National Airlines plane. (AP Wirephoto.)

'T-BRICKS FOR KOREA'

$600 Overnight 'Breathtaking'

We're overwhelmed! The overnight response to "T-Bricks for Korea" was a breathtaking $600.25!

That sum represents 100 Victorians who were moved by the plight of sick children in a country they've never seen.

Consuls Hunt U.K. Heiress And Playboy

LONDON (Reuters)—British consuls in Spain, southern France and Tangier today sought the whereabouts of blonde, 18-year-old heiress Tessa Kennedy and London playboy Dominic Elwes.

Instructions for the search went out from the foreign office here to officials in Majorca, Marseilles, Madrid and Tangier. The couple were last seen together dining in London eight days ago.

A high court judge Thursday placed a ban on marriage between Miss Kennedy and Elwes, who is a friend of Princess Margaret.

They understood the need—and they acted. In one night they contributed 6,000 bricks to build an out-patients' TB pavilion for the "war babies" of Seoul who are alone in their struggle against a terrible disease.

They are alone, literally, in almost every case. Many thousands are orphans. Thousands more are left daily by widowed mothers who are making a pitiful attempt to feed their families by working in the fields and factories.

They can't even keep warm. Let alone find the strength to forage food in the streets and garbage bins.

Each morning last winter Korean orphans were found babies, abandoned and frozen, left to die by parents who had to find work.

ATOM ARMS ON PLANES FLYING OVER CANADA

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—United States bombers carry nuclear weapons on flights over Canadian soil, Hon. George Pearkes, minister of national defence, told newsmen when questioned today.

He stressed, however, that prior permission from the Canadian government must be obtained by the United States forces.

This permission was given sparingly, he said.

Sommers Case Delay Needless

Attorney-General Bonner said today he knows no reason why proceedings in the Sommers bribery case should be delayed.

He was commenting on the request for a remand made in Vancouver police court Thursday by Prosecutor Stewart McMorran.

Mr. McMorran said he wanted to discuss the case with Mr. Bonner and needed more time to study the evidence and interview witnesses.

"I don't know why he would have to talk to me," the attorney-general said. "He has all the evidence."

"As far as I am concerned, the prosecution will go ahead in the normal way."

LARGE STAFF

Mr. Bonner said a "large basic research staff" had been made available to the prosecutor to help prepare and interpret the evidence.

Mr. Bonner arrived back today from the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

Told by reporters that Alfred Bull, Q.C. counsel for one of the defendants in the conspiracy case, had said he couldn't understand the reason for the delay, Mr. Bonner replied:

"Frankly, I can't understand the delay either."

Meanwhile, the four defendants in the case have been remanded until Dec. 6.

Former Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers, and businessman C. D. Schultz, H. Wilson Gray and John M. Gray are free on bail in the meantime.

'Watch Our Show' B.C.'s Grey Cup Motto

TORONTO — The Western invasion for Canada's biggest one-day circus—the Grey Cup game between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats—descended on Toronto today in surprisingly quiet fashion.

Bomber fans trooped off their 16-car special train in reserved mood, compared to the hi-links in previous years.

But British Columbia officials not accepting any blame for the "bad performance" issued a warning: "Wait until OUR show hits the road!"

The B.C. delegation, which boasts the largest entry in the Grey Cup parade of any western province, promises to put on a real show Saturday. Vancouver expects to host the football classic next year and the province is pulling out all

5,000 Posts to Keep Dusk-to-Dawn Watch

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF ground observer corps will go on a special round-the-clock alert starting Saturday to watch for the possible re-entry into the atmosphere of the rocket which carried Sputnik I to outer space.

Roughly 5,000 observation posts scattered across Canada have been ordered to operate on a continuous basis until further notice. The defence department said special attention will be placed on dusk-to-dawn watches.

Defence Research Board officials said the rocket is expected to re-enter the atmosphere after Saturday, and would then burn up from the friction. The board asked for the special alert to obtain all possible information about the satellite's rocket should it enter the atmosphere over Canada.

The ground observer corps is made up of roughly 50,000 civilian spotters, all unpaid volunteers, who man observation posts. The corps was formed in 1951 and is controlled by the RCAF air defence command.

In Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Fred L. Whipple, observatory director at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, emphasized that it is impossible to predict at this time exactly where and when the rocket satellite might make its flaming plunge toward earth.

However, he said the rocket is travelling nearest its low point on its morning southwest-to-northeast passages. Today it was approximately 120 miles above the earth, on its morning passages over North America, or within 10 miles of its lowest, or perigee, point.

The Smithsonian sticks to its prediction of several days ago that Sunday, Dec. 1, is the most likely day for the descent of the rocket.

LONDON (AP)—Watchers reported seeing a ball of fire wheeling high over Wales and the west of England today.

"We think the ball of fire was really Sputnik II circling its orbit," a scientist said.

U.S. Test Satellite Rocket Will Be Seen

BALTIMORE, AP—The tiny, 200-mile, seven-foot-long, asbestos-plastic nose cone of the rocket will split in two and fall off, leaving the satellite exposed for the rest of its climb.

STARTS SPINNING

At about 287 miles, just short of orbital altitude, a spin table, propelled by tiny jets, will start the entire third stage with its still-attached satellite rotating. After the first complete spin, the supporting rods will snap out of the way and leave the shiny aluminum sphere ready for its spring into space.

The baby sphere will announce the path ground observers should watch to get a glimpse of the orbiting third stage rocket.

After about 40 miles of ascent of the planned orbital alti-

Russian Subs Have Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.), said today three days of testimony on the status of the United States missile program shows the situation "is worse than I thought it was."

... AMALGAMATION

didate, former councillor G. K. Sammon, publicly supported the holding of a referendum.

He said in view of the possible election by acclamation of council candidates this year, "the people of Esquimalt should know my views."

"I am strongly in favor of a referendum to permit a full investigation of all phases of amalgamation."

STILL TIME

"Despite Reeve Wurtele's remarks, it is not too late to arrange a referendum. It's a very simple question. The people of Esquimalt are ready to vote. To take the attitude we are not going to listen is like an ostrich burying its head in the sand."

Oak Bay Reeve F. E. Norris said he would not propose the holding of an immediate referendum to his council although he had no objection to one being held. "I have confidence in the sanity of Oak Bay electors to turn it down."

"I don't think the Junior Chamber of Commerce is a responsible body to dictate whether we should hold a referendum or not."

In Saanich, reeveship candidate Coun. Eugene Diespecker said he would oppose any motion at Monday's council meeting, for a referendum.

NOT FOR SAANICH

"Amalgamation is in the city's interests. But it is certainly not in the interests of Saanich. And I don't think Oak Bay and Esquimalt are going to change their minds."

He felt the time was too short to set a referendum for December elections.

The proposal for a Dec. 12 referendum was sent to each municipality by the Junior Chamber of Commerce amalgamation committee.

Chairman Eric Charman said he has asked to address Saanich Council Monday.

"I am confident Saanich will vote for it," he said this morning.

BACKED BY ASH

Reeve Arthur Ash indicated he would support a referendum and commended the Jaycees for their interest in "this most

Kefauver, a member of the Senate preparedness subcommittee conducting the missile-satellite investigation, said in an interview the testimony by defence officials, intelligence specialists and scientists added up to "shocking evidence of how the country has got behind" Russia in certain scientific-military fields.

Kefauver refused to go into detail.

DOMINANT POSITION

It was reported Thursday night that the subcommittee was told Russia now has a few submarines, possibly four, capable of firing a missile with a nuclear warhead up to 700-900 miles. Other vessels in Russia's sub fleet, estimated at about 450 boats, were reported being made ready for such missile equipment.

One informant said the reported Soviet sub-missile capability "means they are practically in a position to wipe out any major city on the eastern seaboard." He did not say, however, that any of the Russian subs now are stationed within missile range of the U.S. east coast.

The CIA was quoted by one source as reporting the Russian subs could launch missiles while still submerged. The weapons were described as the "cruise" type—presumably a guided missile slower than a ballistic missile.

important and pressing matter."

If the municipal councils wish to block an expression of public opinion, they can legally do so. The letter from the junior chamber stated consideration would be given to petitioning residents in each area to present their councils with signed demands that the referendum be held.

But councils would still have jurisdiction on the question if they decided to overrule such a request.

Victoria council was unanimous Thursday in calling for the referendum. The referendum would ask if voters favor a royal commission appointed by the province, with the costs shared by the province and the municipalities.

It has been indicated the provincial government will "give favorable consideration" to such a request.

TITO GETS BRUSH-OFF FROM SOVIET BOSSES

LONDON (UP) — Soviet Communist boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin failed today to send congratulatory messages to Marshal Tito on Yugoslavia's national holiday today, according to radio Moscow.

Radio Moscow said Khrushchev and Bulganin joined Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov in lavishly congratulating the leaders of little Communist Albania which also celebrated the anniversary of its "liberation."

But only Voroshilov signed the congratulatory message to Tito, according to the broadcast.

City 'Approves' Night Shopping At Christmas

City council went on record Thursday favoring evening shopping here before Christmas, but it left the decision to the merchants.

The resolution followed advice from Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs J. E. Brown that if stores open after 6 p.m., after Dec. 16, "it is understood" there would be no prosecution under the Municipal Act.

The act stipulates stores shall close at 6 p.m. and makes no provision for special concessions at Christmas.

City solicitor and prosecutor, T. P. O'Grady, warned council if any citizen lays a charge under the act, the law would have to be enforced, "barring intervention by the attorney-general."

EMBARRASSMENT?

"I cannot foresee any legal action. But there might be some embarrassment" if council actually exempted stores from the closing provisions of the act.

Ald. G. I. Edgelow felt council should approve an exemption.

"Just because the government boo-boos on this and put the responsibility on us, we shouldn't pass it on to the merchants. We should protect them, even if we have to stick our necks out to do it."

Bubbling Student Show Applauded at Oak Bay

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Times Drama Critic

Maybe it's television acting as preceptor and guide in the matter of entertainment standards; or maybe it's just that students and their teachers have a freer reign than was once the case.

At any rate school concerts seem to get better every year, at least in tempo and in the manner of their presentation.

Thursday night at Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium, Oak Bay Senior students staged their annual revue. In many respects and at its level this was a brilliant show.

From the simplicity and charm of the opening group of Christmas songs, directed by Miss Norma Douglas, to the imaginative and colorful finale, here was good entertainment; visually delightful, bubbling over with cheerful humor, often musically sound.

There were examples of outstanding individual talent—such as that of Dave Laundry who, besides taking a leading role in the play, both wrote and arranged modern idiomatic music and played it too, leaving a sizzling hot piano keyboard in his wake.

But in general this was not a star show; no high school revue should be that. It was a collective presentation by boys and girls interested in certain aspects of their school life and participating in it with uninhibited zest.

WELL ACTED

A play, "The Ass and the Philosophers," well acted and imaginatively presented by Miss K. B. Youdall, dance and song numbers, framed with originality, an acrobatic number, an amusing version of a radio show, barbershop quartet and western group were included in the program.

Two solo numbers were given; a sketch by talented actress Judy MacCormac and a well done Stan Holloway imitation of Sam Small by Michael Fairweather.

Real Christmas trees, artistically grouped and lighted, formed a setting for the finale which featured singing, dancing and band items. Of the latter, much can be said in praise, particularly of the "Jingle Bells Rhapsody."

Titled "A Winter Night's Dream," all players and dancers were dressed in colorful winter sports costumes and looked like a collection of gaily wrapped gifts under the Christmas trees.

The revue will be repeated tonight and is well worth a visit from anyone seeking a holiday mood.

Other directors of various numbers were Mrs. C. Vining, Miss C. M. Shaw, Gary Taylor, Eric Orme, Mrs. J. Kelly and E. J. Costain. The band was under direction of E. Eames.

MONTE ROBERTS

Wonder how many of the Cecils in town had trouble when they were of school age... wonder if, for instance, Cecil Rawlings and Cecil Rhodes, and Cecil Ridout and Cecil Clark, and Cecil Wyatt and Cecil M. Roberts (the Burdette Street Cecil M. Roberts) had to defend themselves, at the cost of many a black eye, from the taunting charge of "Cecil is a siss-ee"... wonder if it wouldn't have been easier on them if "Cecil" had been pronounced correctly as "Sess-ill"... wonder how many of the above Cecils were named in honor of Cecil Rhodes... and wonder how many, know that I, too, went through it all—having been christened Cecil Monteith Roberts, and having the scars to prove it.

Wonder how many people who phone 3-1121 know C & C Taxi service was named because of the two Cecils who founded it... and if anyone cares I'm called Monte, not Cecil, because my first boss, Cecil Scott of the Vancouver Province (lo, these many years ago) shared a Christian name with me... it was too confusing, so I was demoted to Monte... wonder how many old-timers around here remember Cecil Scott, and his twin brother... and how many new timers have a thought for nephew Steve Scott, ex-Cp here, now with the Toronto bureau...

Wonder why it is I never get tired of Bing Crosby and/or Perry Como singing "White Christmas"... yet I get tired of anything sung by Elvis Presley even before he "sings" it... wonder if Arthur Godfrey is still wearing the tie he charmed—literally—off my neck when I was so determined to NOT like him... wonder why it is the Old Pros in the entertainment world owe so much to their burlesque wheel training... and if there is any comparable ground for learning the genuine ad lib extant today... wonder if you are going to say "How about Hal March of TV's $64,000 question"... because he started in burlesque, too...

Wonder why it is no person named Trainor lives on Oliphant Street... it would be so nice to make a passing mention of the Oliphant Trainor... and why doesn't Ken Skace change his name slightly and move to Satellite Street?

Wonder if Gordon Petticrew has run out of new versions of old stories... and if Gordon Elworthy was really, truly sorry he had to decline the invitation to run for office as reeve of Oak Bay due to pressure of tow-boating business... and if Jack Cunningham, the SIU port agent at Vancouver, would tell a reporter what time it is, if asked politely...

Wonder how many loyal constituents will go along with me in the belief Winnipeg will win the Grey Cup Saturday?...

TOPICS OF THE DAY

In collision with a car in front of his home, Matthew Adirkhner, 551 Niagara, was treated for hip abrasions at St. Joseph's Hospital early today. He had been pouring gas into his own car when the accident occurred. Driver of the second car was reported by police to be Keszi George, 3138 Cook.

Hardy Frederick Crowe, 18, RCN, Garman Austin Dann, 20, RCN, and John A. Youson, 3230 Millgrove, each were fined $15 in city police court Thursday for being minors in possession of liquor.

In city police court today for being minors in possession of liquor.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—How long can a camel go without water? H. R.

A.—With a light load and travelling slowly, a camel can go without water from six to 10 days. Camel drivers force their animals to drink up to 15 gallons of water before trips by giving them salt to induce thirst.

Q.—Why were piglets worn in China? B. E.

A.—The queue, or pigtail, was worn as a mark of submission to the Manchu rulers. It is worn today only in remote corner villages.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

A minor who attempted to purchase beer in a government liquor store was fined $15 in city police court today.

Robert Sidney, C. Beadnell, 19, of 298 Beaumont, pleaded guilty to a charge of entering a liquor store without lawful excuse while a minor.

Among new Canadian paintings in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery loan collection available for monthly rentals to members Monday at 8 p.m. will be water color seascapes by Tony Law and bird paintings by Allan Brooks. Visitors are invited to view the collection.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Johannes De Ryk, 448 Moss, $35 for careless driving;

Frank Robert Carlow, 2601 Selwyn, $40, no insurance on car;

Derek Albert Verhey, 4011 Valley View, $10 for no horn on car, $25 for speeding in 30-mile zone;

John Waselenchuk, 3438 Salisbury, $20, for speeding in 30-mile zone;

Fred C. Doig, 2637 Fernwood, $10 for crossing double line;

Vollie McTavish, 670 Atkins, $10, licence plate obscured;

Dermot Augustine O'Kiely, 825 Poul Bay Road, $35 and licence suspended for careless driving.

21 Days in Jail For Car Prowler

Car prowler Darrell Hughes, RCN, was sentenced in city police court today to 21 days in jail for pilfering an alarm clock and wallet from a car parked on Broad Street early Thursday.

The Times erred Thursday in reporting his name as Darrell Pugh.

Hughes had pleaded guilty to theft under $50.

Sentence was lighter than it might have been "in view of the fact that you have a good character," Magistrate H. C. Hall told the accused.

TRANSFORMATION COMING

Link between old and new Government Houses will be formed by granite archway left standing in the rubble of disastrous fire last March. Steel framework of new mansion will begin to arise soon, following opening of first tenders today. Job may take a year to complete. (Times Photo.)

City Proposes Govt. House Subdivision

Proposal that the provincial government turn over a portion of Government House grounds to the city of Victoria for subdividing was placed before the cabinet today.

A brief from city council was presented by Ald. Elmer McEwen and city manager C. C. Wyatt.

The city wants to acquire the southerly slope of the grounds, comprising about 12 acres for a residential subdivision. The area fronts on Richardson Street.

AESTHETIC VALUE

A resolution approved by city council last July said a housing development would improve the appearance of the brush-covered area and be of "aesthetic" value to Government House.

The brief added these advantages:

1. Fire hazard created by the brush would be removed;
2. A new access road could be made to Government House grounds;
3. Present danger of flooding to houses below could be removed by installation of storm sewers on the rocky slope.

The city wants the government to turn over the property at a "nominal" cost. The brief claims any money the city would realize from the sale of lots would be used up to install new services, including underground wiring.

Library Pact Plebiscite Set for Dec. 12

A plebiscite on new financial arrangements and granting of voting rights to Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Central Saanich members of Victoria Public Library Board, was approved Thursday by city council.

The vote will be held at the civic election Dec. 12. As the question constitutes a money by-law, only voters who are property-owners are permitted to cast ballots.

Similar plebiscites have been recommended to the outlying municipalities.

ARMED GUARDS TO STAND OVER GOYA EXHIBITION

Victoria's famed art treasure, 81 sketches by Francisco Goya, will go on public display at the Art Gallery for two days next week.

The sketches, discovered by J. P. E. Klaverwyden and authenticated by Goya expert Dr. Herbert Paulus of Germany, will be displayed in a locked glass case, and guarded by two armed officers.

Dr. Paulus has valued the sketches at $465,000. At present photostatic copies are on display at the gallery, but the originals may be seen—through the glass and under the watchful eye of the guards—on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The gallery will extend its usual hours and open at 8.30 a.m., close at 9 p.m., on both days.

General admission will be $1 for adults; 50 cents for college students; 25 cents for students up to 16; for classes conducted by teachers, admission is free up to 12 noon.

City Council Calls Arena Investigation

City council Thursday ordered an investigation of complaints against Memorial Arena manager Joseph Dukowski.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay told council he had "a complete lack of confidence" in the manager following repeated cases of the "gross misinformation" to council from Mr. Dukowski.

A council committee on arena matters, including Ald. Arthur Dowell, Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. Austin Curtis, was authorized to go into the matter and report back.

FAULTY MIXTURES

Ald. Ramsay said Mr. Dukowski has not given council all the facts concerning past operation of the arena floor freezing system. The alderman felt the present depreciated condition of the floor was due to faulty mixtures of freezing agents in the past, which caused unwarranted corrosion.

He gave council examples of what he called "misinformation" supplied by Mr. Dukowski regarding other matters, including a press release the manager denied giving to the papers.

"He said he had never contacted the papers. Yet he cornered the two city hall reporters and pleaded with them to put his remarks in the paper," said the alderman.

He said Mr. Dukowski said in a broadcast all the concern

Trades Licence Fine

Willis Langford, 3309 Cedar Hill, was fined $25 in Saanich police court Thursday for operating a business at 3313 Cedar Hill without a trades licence. He paid an additional $10 for the licence.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1957 21

Chief's Family Gets $19,500

Award Follows City Accident

Damages totalling $19,500 were awarded in Supreme Court today to the widow and family of Chief Jasper Charles of the Becher Bay Indian tribe, who was killed in an auto accident almost two years ago.

Mr. Justice Harry J. Sullivan awarded $15,000 to the widow, Caroline Cecilia Charles of 7 Coopers Road, Victoria; $2,000 to her son Gordon, aged nine; $1,500 to Joseph, 11, and $1,000 to her daughter, Della Cecilia, 14.

Damages were awarded under the Families Compensation Act following court argument as to the value of Chief Charles to his family in monetary terms.

BOOM MAN

The chief, aged 55, was said to have been earning $13.40 a day as boom man for the Plummer Bay Sawmills Ltd. at the time of his death. He had earned $3,000 in 1953 and about $1,964 in 1954.

He died in St. Joseph's Hospital from head and internal injuries after his truck was hit by a car at Catherine and Johnson Streets on Dec. 27, 1955.

Force of the collision was so great that Chief Charles was thrown some distance from the truck, and died three hours later.

NO HELP

Mrs. Charles told the court she received no assistance from the Department of Indian Affairs and the proceeds from her husband's estate on the Beecher Bay Reserve had been exhausted.

She said her husband had always earned sufficient to provide her and their children with "adequate food and clothing."

The claim for damages on her behalf was made by J. V. Boys of Duncan, as administrator of Chief Charles' estate. He stated that the truck driven by the chief was so damaged that its value had been reduced from $450 to only $50.

NAVAL RATING

Defendants in the action were naval rating Peter Bell, driver of the car, and Lawrence Oliva, an employee of the renters, Benwell-McLeish Distributors (Vancouver Island) Ltd.

For the plaintiff, J. Alan Baker stated that Bell acquired the car with consent of Oliva and drove it at excessive speed while intoxicated.

He failed to apply his brakes or to slow or speed to avoid the collision.

Mr. Baker said Oliva was liable because he loaned the car to Bell without ascertaining that he had a valid driver's licence or sufficient training and experience to operate a vehicle.

"I consider $15,000 would be a reasonable compensation to the widow for the loss of her husband," he said.

Chinese Assaulted

Sam Tim, 23, of 554 Fisgard, who told police he had been beaten by two men, was given five stitches over his left ear at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday night.

Through a translator, Tim said he had been on his way to Victoria High School to attend a night class when two men, about 20 years old, grabbed him from behind and struck him.

REELECTED PRESIDENT

of Victoria West Community Association this week was Charles F. Banfield. It was the third honor bestowed on "the mayor of Victoria West" in recent weeks. He was chosen to cut the ribbon opening the new Point Ellice Bridge Saturday and his name will be adopted for a new elderly citizens' housing project on Styles Street.

Cruises Set For RCN Ships

An additional winter training cruise for two ships of the RCN Pacific Command was confirmed by the navy today.

HMC Ships Ontario, training cruiser, and Fraser, anti-submarine destroyer escort, will travel in company to San Francisco, leaving Canadian waters Dec. 13.

The Ontario, now in final stages of annual refit, will leave Esquimalt harbor Dec. 10 for Nanouse Bay, where she will "work up" and swing compass for two days. On Dec. 13, the Fraser will leave and meet the Ontario in Juan de Fuca Strait.

The two ships will arrive at San Francisco Dec. 16, leave the California port Dec. 18, returning Dec. 20.

Previously announced was a cruise for the Ontario to Balboa and San Diego, leaving Esquimalt Jan. 6. Proposed but not yet officially announced are cruises for the Ontario to Australia, and for the Fraser, with other ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, to the Orient.

B.C. Brief Packed Punch Says A.G.

Attorney-General Bonner said today the fiscal conference in Ottawa this week "could mark a turning point in federal-provincial relations."

Mr. Bonner, who attended the conference with Premier Bennett, Health Minister Eric Martin and other government officials, said he noted a different "atmosphere" because of the change in attitude of the federal government.

POSITIVE

"For the first time in my five and a half years' experience there was a positive approach to the problems provincial and municipal governments are facing in an era of development," the attorney-general said.

Mr. Bonner said the B.C. brief made more "impact" at the conference than that of any other province.

"Its effect on the federal treasury was not markedly different from the Manitoba and Saskatchewan representations."

"Our brief stressed national policy and was unique in its submission that technical university education should receive greater federal assistance."

NO ACTION

Mr. Bonner said B.C.'s only complaint after the conference was that no action was started on a works program to meet the threat of unemployment this winter.

"We were disappointed that phase was not seized upon by the federal government."

The attorney-general said the federal government gave no concrete answers to the major points in the B.C. brief.

But he said there "appeared to be overtones of interest" in the national development program proposed by B.C., particularly the suggestion that Ottawa should pay a far greater share of road-building costs.

Mr. Bonner said the proposal that the federal government help pay for secondary highways as well as the Trans-Canada Highway was contained in B.C. briefs to previous fiscal conferences.

Premier Bennett is not expected to return to his office until next week.

Mrs. David Turnbull, contralto, presented a series of songs at the recent meeting of the Royal Society of St. George in the Orange Hall. Accompanist was Mrs. Celia Fairhead.

Are You Going to Let Them Knock at a Locked Door?

The Community Chest of Greater Victoria represents 20 member agencies.

These agencies represent an untold number of people in distress.

An alarming percentage of these people will be knocking on a locked door if the Community Chest doesn't meet its campaign goal of $251,717 this year.

The campaign was opened in October with high hopes. It is stumbling now from lack of support.

Campaigners are working as hard as ever. More people are giving. But, unfortunately, they are not giving enough.

The chest total day is almost $29,000 short of the minimum sum to keep member agencies operating in 1958.

David Woodworth, whose Family and Children's Service applied for $50,000, explains it this way:

"Our budget was worked out very carefully. It is not a rubber budget. That $50,000 is a statement of our real need. If the amount is reduced because the chest can't meet its quota, it will mean a reduction of essential services to families and children of Greater Victoria."

An unexpected cut in the service's budget couldn't come at a worse time, he said. Unemployment in this area is reaching serious proportions and, as economists across the country are warning, the good times are coming to an end.

Many wage-earners, and many out of work, are going to require direct financial assistance from the Family and Children's Service.

They may need another equally important type of assistance, professional counselling.

The money is given to keep families eating; the counselling to keep families together.

"Unemployment is one of the main contributing factors leading to family disorganization," Mr. Woodworth said. "Whenever times get hard, tempers get short."

"This is one of the things we are most worried about," he said. "Family counselling is one of our greatest expenditures chargeable to the chest. If we do not get our $50,000, that service will have to be limited."

In other words, a home that is weakened from lack of money might tumble from lack of help.

If this happens in even one family, it will not be the fault of the Community Chest or the Family and Children's Service. It will be the fault of individuals and firms who would not give money to help their fellow man.

In an average year, the Family and Children's Service deals with 500 needy families. "When we set our basic estimates for 1958, we didn't anticipate the year would get tough," Mr. Woodworth said.

To the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, another chest agency, a financial cutback would probably mean a higher charge for services at the local clinic in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Arthritis and rheumatism strike the very old. Many cannot afford more than $1 week for two visits to the clinic.

"But if our chest quota isn't met, I don't see how we can go on treating patients at such a low rate," head physiotherapist Miss Susan Mackenzie said. "Those treatments cost us $3 each and we have 30 patients on the 'active' list this year."

So, in this case, less money will mean more pain.

That is the story for two of the Community Chest agencies. It ends the same way for the other 18.

The moral is that money can buy happiness and health—if you've got enough money. The Community Chest, at this point, hasn't.

But there is too much at stake to give up now.

That's why chest officials have designated the week ending next Thursday as "Finish the Job Week."

You can get behind this final push by clipping the accompanying donation form and:

1. Mail it with your contribution to the Community Chest, Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street;
2. Take your donation to collection centres at the Hudson's Bay Company, Eaton's, Woodward's, Oak Bay Pharmacy, Stanlake and Young in Keating or the Fish and Chip Shop at Saanichton;
3. Or phone 25121 and the donation will be called for.

The chest needs another $29,000. How much can you spare?

Bakery Boasts Luscious Fruit-Filled Yule Cakes

By PENNY SAVER

I took my first visit to the back of a bakery today and saw a Christmas cake being made. If you could see the material that goes into one of these superb cakes! Almonds, cashews, walnuts, sultanas, dark and light raisins, and sparkling cherries in red and green. Oh, yum!

The head baker explained to me that these cakes are called "Holiday" and what an apt title! Just biting into a piece and smelling all that wonderful aroma set me dreaming of the Yuletide which, after all, is not far away.

These cakes come in small and large sizes at $1.95 up. "King's Treasure." Sounds fascinating, doesn't it? Well, this is the name for a heavier

WHY GROW OLD?

Swim, Do Knee Bends To Firm Flabby Thighs

Q. "Some time ago I broke my leg and had to stay in bed for a long time. My thighs grew very flabby. I am a teenager and am ashamed to wear shorts or go swimming. Could you give me some advice on how to make them attractive again?"

A. You will have to exercise. Why not take swimming lessons this winter? It would be a splendid exercise for firming without too much strain. You won't mind a class for women. You might also do deep knee bends.

Rise high on your toes. Keep your heels off the floor as you bend your knees all the way down. Slowly straighten the knees. Continue. Keep your back straight. If necessary, place one hand on the wall for balance.

Q. "I cannot wear the newest style in hats. I have a wide face and when a hat comes down over my forehead it makes me look square. I hate to be out of style. What would you suggest?"

A. The styles in hats this year have great variety. Many of them are worn off the forehead. Select one of those and do not worry if it does not look as different as some of the others. I still think that hats should be becoming and flattering.

Q. "I know that my figure looks horrible. Please tell me just what is wrong with my measurement. My measurements are: bust 32, waist 25 and hips 37 inches."

A. There is too much difference between your hips and your bust for a good figure. Take bust developing and hip-slimming exercises.

Q. "I am 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 120 pounds. I feel terribly fat. How much overweight am I? I am 14 years old."

A. Do you want to be skin and bones? You are about five to 10 pounds overweight.

Q. "My beauty problem is that I have natural blond hair and very dark brows. This gives me a hard, bleached look. I have tried using a brown eyebrow pencil but this only makes the brows look darker. I was going to bleach them with peroxide but some said that this would make my brows fall out."

A. There is a feeling that repeated use of peroxide discourages the growth of hair, but so far as I know, there is no scientific backing for this belief. I am sure that the brows will not fall out. I wonder if you are not too self-conscious about the contrast between your hair and brows. It sounds very striking and attractive.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PLANTATION GINGERBREAD

Two and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons soda, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cup softened butter, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup hot water.

Sift first 6 ingredients together. Combine butter, sugar and egg; beat 4 minutes. Add molasses to sugar mixture. Blend in flour mixture and hot water alternately. Pour into prepared 9x9-inch cake pan or small angel food pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) 50 to 55 minutes. When cool, garnish with whipped cream flavored with brown sugar and pecan halves.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About open house:

This will be our first Christmas in our new home. My husband and I would like to have open house for his employees and co-workers some time during the holidays.

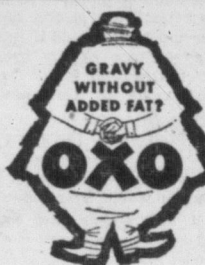

Would it be better to write an informal note with our Christmas cards, asking them to stop in any time, or would you suggest that we set aside a certain day? In that case, should we Louise Davis send out invitations and how should they be worded? Would from 7 to 9 p.m. be long enough? Would sandwiches, cookies, nuts and punch be sufficient to serve?

Clubwomen's News

Hospital Improvement—At a recent luncheon meeting of Oak Bay Lady Laurier Club, Mrs. C. C. Warren spoke on improvements made at Gorge Road Hospital. She stressed the fact that everything is being done to rehabilitate as many chronic cases as possible that are admitted to the hospital and that improved facilities are making it possible for many patients to live more comfortably. She was introduced by Mrs. R. H. Craig and thanked by Mrs. H. H. Hollins.

Louise Davis answers:

If you ask the people just to drop in during the holidays, I am afraid they might interpret the invitation as half-hearted, and few, if any, would come, especially during that busy season. Unfortunately, but understandably, people don't make calls these days as they once did. They would rather have you specify a date, so I suggest that you entertain with an "at home." As to the invitations, it is optional whether to include them with your Christmas cards or issue them separately. If you plan to have an evening gathering, I suggest you say "from 8 to 10." The earlier hours might indicate that you would be serving a buffet dinner or supper. You might like a Saturday or Sunday afternoon even better, say from 4 to 6. In either case, sandwiches, cookies, nuts and punch will be enough.

Crumble one Oxo cube with one cup flour. Add cup cold water, bring to boil. Simmer 5 minutes.

HADASSAH CONVENTION

Israeli Children Given Progressive Education

TORONTO (CP)—A senior member of the Women's International Zionist Organization said this week that WIZO is the bridge in Israel between every wave of immigration and every section of population.

Mrs. Fay Grove, of Israel, chairman of the organization and culture department, said WIZO has established 200 kindergartens and schools where Israeli children are being taught a modern and progressive way of life.

She told members of Canadian Hadassah at their 17th biennial convention that they have played a great role in integration by establishing women's clubs throughout Israel.

"These clubs bring relief, instruction and social nearness to immigrant women by breaking their isolation," she said. She urged Canadian Hadassah to take a greater share and interest in integration of immigrants in Israel.

PROGRESSIVE SCHOOL
The Hadassim Children's Village has one of the most progressive schools in the world, said its director, Mrs. Rachel Shapiro of Israel.

The school, supported by Hadassah for 10 years, has primary and secondary education for children and a normal school for its graduates.

Students work on a project basis. No marks are given.

MOSTLY SEWING

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—Sewing classes were particularly popular as persons registered for winter evening classes here. Four sewing classes were established but initial registration for the cooking class was light.

Each student proceeds at his natural rate, but each must complete a certain amount of work each year to continue with his classmates.

The village houses orphans who live in family units on the campus along with a counselor and house mother or father.

Mrs. Shapiro said the village is self-sufficient because students spend part of each day working in the fields. Those from destitute families are paid for their labor.

Members adopted a budget of $2,250,000 for aid to Israel at earlier sessions Monday.

Chapter members of Canadian Hadassah from across the country were advised to seek new and interesting techniques in fund-raising by Mrs. H. Sokolov of Winnipeg.

Colorful Ceremony to Mark Bridge Opening Saturday

Final touches on the new Point Ellice Bridge were to be completed at 3 p.m. today with paving of approaches at west end. Ceremonies opening the $682,934 span are set for 2 p.m. Saturday. A parade from City Hall will mark the event. The ribbon-cutting ceremony takes place at the east end of the bridge. Mayor Percy Scourah will unveil a plaque and Charles Banfield, pioneer Victoria West resident, will cut the ribbon. Guests, including old-timers who were involved or suffered loss when the original bridge collapsed, will proceed to Victoria West Community Hall from the ceremony, for a reception. The bridge was closed to traffic June 17. For other stories concerning its construction and history, see Pages 10 and 11. (Daily Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Twins Lose Rape Case Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appeal of twin 17-year-old brothers from a sentence of five years and 10 strokes of the paddle each was dismissed today. Robert and George Mycock were sentenced Oct. 28 by Mr. Justice H. A. Maclean after they were convicted of rape.

The girl involved in the charge against them was 14 years old. A third man, accused with the Mycock boys, has since been arrested and is awaiting trial for the same offence.

2 Suspects Escape Police Car

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two burglary suspects, leaped from a police car in suburban Burnaby today and escaped despite two shots fired after them.

Robert S. Lyness, 25, and Brian Sexsmith, 26, jumped from the New Westminster police car as it stopped for a traffic light. The officers fired one shot each in an attempt to halt the men. RCMP and city police cars converged on the area.

Amalgamation Looms as Big Election Issue

But Outer Areas Holding Back

By PETE LOUDON

The question of amalgamation has been definitely thrown into the year-end election picture in Greater Victoria, but there were doubts today that all voters will get a chance to express an opinion.

City council decided late Thursday to submit a referendum on a proposal to have a royal commission investigate the plan.

Five Perish In British Hospital Fire

MAIDSTONE, England (Reuters)—A fire chief and four firemen were killed today when a 50-foot-high water tower crashed down on flaming buildings at a mental hospital.

Firemen, police and civil defence workers burrowed through 250 tons of fallen masonry searching for four or five other persons believed trapped in the wreckage.

Fifteen persons, including firemen and mental patients, were taken to hospital.

ATOM ARMS ON PLANES FLYING OVER CANADA

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—United States bombers carry nuclear weapons on flights over Canadian soil, Hon. George Pearkes, minister of national defence, told newsmen when questioned today.

He stressed, however, that prior permission from the Canadian government must be obtained by the United States forces.

This permission was given sparingly, he said.

Sommers Case Delay Needless

'Prosecutor Has All Evidence'
Bonner's Comment on Remand

Attorney-General Bonner said today he knows no reason why proceedings in the Sommers bribery case should be delayed.

He was commenting on the request for a remand made in Vancouver police court Thursday by Prosecutor Stewart McMorran.

Mr. McMorran said he wanted to discuss the case with Mr. Bonner and needed more time to study the evidence and interview witnesses.

"I don't know why he would have to talk to me," the attorney-general said. "He has all the evidence."

"As far as I am concerned, the prosecution will go ahead in the normal way."

LARGE STAFF

Mr. Bonner said a "large basic research staff" had been made available to the prosecutor to help prepare and interpret the evidence.

Mr. Bonner arrived back to day from the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

Told by reporters that Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for one of the defendants in the conspiracy case, had said he couldn't understand the reason for the delay, Mr. Bonner replied:

"Frankly, I can't understand the delay either."

Meanwhile, the four defendants in the case have been remanded until Dec. 6.

Former Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers, and businessman C. D. Schultz, H. Wilson Gray and John W. Gray are free on bail in the meantime.

50,000 Spotters Placed on Alert

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF ground observer corps will go on a special round-the-clock alert starting Saturday to watch for the possible re-entry into the atmosphere of the rocket which carried Sputnik I to outer space.

Roughly 5,000 observation posts scattered across Canada have been ordered to operate on a continuous basis until further notice. The defence department said special attention will be placed on dusk-to-dawn watches.

Defence Research Board officials said the rocket is expected to re-enter the atmosphere after Saturday, and would then burn up from the friction. The board asked for the special alert to obtain all possible information about the satellite's rocket should it enter the atmosphere over Canada.

The ground observer corps is made up of roughly 50,000 civilian spotters, all unpaid volunteers, who man observation posts. The corps was formed in 1951 and is controlled by the RCAF air defence command.

In Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Fred L. Whipple, observatory director at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, emphasized that it is impossible to predict at this time exactly when the rocket will re-enter the atmosphere.

'Watch Our Show' B.C.'s Grey Cup Motto

TORONTO — The Westerners began arriving in Canada's biggest one-day circus—the Grey Cup game between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats—descended on Toronto today in surprisingly quiet fashion.

Bomber fans trooped off their 16-car special train in reserved mood, compared to the hi-jinks in previous years.

But British Columbia officials—not accepting any blame for the drab performance—issued a warning: "Wait until OUR show hits the road!"

The B.C. delegation, which boasts the largest entry in the Grey Cup parade of any western province, promises to put on a real show Saturday. Vancouver expects to host the football classic next year and the province is pulling out all stops in an effort to lure easterners to its Centennial birthday party. B.C. budgeted $24,000 to be spent on Grey Cup parade floats.

Chief weather forecaster Fred Turnbull's latest forecast is rain with a probably high of 45 degrees, adding that the weather could get cooler later in the day.

Russian Subs Have Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.), said today three days of testimony on the status of the United States missile program shows the situation "is worse than I thought it was."

... AMALGAMATION

didate, former councillor G. K. Sammon, publicly supported the holding of a referendum.

He said in view of the possible election by acclamation of council candidates this year, "the people of Esquimalt should know my views."

"I am strongly in favor of a referendum to permit a full investigation of all phases of amalgamation."

STILL TIME

"Despite Reeve Wurtel's remarks, it is not too late to arrange a referendum. It's a very simple question. The people of Esquimalt are ready to vote. To take the attitude we are not going to listen is like an ostrich burying its head in the sand."

Oak Bay Reeve F. E. Norris said he would not propose the holding of an immediate referendum to his council although he had no objection to one being held. "I have confidence in the sanity of Oak Bay electors to turn it down."

"I don't think the Junior Chamber of Commerce is a responsible body to dictate whether we should hold a referendum or not."

In Saanich, reeveship candidate Coun. Eugene Diespecker said he would oppose any motion at Monday's council meeting, for a referendum.

NOT FOR SAANICH

"Amalgamation is in the city's interests. But it is certainly not in the interests of Saanich. And I don't think Oak Bay and Esquimalt are going to change their minds."

He felt the time was too short to set a referendum for December elections.

The proposal for a Dec. 12 referendum was sent to each municipality by the Junior Chamber of Commerce amalgamation committee.

Chairman Eric Charman said he has asked to address Saanich Council Monday.

"I am confident Saanich will vote for it," he said this morning.

BACKED BY ASH

Reeve Arthur Ash indicated he would support a referendum and commended the Jaycees for their interest in "this most

Kefauver, a member of the Senate preparedness subcommittee conducting the missile-satellite investigation, said in an interview the testimony by defence officials, intelligence specialists and scientists added up to "shocking evidence of how the country has got behind" Russia in certain scientific-military fields.

Kefauver refused to go into detail.

DOMINANT POSITION

It was reported Thursday night that the subcommittee was told Russia now has a few submarines, possibly four, capable of firing a missile with a nuclear warhead up to 700-900 miles. Other vessels in Russia's sub fleet, estimated at about 450 boats, were reported being made ready for such missile equipment.

One informant said the reported Soviet sub-missile capability "means they are practically in a position to wipe out any major city on the eastern seaboard." He did not say, however, that any of the Russian subs now are stationed within missile range of the U.S. east coast.

The CIA was quoted by one source as reporting the Russian subs could launch missiles while still submerged. The weapons were described as the "cruise" type—presumably a guided missile slower than a ballistic missile.

important and pressing matter.

If the municipal councils wish to block an expression of public opinion, they can legally do so.

The letter from the Junior Chamber stated consideration would be given to petitioning residents in each area to present their councils with signed demands that the referendum be held.

But councils would still have jurisdiction on the question if they decided to overrule such a request.

Victoria council was unanimous Thursday in calling for the referendum.

The referendum would ask if voters favor a royal commission appointed by the province, with the costs shared by the province and the municipalities.

It has been indicated the provincial government will "give favorable consideration" to such a request.

False Claims Cost $48,360 To Alberta

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government may have lost as much as $48,360 to persons making false claims for $20 oil and gas royalty dividends.

The provincial auditors' department said Thursday 532 applications, involving 2,418 separate dividend payments, have been turned over to the attorney-general's department for investigation.

Assistant Provincial Auditor D. B. Barr said any application showing an irregularity was put aside for investigation. All might not have been illegal, he said.

The Edmonton Journal says a half-dozen persons are believed to have received 20 or more dividends each and one man, using the same name on every certificate, is reported to have obtained more than 60.

The newspaper says there have been 76 convictions and about 40 persons are serving jail terms for dividend infractions.

Consuls Hunt U.K. Heiress And Playboy

LONDON (Reuters)—British consuls in Spain, southern France and Tangier today sought the whereabouts of blonde, 18-year-old heiress Tessa Kennedy and London playboy Dominic Elwes.

Instructions for the search went out from the foreign office here to officials in Majorca, Marseilles, Madrid and Tangier.

The couple were last seen together dining in London eight days ago.

Sexy Presley Album Brings New Protest

HALIFAX (CP)—Halifax radio stations have joined in the criticism of Elvis Presley's album on Christmas carols.

Station CHNS said it is considering Presley's latest effort, and one disc jockey speculated "sexy overtones" have doomed his "Silent Night" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem." A spokesman said, however, the rock-and-rollish "Santa Bring My Baby Back to Me" probably will be played.

TITO GETS BRUSH-OFF FROM SOVIET BOSSES

LONDON (UP)—Soviet Communist boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin failed today to send congratulatory messages to Marshal Tito on Yugoslavia's national holiday today, according to radio Moscow.

Radio Moscow said Khrushchev and Bulganin joined Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov in lavishly congratulating the leaders of little Communist Albania which, also celebrated the anniversary of its "liberation."

But only Voroshilov signed the congratulatory message to Tito, according to the broadcast.

City 'Approves' Night Shopping At Christmas

City council went on record Thursday favoring evening shopping here before Christmas, but it left the decision to the merchants.

The resolution followed advice from Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs J. E. Brown that if stores open after 6 p.m., after Dec. 16, "it is understood" there would be no prosecution under the Municipal Act.

The act stipulates stores shall close at 6 p.m. and makes no provision for special concessions at Christmas.

City solicitor and prosecutor, T. P. O'Grady, warned council if any citizen lays a charge under the act, the law would have to be enforced, "barring intervention by the attorney-general."

EMBARRASSMENT?

"I cannot ignore any legal action. But there might be some embarrassment," if council actually exempted stores from the closing provisions of the act.

Ald. G. I. Edgell felt council should approve an exemption.

"Just because the government boo-boos on this and put the responsibility on us, we shouldn't pass it on to the merchants. We should protect them, even if we have to stick our necks out to do it."

ENFORCEMENT

Council received a letter from John McMaster and 11 other men's wear stores stating they favored strict enforcement of the present closing by-law. The group was mainly concerned with the perpetuation of Wednesday half-day closing, however.

The council decision leaves the question of opening up to the individual stores.

Bubbling Student Show Applauded at Oak Bay

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Times Drama Critic

Maybe it's television acting as preceptor and guide in the matter of entertainment standards; or maybe it's just that students and their teachers have a freer reign than was once the case.

At any rate school concerts seem to get better every year, at least in tempo and in the manner of their presentation.

Thursday night at Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium, Oak Bay Senior students staged their annual revue. In many respects and at its level this was a brilliant show.

From the simplicity and charm of the opening group of Christmas songs, directed by Miss Norma Douglas, to the imaginative and colorful finale, here was good entertainment; visually delightful, bubbling over with cheerful humor, often musically sound.

There were examples of outstanding individual talent—such as that of Dave Laundry who, besides taking a leading role in the play, both wrote and arranged modern idiomatic music and played it too, leaving a sizzling hot piano keyboard in his wake.

But in general this was not a star show; no high school revue should be that. It was a collective presentation by boys and girls interested in certain aspects of their school life and participating in it with uninhibited zest.

WELL ACTED

A play, "The Ass and the Philosophers," well acted and imaginatively presented by Miss K. B. Youldall, dance and song numbers, framed with originality, an acrobatic number, an amusing version of a radio show, barbershop quartet and western group were included in the program.

Two solo numbers were given; a sketch by talented actress Judy MacCormac and a well done Stan Holloway imitation of Sam Spall by Michael Fairweather.

Real Christmas trees, artistically grouped and lighted, formed a setting for the finale which featured singing, dancing and band items. Of the latter, much can be said in praise, particularly of the "Jingle Bells Rhapsody."

The revue will be repeated tonight and is well worth a visit from anyone seeking a holiday mood.

Other directors of various numbers were Mrs. C. Vining, Miss C. M. Shaw, Gary Taylor, Eric Orme, Mrs. J. Kelly and E. J. Costain. The band was looked like a collection of gaily-under direction of E. Eames.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

Bicycle Licensing Abolished

Bicycle licensing was abolished in Victoria Thursday.

City council issued the order following recommendation from the city police commission.

Police chief John Blackstock earlier said 80 per cent of the bikes located by police were unlicensed. The 20 per cent which were licensed were mostly unclaimed.

The proposal that firms be permitted to rent space on city streets for benches, which would carry advertising, was defeated by council.

Only Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. J. Donald Smith supported the idea.

Council voted to encourage home owners to seek out winter repair jobs which would aid the winter employment problem.

The decision followed showing of a film on the question by National Employment Service.

Council overruled an attempt by Ald. Arthur Dowell to have the long-proposed Cook Street widening program scrapped.

However, a motion to buy property at the northeast corner of Cook and Pandora to facilitate the scheme was tabled until the owner sets a firm selling price.

Council approved expenditure of $1,250 for blazers for both senior and junior Shamrocks.

The lacrosse teams are to be honored for their recent accomplishments. The seniors brought the Mann Cup to Victoria and the junior team won a place in Dominion finals before losing out.

Formal approval was given to an earlier decision to proceed with negotiations for sale of

Scouting Needed 'More Than Ever'

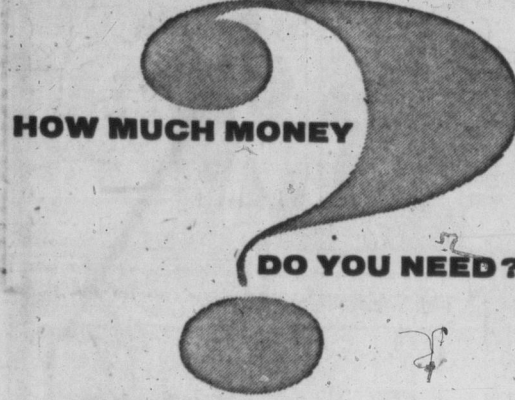

Scouting is needed to combat the materialism of the new age, Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer, Pacific Command, told the annual dinner of the Boy Scouts Association, Victoria District Council, Thursday night.

He said scouting places the same emphasis on character and integrity in training boys as the Navy does in training sailors.

"Human nature never changes, but the character of a people can be influenced by training and environment. And that is why scouting is more needed today than ever before in its history."

"The Boy Scout movement is one of the finest means of developing high moral and physical standards among our youth today," he said.

More Leaders Required To Tap Scout Potential

The number of Boy Scouts in Victoria district could be trebled if sufficient scout leaders were found, Vernon A. Ridgeway, retiring district president, said Thursday night.

Interviewed at the annual meeting of the Boy Scouts Association, Victoria District, Mr. Ridgeway said:

"We now have 3,000 scouts in our area, which extends to Sidney, Brentwood, Deep Cove and Shawnigan Lake. But we could handle 10,000 scouts if we only had the leaders."

Mr. Ridgeway said the outdoor activities of many scout and cub packs in Victoria district are limited because one man or woman is required to handle 30 or more boys.

Three-Deep
"The ideal from our point of view is one leader and two assistants for every 30 boys. That is what we call three-deep leadership. It is needed to keep the boys interested and get them out more... Outing in Scouting should be our objective."

In his second annual report, Mr. Ridgeway said the district had grown in strength during the past year, but the executive proposed to investigate the reasons for losses in various age brackets.

"Some of these losses occur between the wolf cub packs and the scout troops," he said.

On the financial side, Mr. Ridgeway reported a deficit of $2,160 on operating costs. "The fixed expenses that go hand in hand with numerical strength are uncontrollable. Although this district is operating below the Canadian average of about $6.50 per boy, the Community Chest has not been able to supply us with enough funds."

"There is no doubt we will either have to make drastic economies, or instigate a general assessment against all groups. The district has again failed to meet its provincial assessment."

He mentioned that the treasury had been boosted by $2,000 from "Apple Day," June 29, organized at three weeks' notice under the chairmanship of H. B. Twiss (newly-elected district vice-president).

Wiring Cost

Mr. Ridgeway said one reason for the deficit was that the district had to appoint a full-time caretaker at Camp Barnard, Sooke, because of vandalism.

"This entailed the additional cost of wiring the camp for electricity, as we could not expect a man to live there permanently under primitive conditions."

The retiring president noted that high scouting awards have been won by Victoria scouts during the past year, and the district was well represented at the Jubilee Jamboree in England and the 4th American Jamboree at Valley Forge.

67 Districts

The meeting extended a special welcome to Dr. D. F. Kidd, the provincial scout commissioner from Vancouver. "We have 67 districts in B.C. today and, try as I will, I cannot attend them all," Dr. Kidd said. "But the history of scouting in Victoria is long and honorable and I felt I had to be here tonight."

He paid tribute to provincial scout president Stuart Keate as

"a most able man who gives his time generously to the movement and who has the broad provincial outlook."

Dr. Kidd spoke of small isolated groups in B.C., particularly in the northern districts, which are a credit to scouting.

He praised the Whitehorse (Yukon) troop for "vigorous enterprise in the scouting field" and called attention to a Buddhist troop of Japanese scouts now operating successfully at Kelowna.

"Scouting is good for boys and it is even better for men and women," said Dr. Kidd, appealing to adults to give their time and energies to the movement.
